Quality time

Tense review

Reading: Got things to do

1 Is your life busy at the moment or do you have plenty of free time?

2 Look at the to-do list. Do you have any similar jobs to do? What other jobs are on your to-do list? Which jobs on your list will you enjoy doing and which will you dislike? Why?

Complete tax form ✔
Reply to emails ✔
Take clothes to cleaners
Submit expenses ✔
Make dentist's appointment
Plan trip to Athens ✔
Look for cheaper car insurance ✔
Sell the old printer on eBay
Buy Jim and Jenny's wedding present ✔
Pay gas bill ✔
Clean out garage

3 Read the website. Would you like to use its services? Why?/Why not?

Have you got too much to do and no time to do it?

Gottajobtodo.com helps thousands of people like you every month. It's as easy as one, two, three. Here's how it works.

1 Post a job ad on our site
It doesn't matter what it is – no job's too big or too small. You can give all your boring chores to our assistants.

2 Choose your assistant
Individuals and companies reply to your ad and bid a price. You just select the one you want to do your job.

3 Sit back and relax
Let someone else get on with it. You can put your time and energy into more important projects instead.

In the past our assistants have done everything you can imagine. They've painted houses, filled in tax forms, researched better rates for car insurance, taught kids English, built websites, and even bought Aunty Freda's birthday gift. Last year more than 100,000 people found the help they needed at Gottajobtodo.com.

So tell your friends and family you're going to have a lot more time to spend together. We have thousands of assistants waiting to bid on your jobs, so you'll have time to begin those projects you've always wanted to do. You're going to love Gottajobtodo.com

4 Find words and phrases in the website text which match these definitions.

1 it's not important
2 routine boring tasks
3 advertisement
4 an offer made at a stated price
5 do something on your own without help
6 searched carefully for facts for a thing or person

5 Look at the three numbered paragraphs in the website. Which tenses are used? Past, present, future or a mixture?

A

Listening: Assistants

6 What do you think the people in these photos are thinking? What kind of assistant do you think they'd like to have?

7 1.1 Listen to the people in exercise 6. Find out if you are right.

8 Listen again and complete the sentences.

1 It always _____ longer to get home on Tuesdays.
2 I'm _____ exhausted but I'd better go.
3 I'm _____ the minutes this evening.
4 I think _____ _____ these ones … or the other ones.
5 No, the other ones _____ _____ my toes.
6 I'm _____ _____ _____ him at home next time.
7 Well, that new diet _____ _____ .
8 I've _____ _____ good at dieting.

Grammar: Tense review

9 Look at the sentences in exercise 8. Which tenses are they talking about?

a past time
b present time
c future time d mixture

It always takes longer to get home on Tuesdays.
– They are talking about present time.

10 Compare your answers with a partner. Do you agree? Then find examples of these verb forms in the sentences in exercise 8.

Grammar: Tense review

a the present simple b the present continuous c the will future
d the going to future
e the present continuous for future f the past simple g the past continuous h the present perfect

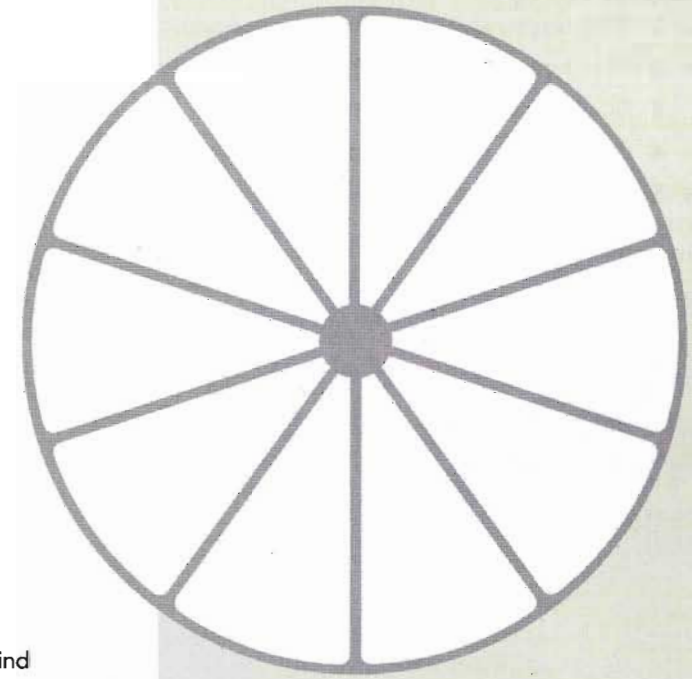
>> For more information on the English tense system, see page 160.

Speaking: Past, present and future

11 Write an example of each of these things in the sections of the circle below.

- a routine job you do every day
- a job you didn't have time to do yesterday
- a project you're working on at the moment
- what you were doing at 6 p.m. last night
- a job you think you will do tomorrow
- something you've wanted to do for ages, but you haven't had time
- the name of a place where you've never been to but you've always wanted to go
- something you plan to do this weekend
- something you're going to do as soon as you get home
- something you hate doing but have to do



12 Work in pairs. Show each other your circles. Take it in turns to ask questions about the things you have written and develop conversations.

A: Why have you written 'fix door bell'?
B: That's a job I plan to do this weekend. My front doorbell isn't working.
A: Is it broken then?
B: I'm not sure. I'm going to replace the batteries and see.

TALKING POINT

- Are you good at organizing your time? Do you use any kind of planner?
- Do you think modern technology has helped people organize themselves better? Why?/Why not?

1 Present tense question forms

Listening: Commuting

1 How do you get to work or school in the mornings? How long does your journey take? Is it generally stressful or peaceful? Why?

2 1.2 Listen to a radio interview with some commuters on a train. Make notes on the activities they mention.

Name	What they usually do	What they are doing now
Mario Alissa
Steve Wanda

3 Look at the questions the interviewer asked the commuters. Underline the present simple and present continuous forms. Which questions include both forms? Ask and answer the questions with a partner.

1 What do you usually do while you're commuting?
2 What book are you reading at the moment?
3 Does it take you long to get to work?
4 Do you listen to music while you're commuting?
5 What are you daydreaming about at the moment?
6 Are you studying for any exams at the moment?

Grammar: Present tense question forms

4 Look at the table and answer the questions.

Present tense question forms

Present simple

(yes/no questions)	(Wh- questions)
Do you usually take the train?	What do you usually do*?*
Does he usually take the train?	What does he usually do*?*

Present continuous

(yes/no questions)	(Wh- questions)
Is he/she studying for exams at the moment?	What is he doing now?
Are you studying for exams at the moment?	What are you doing now?

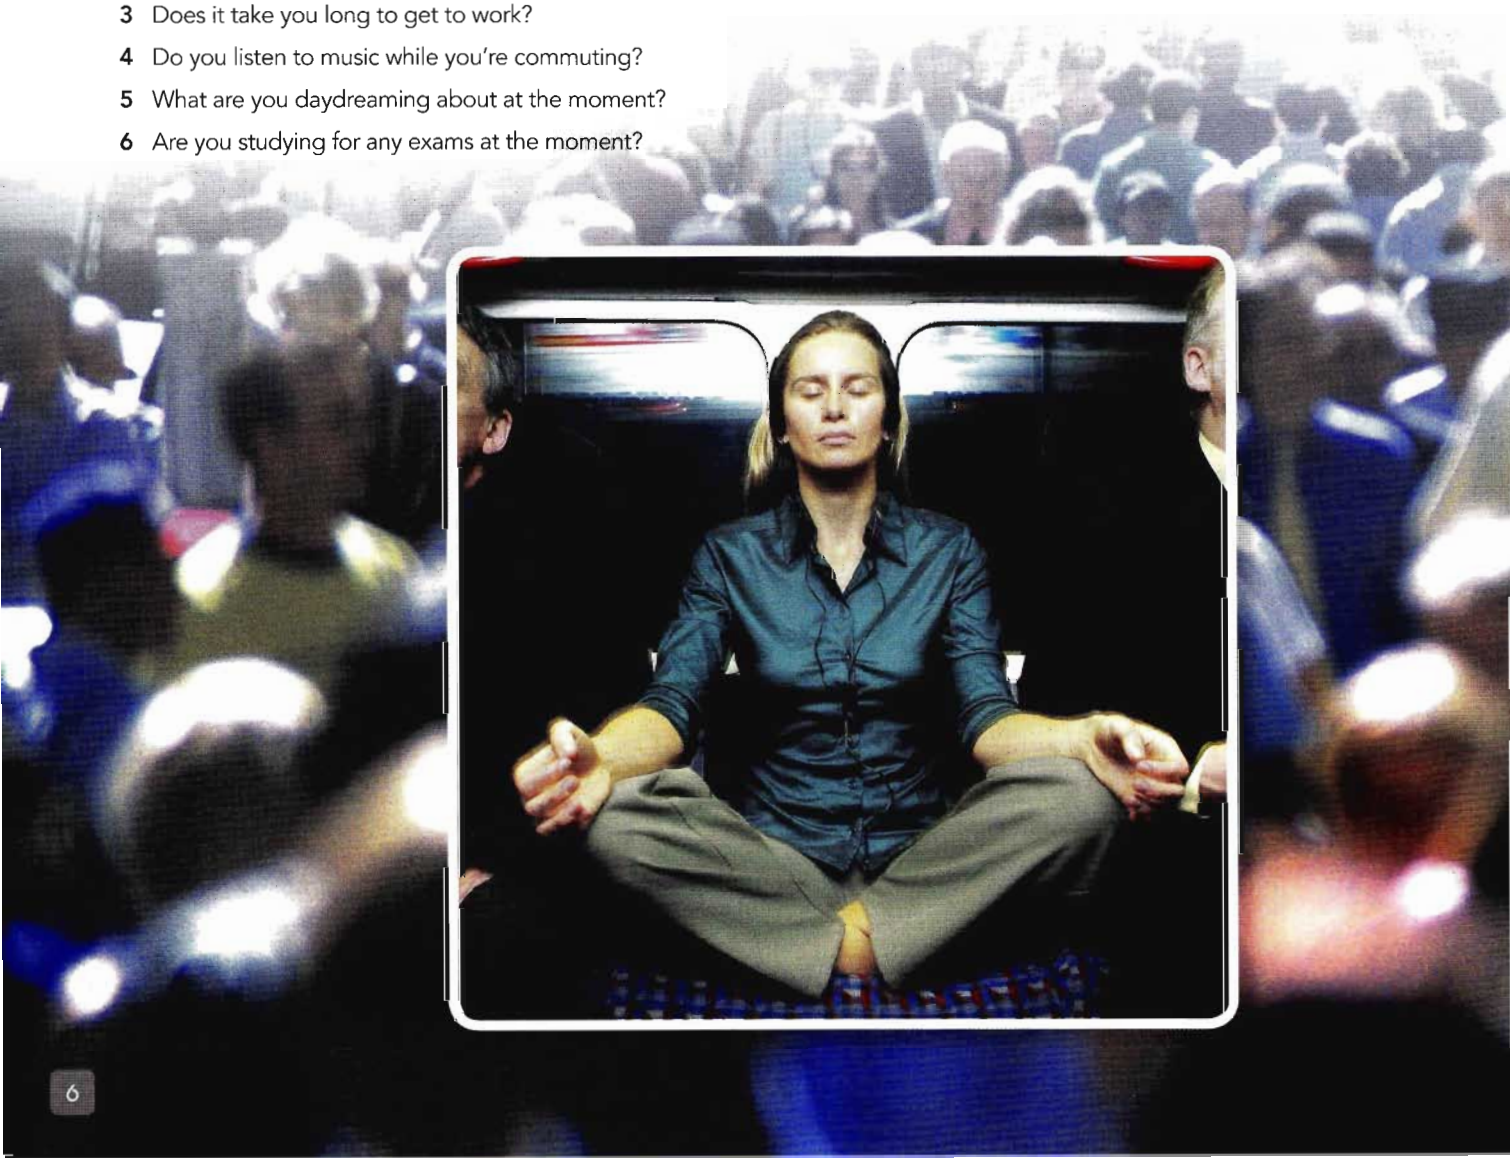
Which tense do we use to talk about:

a short-term or temporary activities?

b long-term situations?

>> For more information on the present simple and present continuous, see page 161.



5 Here are some things commuters sometimes do to pass the time on trains. Think of five more to add to the list.

- think about the day ahead
- eat snacks
- draw pictures
- study a language
- do crosswords and puzzles
- look out of the window at the scenery
- sleep
- chat with other travellers
- brush or comb their hair

6 Work in groups. What do you normally do on long journeys? Which are the best ways to pass the time and why?

7 Sometimes we just have to wait for things to happen. In your groups, discuss the best way to pass the time in these situations.

1 While you're standing in a long queue at the airport.

2 While you're waiting for red lights to turn green.

3 While you're listening to recorded music on the phone, waiting for someone to answer.

4 While you're waiting for your dentist to see you.

5 While you're waiting for your computer to boot up.

A: What do you usually do when you are standing in a queue at the airport?

B: I usually watch the other people in the queue.

A: What about you?

B: I sometimes close my eyes and meditate or I read something.

Speaking: Making changes

8 Look at the list below. Which of these aspects of your life would you like to change?

- get more sleep
- lose weight or get fitter
- save money
- find a new job or place to live
- study more English
- learn something new
- become a better parent / husband / wife / boss / employee
- something else (what?)

9 Work in groups. You are going to discuss making changes to your life. Follow the instructions below. Then report back to the class. Which people are making the most changes to their lives?

1 Tell one another what you want to do and why.

2 Explain what you're doing to try to change the situation.

A: Are you trying to find a new job?

B: Yes. I work for a bank at the moment but I have a degree in journalism. I want to be a reporter.

A: Are you looking for jobs in television or radio?

B: I'm answering ads for both. And I'm networking more so I make more contacts.

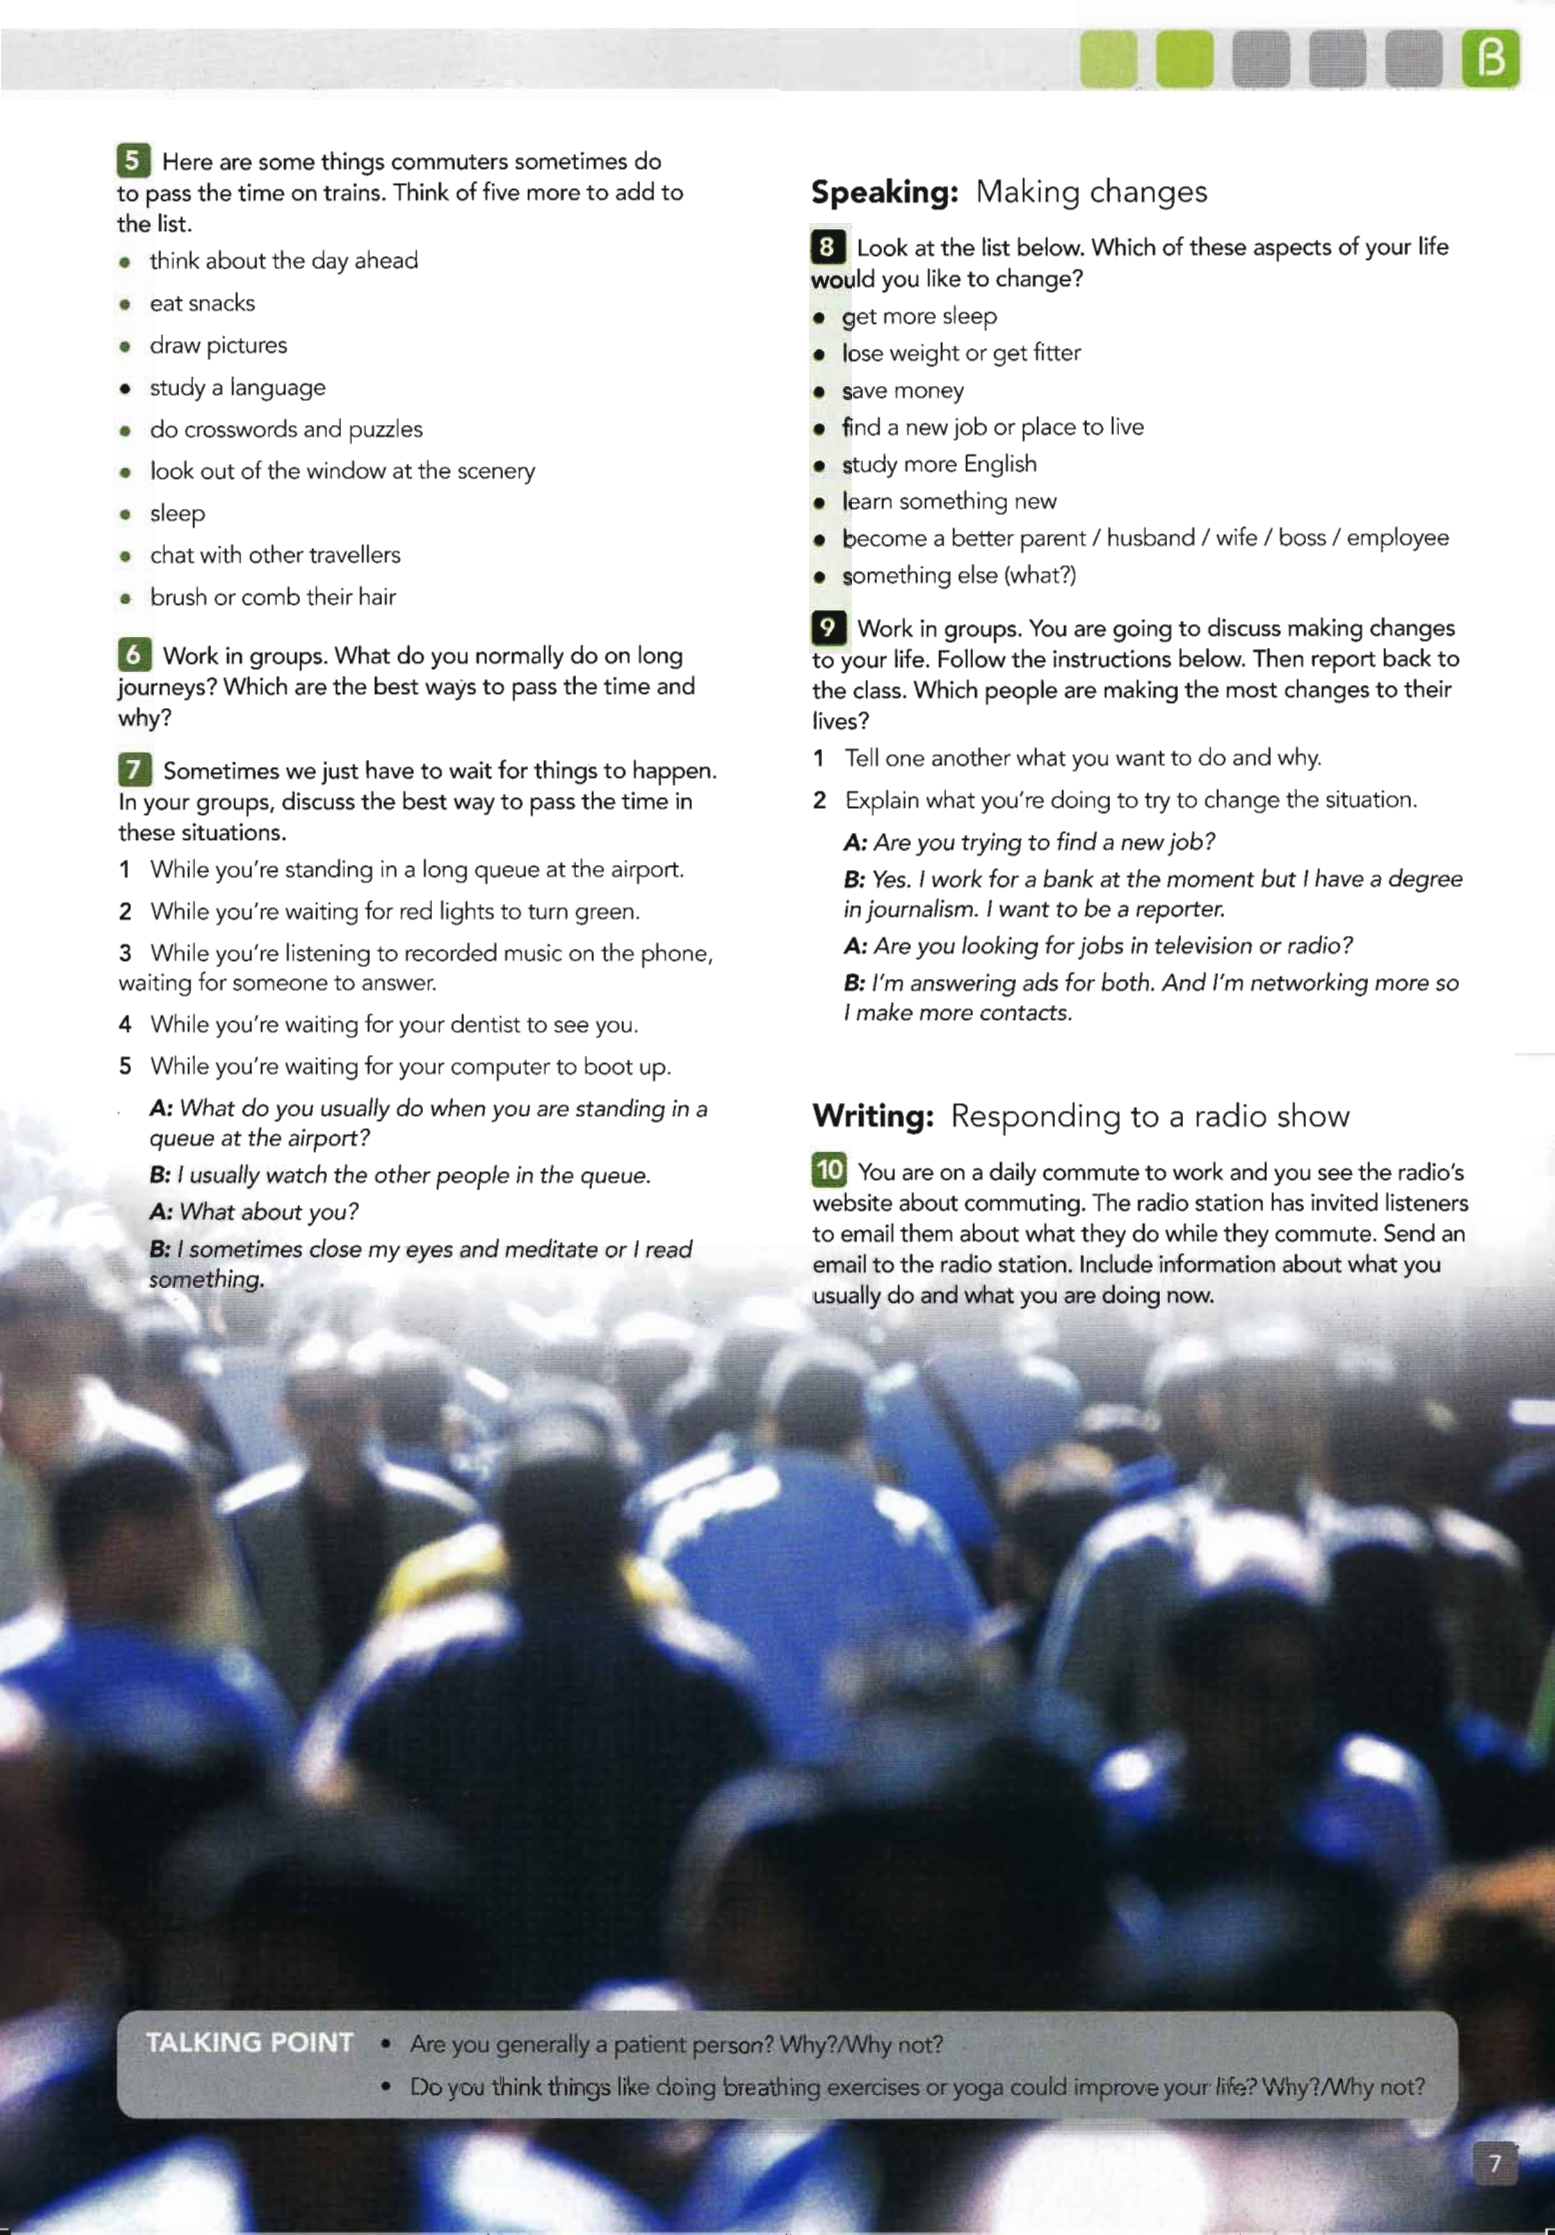
Writing: Responding to a radio show

10 You are on a daily commute to work and you see the radio's website about commuting. The radio station has invited listeners to email them about what they do while they commute. Send an email to the radio station. Include information about what you usually do and what you are doing now.



TALKING POINT

- Are you generally a patient person? Why?/Why not?
- Do you think things like doing breathing exercises or yoga could improve your life? Why?/Why not?

1 Free-time activities

Reading: Activity Superstore

1 Look at the photos of some activities that are advertised on a website. Match the photos with the name of the sport or activity.

flying lessons aqua sphering spy academy fashion shoot

2 Work in pairs. Student A: Read the first two adverts. Student B: Read the last two adverts. Match the name of the activity in exercise 1 to the adverts.

3 Try to remember the essential information about the activities and explain them to your partner.

A Dream Come True

1 _____

Ever wondered what it's like inside a washing machine? Then aqua sphering is just the thing for you! It's the latest extreme activity where you roll down a hill in a huge plastic bubble with thirty litres of water. The ball can reach speeds of up to 50km per hour. It's exhilarating and terrifying at the same time. You'll love it!

2 _____

If you fancy yourself as the next James Bond then our Spy Academy is for you! You'll learn how to use specialist spy gadgets* such as hidden cameras and listening devices*. You'll play with some of the famous Bond vehicles such as the moon buggy, and you'll also receive expert advice on how to escape the enemy. Note: No weapons used.

Price €112.

3 _____

This activity will leave you looking and feeling truly amazing. Relax as top professionals create your new look. Your day will start with an interview with a top stylist, followed by stunning make-up and then an incredible up-to-date hairstyle. Then enjoy a fashion photo shoot capturing your fabulous look.

We offer you a great range of flying activities to choose from. You can experience the thrill* of taking the controls yourself in a flying lesson, enjoy spectacular views from a balloon, or keep your feet firmly on the ground with a flight simulator*. We have something for everyone.

Price €123–€337.

gadgets: small, useful machines or tools devices: machines or tools that do a special job thrill: sense of excitement flight simulator: a machine that tries to copy the experience of flying an aircraft, used to train pilots

Word focus: Free-time activities

4 Name something you like doing in your free time. Did you like doing this when you were younger? In what ways have your leisure activities changed over time?

5 What do you think most young Europeans aged 15–30 do in their free time? Read the text and find out if you are right.

Young Europeans are still reading books

The two most common leisure activities among young Europeans are taking exercise (45% – going for a walk, a bike ride, practising sports, etc.) and meeting friends (40% – eating, dancing, having a drink, hanging out, etc.).

Roughly one in five (21%) young adults say using the internet or playing video games is one of their preferred activities. Watching television is mentioned by 19%, listening to music by 17% and going to the cinema, theatre or concerts by 16%. Perhaps it's surprising these days, but more young people (one in four) mention reading a book.

6 Do you think the statistics would be similar in your country? Why?/Why not?

7 Complete the notes on -ing forms in the table with the examples from the text. Then find more examples of -ing forms in the text.

-ing forms

-ing forms can be:

1 parts of a continuous verb form

Young Europeans are still _____ books.

2 adjectives

Perhaps it's _____ .

3 used like a noun _____ television is mentioned by 19%.

When -ing forms are used like nouns, we call them gerunds.

>> For more information on -ing forms, see page 172.

8 Tick (✓) the leisure activities you like doing. Are there any you have never tried? Add some more activities that you like doing to the list.

running playing chess skiing cycling swimming yoga playing computer games climbing making jewellery singing doing puzzles visiting museums/art galleries gardening diving photography shopping birdwatching going for a walk doing up old cars

Speaking: Choosing an activity

9 How do you and your family relax in your free time? Do you have a specific hobby or interest?

- One of my/our free-time interests is …
- I'm/We're into …
- I/We like / enjoy … ing.
- I am/We are keen on …
- I/We spend a lot of time …

10 Discuss these statements. Which ones are true for you and why?

1 I try to find new ways to relax in my free time.

2 I'm bored with the traditional hobbies and activities.

3 I'd like to try a new sport or activity.

4 I'd like to do as many new things as possible before I retire/die.

11 Work in pairs. Look at the adverts in exercise 2 and choose the most appropriate activity for each of these people. Give your reasons. What other activities do you think they might like?

1 Your friend Helena loves adventure sports. She's really into skiing and diving.

2 Baz works with you. He's a shy person who likes computer games. It's his 30th birthday and you and your colleagues want to organize a group activity.

3 It's your parents' wedding anniversary and you want to find an activity they would like to do together. Your mother is keen on photography. Your father likes doing up old cars.

4 Your younger sister passed all her exams and you want to give her something special to celebrate. She loves clothes and shopping.

5 Your brother works in Research & Development for a pharmaceutical company. He enjoys gardening in his free time.

6 Nigel loves gadgets and finding out how machines work. You want to give him a surprise present.

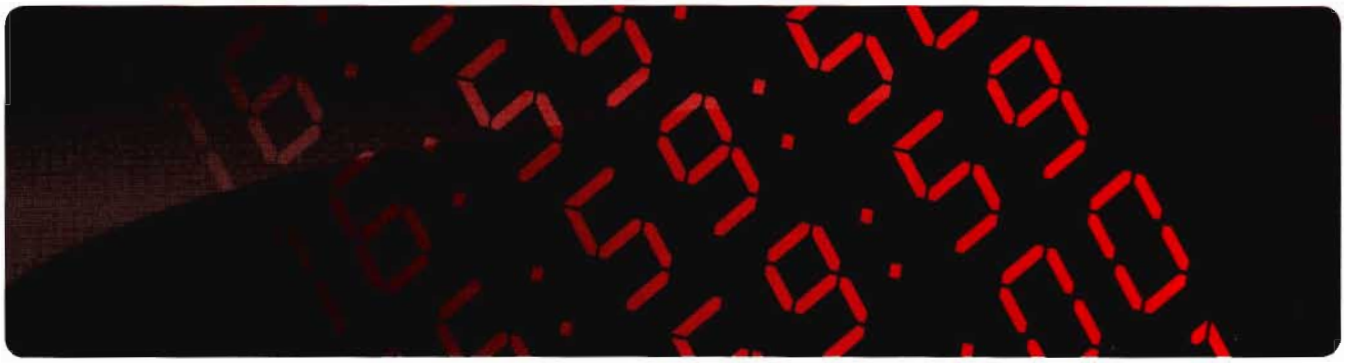
Writing: Giving a dream

12 Write an email to a friend or family member who has something to celebrate and say you want to give them a Live the Dream! activity. Tell them what it is and why you think they'd like it.

TALKING POINT

- What other activities or sports would you like to do in your lifetime?
- What dream activity would you like to receive as a present from someone?

1 Communication strategies Making suggestions



Listening: Issues with a project

1 A deadline is a date or time by which you have to do or complete something. Do you ever have deadlines at work? What for? Do you or your colleagues ever have problems meeting deadlines? Why?

2 Read an email about a deadline. What is the deadline for?

Subject: Project status

Hi Valerie
I'm just writing to warn you that we're running about two weeks behind schedule with the new website. I know we wanted it by 1 May, but it won't be ready in time. I propose we delay the site launch by another month.
What do you think?
All the best
Jay

3 Find words and phrases in the email which mean the following.

1 be prepared before the deadline
2 tell someone about something before it happens so they are not worried or surprised
3 later than planned
4 wait until a later time to do something
5 when a new product or service becomes available

4 1.3 Valerie talks to Jay about his email. Listen to their conversation. Who says what? Write V for Valerie and J for Jay.

1 Who says why the project is behind schedule?
2 Who wants to launch the site on 1 May?
3 Who wants to recruit an expert to work on the project?
4 Who doesn't want to pay someone to help?

5 Do you think Jay's suggestion was a good one? Why?/Why not?

6 Try to remember the missing words from this part of the conversation. Then listen again and check your answers.

Valerie: Is there any way we can have the site ready for the first of May? It's very important.
Jay: 1_____ _____ _____ someone to help us? What do you think?
Valerie: Well, it's an 2_____ idea. Do you 3_____ getting someone from another department?
Jay: No, I mean hiring an external contractor. We could have the site ready in time then.
Valerie: Oh, I see.
Jay: My brother-in-law's a very good web designer. 4_____ _____ _____ _____ him?
Valerie: Um, I 5_____ _____. It sounds expensive.
Jay: I 6_____ _____ to him today if you like.
Valerie: 7_____ _____ at some other options first.
Jay: Oh, OK.
Valerie: 8_____ _____ _____ a bit later to discuss this again?

Speaking: Making suggestions

7 Find five expressions for making suggestions in exercise 6.

8 Complete these suggestions in the table by putting the verbs in brackets in the correct form.

Making suggestions
1 What about _____ (delay) the launch date by a month?
2 Let's _____ (add) adverts to the site.
3 We could _____ (get) a contractor to do the work.
4 How about _____ (meet) after lunch?
5 Why don't we _____ (look) at some more options?

> ! propose, recommend, suggest are all verbs that are formal and more common in written than spoken English.
> I propose we delay the site launch by another month. (written)
> What about delaying the site launch by another month? (spoken)

9 Read about some more written suggestions. What do you think these people actually said? Use the spoken expressions in exercise 8.

1 Sally proposed we introduce a blog on the website.

2 Tom recommended adding staff photos to the site.

3 Juan suggested we work late to finish the project in time.

4 Anna recommended web training for the whole department.

5 Jean-Philippe proposed ending the meeting earlier than planned.

6 Gudrun suggested we cancel next week's meeting.

10 Valerie tries to reject Jay's suggestions politely. Look at what Valerie thinks in the table and match it to what she says in exercise 6.

Responding to suggestions
Valerie thinks ...	Valerie says ...
I don't like that idea.	_____
No, we're not going to pay for a contractor.	_____
I don't want Jay to talk to his brother-in-law.	_____

11 Do people say similar things in your language when they want to be polite? Think of examples when you have to reject other people's suggestions politely.

12 Work in pairs or small groups. Take it in turns to present one of these problems.

1 Read your problem and then explain it to your partner(s). Ask Have you got any suggestions? and try to collect as many ideas as you can.

2 If you like an idea, respond positively and say things like Good suggestion! or Great idea! If you don't like it, be polite.

The hospital you work for is hosting ten visiting doctors from Australia next month. You're responsible for arranging their weekend activities. You need to plan things to do with them on Friday night, Saturday and Sunday.

You're organizing a 'Bring your child to work day'. It's a day when employees' children will accompany their mum or dad to work, and learn a little about what they do. You need to plan eight hours of entertaining and safe activities for 25 children aged 6–10 and 35 children aged 11–16.

You've noticed your colleagues are putting on weight and in need of exercise. They all work long hours and spend far too long sitting at their desks. How can you encourage everyone to take more exercise?

One of your colleagues spends a lot of time stopping by people's desks for long social conversations that interrupt your work and the work of others nearby. When you complain, he just laughs. You've also complained to your boss, but she doesn't seem to care.

Reminder

Grammar reference pages 161 and 162

In the present simple we use do or does to form questions.

Does it take long to commute to the office?

In the present continuous we change the word order to form questions.

Are you doing anything to change the way you work?

When we respond to suggestions that we don't like or aren't sure about, we try to sound polite.

A: How about asking your boss for help?

B: Well, it's an interesting idea.

Listening: Interview with a life coach

1 What would you most like to change about a) your job and b) your life?

2 1.4 Listen to an interview with a life coach, Nancy Bailey. Are these statements true (T) or false (F)?

What is coaching?

1 Life coaches help people to identify life issues that they want to change.

2 Our clients are mainly company executives.

3 We can help people with their career choices.

4 We usually meet clients for an hour every week.

5 The client has to be in the same country as the coach.

6 It takes about a year to get results from coaching.

3 Listen again and correct the false statements in exercise 2.

4 1.5 Listen to phone conversations with two of Nancy's clients. What life changes is she helping them with?

Joe

Sales Manager

Manages a team of 30 staff

Life issue:

_____

Kim

Assistant in an import-export firm

Life issue:

5 'Time stealers' are common things that waste time at work. Tell your partner two things you do that waste time at work. Make some suggestions to help each other stop wasting time.

6 Nancy sent Joe information on 'time stealers' to help him manage his time better. Read the text. With a partner make suggestions to help Joe manage his time.

TIME STEALERS

These are the most common things that waste time at work. Tick (✔) the top five which are the major obstacles to your own time management – your 'time stealers'.

1 Interruptions – telephone, email and visitors
2 Meetings
3 Tasks you should delegate
4 Procrastination* and indecision
5 Dealing with team members
6 Crisis management
7 Lack of* information or technical knowledge
8 Unclear communication, objectives and priorities
9 Lack of planning
10 Stress and fatigue
11 Inability to say 'No'
12 Desk management and personal disorganization

Fortunately, there are strategies you can use to manage your time, be more in control and reduce stress.

procrastination: delaying doing things you have to do lack of: when there isn't enough of something

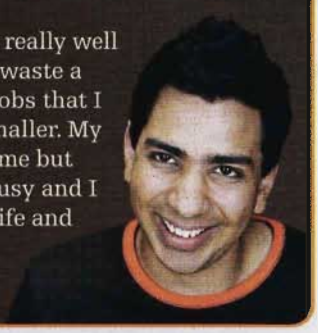
7 Work in pairs. Prepare a short talk for the rest of the class with strategies and suggestions to help people manage their time better.

Speaking: Change we need

8 Read these comments from two of Nancy's clients. What aspect of their lives do they want to change or plan?

Vikram

My catering business is doing really well and I'd like to expand it. But I waste a lot of time doing lots of little jobs that I did when the company was smaller. My business is very important to me but at the same time I'm always busy and I just want to see more of my wife and kids. I also have a very long commute to work.



Ruth

I work for an advertising agency as an admin. assistant. It's not very well-paid or interesting work. I left school at 18 and I don't have a degree. I'd like to get a better job but I'm not well-qualified. I really think I could be doing more creative work.

9 Look at the completed forms for Vikram and Ruth. Read the information and roleplay the telephone conversations between the client and the life coach.

Listening: Hong Kong Airport

1 Discuss these questions.

1 How often do you travel for work or holidays?

2 Where do you usually go?

3 What are your plans for your next holiday/business trip?

2 1.7 Listen to two travellers taking part in a passenger survey at Hong Kong Airport. What does the interviewer give to each traveller?

3 Read the interviewer's questions in the survey. Listen again and take notes to answer the questions.

	Traveller 1	Traveller 2
1 Where are you travelling to today?
2 What are you going to do there?
3 Where are you going to stay?
4 What are you going to do at the airport today?
5 Will you buy anything special for yourself? What will you buy?

Grammar: will and going to 4 Look at the sentences in the table from the first conversation and answer the questions.

Talking about the future

a I'm going to meet the sales and marketing managers.
b I'll probably check my email.
c Then, I'm going to charge my cellphone.
d I think I'll get a head and shoulder massage.

Which sentences are about:

1 firm intentions and plans that have already been made?

2 decisions that have just been made or are being made now?

>> For more information on the future, see page 166.

5 Look at the audio script of conversation 2 on page 143. How many times does the second passenger use will or going to? How certain does he sound about each plan or decision?

Speaking: Plans and intentions

6 Work in pairs. Look at the information for two more travellers that Hong Li interviews. Look back at the questions in exercise 3. What other questions could you ask?

Zhi Peng

Definite plans:
Holiday with wife in Vancouver for three weeks
Go to a family wedding there
Stay with daughter and son-in-law
Take ferry to Vancouver Island
Do Tai Chi in Stanley Park

Possibilities:
Try rafting
Play golf

What he plans to do at the airport:
Watch CNN in the TV lounge
Possibly visit the duty-free shops

Tyler

Definite plans:
Go to Thailand
Travel round South East Asia with friends
Spend a year there
Ride an elephant in Thailand
Learn to dive in Indonesia

Possibilities:
Learn some Thai and Indonesian
Go trekking in the jungle

What she plans to do at the airport:
Update her travel blog in the internet café
Possibly buy some good sunglasses

7 Work with a different partner. Roleplay the two interviews in exercise 6. Take it in turns to be Hong Li and the traveller.

8 Work in pairs. Look at these travel situations and decide what to do.

- You arrive at the check-in desk with ten kilos of excess baggage and no money to pay for it.
- Your flight is delayed until tomorrow morning. Your budget airline won't provide you with a hotel and you don't want to pay for accommodation yourself.
- You are in airport departures and someone has stolen your ticket, passport, wallet and mobile phone.
- You are stuck in a taxi in traffic getting to the airport and you're going to miss your flight home.
- You have won a competition. You have five minutes to fill a shopping basket with anything you want from the duty-free store.
- You are waiting at the carousel for your luggage and it doesn't appear. All the other passengers have their luggage.

9 Compare your plans with the rest of the class. Who has the best plan?

! Travel is most often used as a verb but can also be an uncountable noun. We don't say 'a travel'.

Where are you travelling to today? (verb)
Is business travel important for your job? (noun)

A trip is a short journey or a short period of time in a place.
And what is the purpose of your trip?

TALKING POINT
- What do you like/dislike about travelling?
- What was your most memorable trip?

2 Present continuous for future plans

Reading: Home exchange stories

1 Discuss these questions.

1 Have you ever rented a room or apartment? When? What was it like?

2 Have you ever rented a holiday home?

3 Have you ever thought about exchanging homes with someone else for a holiday in a different town or country?

4 Can you think of any advantages and disadvantages in exchanging homes with someone else?

2 Read two readers' stories about home exchange in the LA Times. Who has had more positive experiences?

My wife, Shannon, and I have done three home swaps*. As we don't have any children it is fairly easy to arrange. The first, in London, was not so good. The house was cold and uncomfortable and there wasn't much furniture. Because of this first experience, we always ask for lots of photos of the home interior. In future, we will also make sure we're in the center of town, or a short bus ride to the center. I really don't want to use a car, because I have to drive so much in Los Angeles.

Carl, Ventura

We have exchanged homes 15 times and it has always been wonderful. We always exchange cars as well, which has saved us quite a bit of money. Having a base* makes it possible to plan short trips.

We like exchanges with families that also have children. It's great to arrive and have books, toys, bicycles, snow gear, etc., to borrow. And we love not having to eat out all the time. It's fun to experience life in a different country.

Sandra, Indian Wells

swap: exchange base: main place to stay

3 Look at the readers' stories again. What advantages and disadvantages are mentioned?

4 Carl in Ventura reads Nicole's advert. Do you think Carl and his wife Shannon will like it? Give your reasons. What questions do you think the couple would ask Nicole and how would she reply?

Our home is located in Paris in the eleventh district – a perfect location to visit the city! We are planning a holiday in LA this spring. We are two adults and one child (three years old). The apartment is 70 sq m. It's on the seventh floor and there is a balcony with a great view of the neighbourhood. There are two bedrooms, a large living room, a shower room, and a well-equipped kitchen.

Nicole

Grammar: Present continuous for future plans

5 Look at Carl's email about his holiday arrangements. Complete the table and find examples in the email.

Hi Nicole

Guess what? It's all organized! Shannon and I are flying to London on May 23rd – it's cheaper than going direct to Paris and we want to see the city anyway. We're staying in a hotel in Piccadilly for three nights. We got a good deal through the airline.

Then we're taking the Eurostar to Paris. I got the train tickets online. So we're not arriving in Paris until about noon on May 26th and we're leaving on the morning of June 6th.

We'll probably take a few day trips from Paris. Is there anywhere you'd recommend? What time will you be home this evening? I'll phone you for some first-hand advice if you don't mind.

All the best

Carl

Future forms: Present continuous or will?

Reading: Unusual hotels

1 Look at these photos of hotels around the world. What do you think they were used for before they became hotels? Match the hotel to the description.

The 747 Jumbo Hostel, Sweden

Swedish businessman, Oscar Dios has converted a jumbo jet into an airport hostel. The newly opened Jumbo Hostel is only a ten-minute walk away from the check-in counters at Stockholm's Arlanda Airport. Ideal for travellers on a budget* who have an early flight and don't want to sleep at the airport, a room starts at 350 Swedish krona (€31.86), which is a lot less than hotel rooms outside major airports. Hotel staff wear flight attendant uniforms and all rooms are equipped with a flat screen TV and wi-fi. You can even get married on the wing of the plane! The only room that has its own bathroom is the honeymoon* suite situated in the cockpit.

on a budget: with not much money to spend honeymoon: holiday for a couple who have just got married

Propeller Island City Lodge hotel, Germany

This former prison in Berlin offers a jailhouse experience. It looks like a prison with barred windows and some rooms even have a hole in the wall as an escape route. But what kind of guests pay to have bars outside the windows of a three-star hotel? According to the hotel manager, guests appreciate modern rooms and usually have a sense of humour. You get a traditional prison breakfast (a coffee and some bread with strawberry jam) and can sleep in striped pyjamas for an extra €5. Bathroom facilities are not separate from the rest of the room and there are no double beds, but rooms have two characteristics that previous inhabitants didn't enjoy – a mini-bar and power shower! One night will only cost you €45.

2 Read the hotel listings and match the hotels to this information.

1 These hotels are the cheapest. _____ and _____
2 This one has a suite for recently married couples. _____
3 This one has bathroom facilities in the room which are not private. _____
4 This hotel is near a good restaurant. _____
5 This hotel has rooms with flat screen TVs. _____
6 These hotels offer guests something to wear. _____ and _____

3 Which hotel would/wouldn't you like to stay in? Why?

Molja Fyr lighthouse hotel, Norway

Molja Fyr is situated in a charming harbour. The interior of this 150-year-old lighthouse 'hotel' is completely round, only three metres in diameter, and it only has one bedroom upstairs and a bathroom downstairs. Room facilities include hairdryer, bathrobes, tea and coffee. The lighthouse hotel consists of just one room but full hotel facilities are available from the nearby Hotel Brosundet, including a concierge service, 24-hour room service and a superb seafood restaurant. (€315 p/nt)

Word focus: Compound nouns

4 Look at the information in the table about compound nouns.

Compound nouns

A compound noun is made up of two or more words. We can form compound nouns using different combinations:
noun + noun, e.g. businessman, airport, hairdryer
adjective + noun, e.g. Swedish krona, double bed

1 We sometimes write two words together, e.g. honey + moon = honeymoon, bath + robe = bathrobe, sea + food = seafood.

2 We sometimes use a hyphen, e.g. ten-minute walk, check-in, 24-hour room service, three-star hotel.

3 They can also appear as two separate words, e.g. hotel guest, room service, power shower.

>> For more information on compound nouns, see page 171.

5 Match the words in box A with those in box B to make compound nouns. Then find more compound nouns in the texts.

A bath tooth honey news hair lap light sea

B moon house top paper food robe brush dryer

6 Look at these combinations of nouns related to hotels. Underline the one that is not possible. Use a good dictionary to help you.

1	three-star / economics / budget / four-star	hotel
2	conference / spa / bed / coffee	facilities
3	walk-in / power / en suite / bath	shower
4	business / hotel / reception / restaurant	guest
5	air-conditioning / heat / entertainment / wi-fi	system
6	flat screen / cable / DVD / satellite	TV
7	honeymoon / executive / luxury / manager	suite
8	room / concierge / facility / laundry	service
9	double / single / three / family	room
10	queen-size / single / double / two	bed

Speaking: Guessing hotel facilities

7 Work in pairs. Write definitions for four compound nouns from exercise 6.
A: What do we call the service when you can send your clothes to be washed?
B: laundry service

8 Read your definitions to another pair and see if they can guess the compound.

9 Work in pairs.
a) Think of one compound noun connected to these places. Write definitions for them.

restaurant airport modern office shopping mall

b) Read your definitions to another pair. They should guess the compound noun.

TALKING POINT
- What's the most unusual place you have ever stayed in?
- What facilities do you expect to find in a modern city?

2 Communication strategies

Agreeing and disagreeing

Reading: Low-cost travel

1 Discuss these questions.

1 When was the last time you flew? Where did you go?

2 What did you think of the service?

3 Will you fly with this airline again? Why?/Why not?

2 Read these postings on a blog about low-cost air travel. Which extra charges do they mention?

3 Who do you agree with most? Why?

> ! Agree and disagree are verbs so we use do to form questions and negatives.
> I don't agree. Does anyone agree with me?

GUS'S TRAVEL TIPS

Low-cost airlines

I think low-cost airlines are not as cheap as they seem. I've just booked a flight to Vancouver. When you book with Fly High, you have to pay for checking in your luggage, with additional charges for sports/skiing gear, not to mention the food and drink on the flight. So, sorry, I just don't agree that these airlines are doing us a favour by seeming to be low-priced. What are they going to charge us for next? The flight attendants' uniforms?

POSTED BY GUS AT 12.13) COMMENTS

I agree with you about those additional charges, Gus. But I've never had any problems with Smooth Jets, except for the occasional delay. I think you'll find their flights aren't that expensive if you book in advance. And I think it's great that families with young kids can board first.

POSTED BY KERRY AT 12.19) COMMENTS

You've got a point there*, Gus. Budget airlines aren't that cheap. We're flying to Bucharest next month with Whoosh Air and the airline's charging me for checking in each bag and for boarding first – I'm travelling with my elderly mother. Then there's travel insurance, as well as the credit card charge. And another thing: the airports that low-cost airlines fly to are usually out of the way* and you end up paying for an expensive cab* ride to the hotel. I'm going to fly with a regular airline next vacation. Definitely. Does anyone else agree with me?

POSTED BY MO AT 12.43) COMMENTS

you've got a point there: you're right out of the way: area where there are few people cab: taxi

4 Look at these words related to flying. Which words are compound nouns? What do each group have in common?

1 baggage claim, lounge, departures _____

2 cabin crew, ground staff, flight attendant _____

3 board, take off, land _____

4 passport, boarding card, ID _____

5 suitcase, backpack, hold-all _____

6 delay, miss a flight, lost luggage _____

5 Add some more words to each group in exercise 4.

Listening: I don't think so

6 1.8 Listen to two friends at an airport. Who says what? Write B for Beatrice or K for Keith. More than one answer is possible.

1 Who says they are not going to get a good seat?
2 Who thinks you get what you pay for?
3 Who says the flights were cheap?
4 Who thinks they paid a lot of additional charges?
5 Who thinks airlines should provide a better service?
6 Who is going to get a sandwich?

7 The verbs agree and disagree are more common in written than spoken English. In spoken English we generally agree or disagree in different ways. Read the examples in the table and complete the sentence.

Agreeing and disagreeing
Agreeing Yes. Absolutely. That's right. That's true. Good point. Good idea.
Disagreeing Well ... maybe. But, is it really cheaper? There are all those extras we have to pay for.
We often use single words or short phrases when we are _____ .

8 1.9 Listen to two managers discussing ways to reduce their organization's flight costs. What do they disagree about?

9 Read the notes in the table on disagreeing. Try to remember the missing words from the conversation. Listen again and check your answers.

Disagreeing
People are often slow to say they disagree. They might: 1 hesitate and sound uncertain Well erm, _____ _____ sure. 2 ask challenging questions Yes, but _____ _____ it takes ten hours instead of three? 3 say they partly agree That's _____, _____ productivity is important, too. 4 suggest alternatives How _____ _____ a limit?
5 When the disagreement is clear, they generally state their opinions more directly and forcefully. I'm _____, but I think this rule could cost us more money _____ _____ _____ _____. Yes, but _____ _____ _____ _____ it won't always save us money. I _____ _____ _____ true.

Speaking: Hidden airline costs

10 Work in pairs. Read your situation and instructions below.

Student A:
You work for Smooth Jets, an airline that wants to reduce its costs to be more competitive. Look at the possible extra charges. Decide which five things you are going to charge for.

Student B:
You represent a consumer group. You have received complaints about Smooth Jets, a low-cost airline that is planning to introduce extra costs. Look at the possible extra charges. Decide which five charges they shouldn't charge for.

Smooth Jets
Proposed extra charges

1 checking in luggage
2 in-flight food and drink
3 changing the name of the passenger on the ticket
4 changing the dates of a flight
5 sports and musical equipment
6 use of the overhead locker
7 oxygen for those with medical conditions
8 speedy boarding (boarding first)
9 carbon emissions
10 in-flight magazine

11 Discuss your ideas with your partner. It is not necessary to reach an agreement. Use expressions for disagreeing from exercise 9.

12 How could the airline present these new charges without losing its customers?

Reminder

Grammar reference page 166

We use going to when a plan or intention has already been decided.

Are you going to come with me?

We use will, often with probably, to express decisions when there is no special plan.

I think I'll (probably) go sightseeing on Friday.

We use the present continuous to talk about plans and arrangements that have already been decided and organized.

We're leaving on 16 January.

We often show agreement with short words and phrases.

Yes, that's true.

Absolutely!

When we disagree, we're often hesitant at first and we provide explanations.

Erm, I'm not sure because it might cost a lot.

Listening: Change of plan

1 What do you know about Dubai in the UAE (United Arab Emirates)? Read the information and check your ideas.

Doing business in Dubai

Situated on the Persian Gulf, looking out at Iran, Iraq and Saudi Arabia, Dubai was little more than a desert village 20 years ago. But since then its trade barriers have gone, skyscrapers have risen out of the sand and it has become an international business hub*. Dubai is just three hours from India and six hours from the UK. Dubai's glamorous shopping malls, glorious beaches and towering buildings give it an unreal quality. Tourism and leisure are growing well and Dubai has a number of luxurious hotels, including the seven-star, Burj Al Arab hotel.

2 Fay and Martin are a husband and wife team. Fay is a travel writer and Martin is a professional photographer. Look at Fay's itinerary for their trip to Dubai and answer the questions.

1 When will they arrive at the Novotel hotel?
2 What is Fay going to do on Tuesday and Wednesday?
3 What does Martin plan to do on Tuesday and Wednesday?
4 What are they both going to do on Thursday?
5 How much free time do you think they will both have?

3 1.10 Listen to Fay and Martin talking about their trip. What has changed? Correct the itinerary.

4 Listen again. Why doesn't Martin want to go on the desert trip with Fay? Why doesn't he want to have dinner at the Burj Al Arab hotel?

5 Martin says, Well, all right then and I suppose so. But is he happy to agree? When do we use these expressions? With people you know very well or with people you don't know very well?

Dining etiquettes of the world

Cross-cultural understanding is important for today's global businessperson. A lack of cross-cultural awareness* can result in misunderstandings, which may offend others and have a negative impact on your business. One area of importance is the different dining etiquettes* of the world.

A _____ Do not begin eating until the host signals to do so. It is impolite to rest your elbows on the table. You should eat everything on your plate. Indicate you have finished by laying the knife and fork parallel across the right hand side of the plate.

B _____ An honoured guest starts eating first and sits at the centre of the table furthest from the door. Learn to use chopsticks – never point them, never pierce food with them and place them on the chopstick rest when breaking for a drink or a chat. It is polite to try a bit of everything. People usually prefer to talk quietly.

C _____ Meals are a social affair and people enjoy having loud conversations. The head of the family or honoured guest is served first but it is good etiquette* to insist on the most senior person being served first. If you go to a restaurant, the person who made the invitation must pay.

D _____ Traditionally, meals are eaten on the floor. Sitting with your legs crossed is normal behaviour*. Never sit with your feet stretched out. Guests are served specialities such as head, eyes, etc. Eat with your right hand only. Do not be afraid of making a mess. When you have finished, leave a little food on your plate. If you don't, it will be filled immediately. Asking for more food is a compliment.

awareness: knowledge or understanding of a subject or situation etiquette: formal rules for polite behaviour behaviour: things that a person does

6 Read the dining tips again and rewrite them so that they are true for your country.

Asking for more food is not very polite.

7 What other things are good manners when you are dining out in your country? For example, punctuality.

Grammar: base form with to or -ing form

8 Look at the information in the table. Complete the example sentences from the article.

the base form with to or -ing form

1 We use the base form without to after modal verbs.
You should _____ everything on your plate.

2 Some verbs are followed by the base form with to.
Learn _____ chopsticks.*

3 Some verbs are followed by the -ing form.
People enjoy _____ loud conversations.

4 A few verbs can be followed by the base form with to OR the -ing form.
Do not begin eating until the host signals to do so.
(or begin to eat)
An honoured guest starts _____ .
(or starts to eat)
People usually prefer _____ quietly.
(or prefer talking)

5 Use the -ing form when the verb is the subject of the sentence.
Sitting with your legs crossed is normal behaviour.*
_____ for more food is a compliment.

6 Use the -ing form after a preposition.
Indicate you have finished by _____ the knife and fork parallel.
Do not be afraid of _____ a mess.

7 Use the base form with to after It is + adjective.
It is impolite _____ your elbows on the table.*
It is polite _____ a bit of everything.*

>> For more information on the base form and the -ing form, see page 173.

9 Look at the information about dining etiquette in China. Complete the sentences using the correct form of the verbs in brackets. There may be more than one possibility.

Speaking: Copy your host

10 Work in groups of three. You work as cross-cultural consultants and are giving advice on dining etiquette to a group of international MBA students. Student A: Turn to File 1, page 132 for information about Russia. Student B: Turn to File 30, page 139 for information about Argentina. Student C: Turn to File 39, page 140 for information about India. Choose four of the most important tips to memorize and tell your partners.

11 What are the main differences when dining in someone's house in these countries? Make notes about the main points.

When in China

1 Take off your shoes before _____ (enter) someone's house.

2 Chinese people prefer _____ (entertain) at home.

3 If you don't want _____ (eat) delicacies like fish eyes, you should _____ (not serve) them to others.

4 It's important _____ (revolve) the serving tray to other people around the table.

5 _____ (eat) the last piece of food from the serving tray is considered _____ (be) impolite.

6 You can _____ (show) your appreciation of the meal by _____ (knock) on the table.

7 Insist on _____ (pay) for the meal, although your host will _____ (refuse) your offer.

8 Next time you meet your host, it is polite _____ (offer) a meal of a similar quality.

TALKING POINT

- Describe the last time you had a formal lunch or dinner at someone's house.
- When was the last time you had a meal with people from work? Who was it with, where and why? What did you eat? Who paid the bill?

3 Food and entertaining

Listening: What the locals eat

1 Do you like trying new dishes when you travel? What is the most unusual dish you have ever eaten?

2 1.13 An Australian couple, Richie and Barbara, are on holiday in the Philippines. Listen to their conversation and complete the travel blog.

Balut are common in the Philippines, Cambodia and Vietnam. They are a popular [1]_____ typically sold by [2]_____ _____ . 6	steamed / stir fried / boiled / roasted	f	salad
7	bottled / tap / still / sparkling	g	meat
8	low-fat / chocolate / homemade / strawberry	h	fish

10 Think of two other combinations for each of the items (a–h) in exercise 9.

11 Discuss these questions.

1 What is your favourite meat dish, fish dish, snack, ice cream, fruit and vegetable?

2 What food and dishes do you never eat?

3 What starter, main course and dessert would you usually order in a restaurant?

4 What do you usually drink with your meals?

Speaking: I'd recommend ...

12 Work in pairs. Prepare to act out a conversation. Student A: You are the host. Student B: You are the guest. Read the information below and roleplay the situation. Then change roles.

Student A:

Student B is an important business client and you are taking him/her to lunch.

- Decide which restaurant you are taking him/her to.
- What is special about the restaurant? e.g. the food, the price, the location, the service, the atmosphere? Mention this to your guest.
- What is on the menu? Write down three or four typical starters, main courses and desserts from your country/region.
- Show your guest the menu and be prepared to describe and recommend dishes.

Student B:

You are a very important client of Student A, and he/she is taking you to lunch.

- Respond to information Student A gives you about the restaurant and ask questions about it.
- You have never seen any of the dishes on the menu before. Ask lots of questions about the food, e.g. How's it cooked?
- Tell Student A about either a) your numerous food allergies or b) your special diet.
- Ask if you can have a side order that isn't on the menu.

TALKING POINT

- How often do you entertain guests at home? In a restaurant?
- Which factors are the most important for you when choosing a restaurant?

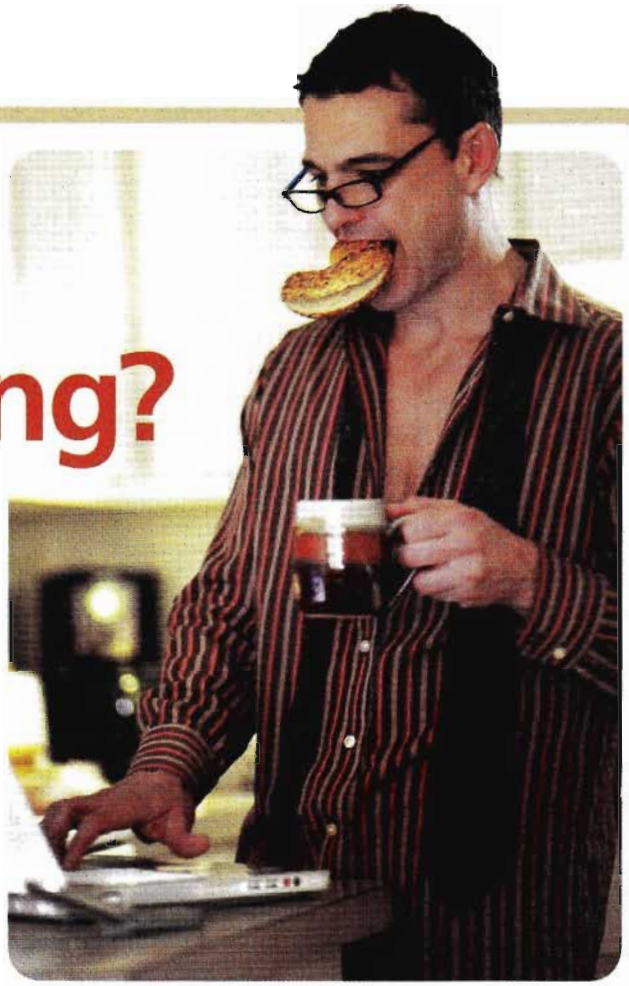
Reading: Food quiz

1 In three minutes, write down everything you have eaten and drunk in the last 24 hours. Compare your lists. What is healthy about your diets? And what is unhealthy?

2 Are you making healthy food choices? Do the food quiz with a partner. Then turn to File 4 on page 132 to check your answers.

3 Which information surprised you most in the quiz?

What is Healthy Eating?



We all know we should eat lots of fruit and vegetables, but nutritionists say consumers often don't have enough information about the fat, sugar and salt levels in food to make healthy choices.

So, what do you know about healthy eating?

1 Which best describes your attitude to breakfast?

- a I usually take the time to have a good breakfast.
- b I skip it. I'm not hungry in the mornings.

- d I don't have enough time for breakfast most days.

2 Which of the following facts about sugar are true?

- a There are two types of sugar – those found naturally in fruit and milk (unprocessed) and artificial or processed sugars that are added to food.
- b There are about nine teaspoons of sugar in a can of fizzy drink, such as cola.
- c Sugar contains fewer calories than other carbohydrates and provides essential nutrients.
- d The body needs a little added sugar – it's essential to a healthy diet.

3 You are having a busy day at work. Which of the following is true for you?

- a I sometimes forget to have lunch.
- b I often grab a sandwich and have a quick lunch break.
- c I'm always multi-tasking, so eating and working is easy!
- d I usually make time for a good meal.

4 Eating too much saturated fat is believed to increase 'bad' cholesterol, which is a risk factor for heart disease. How many grams of saturated fat are there in a medium cheese pizza?

a 6–8 b 10–12 c 15–22

5 Which of these foods are also high in saturated fat?

- a butter and margarine
- b milk and yoghurt
- c meat and meat products
- d biscuits, crisps and cakes
- e nuts
- f fish
- g cheese

6 How would you describe your salt consumption?

- a I never add salt in cooking or at the table.
- b I add a bit of salt to food I'm cooking.
- c I add lots of salt to my food, even before I taste it.

7 Salt is essential for our health, but experts say too much salt can lead to high blood pressure and heart problems. How much salt should an adult eat per day?

- a 3g (half a teaspoon)
- b 6g (a teaspoon)
- c 12g (two teaspoons)

Grammar: Quantifiers

4 Look at the information in the table. Choose the correct alternative to complete the rules.

Quantifiers

1 We use much with countable / uncountable nouns and we use many with countable / uncountable plural nouns, in negative sentences and in questions.

2 We use a lot of and lots of with countable and uncountable nouns to talk about large / small quantities. We use a lot when there is no noun.

3 We use a little with uncountable / countable nouns and a few with uncountable / countable nouns. A little and a few mean a small quantity.

4 We use (very) little and (very) few to suggest that there is not as much, or many, of something as we would like.

5 We use too, too many and too much when we say there is more / less of something than we need or want. We use (not) enough when we say there is more / less than we need or want.

>> For more information on quantifiers, see page 171.

5 Choose the correct option to complete these sentences.

1 There isn't much / many sugar in my diet.
2 How many / much grams of saturated fat are there in this?
3 I eat a lot of / much fruit and vegetables.
4 More than 20g of fat per 100g is lots / a lot / a lot of.
5 I often add a few / a little sugar to yoghurt.
6 He went for a walk to burn a little / a few calories.
7 Very little / Very few people know where saturated fat comes from in their diet.
8 There is very few / very little information on food labels.
9 Most people eat too many / too much salt.
10 I think there are too much / too many additives in food.
11 Fizzy drinks are too / not enough sugary for me.
12 Consumers don't have too much / enough nutritional information.

6 Make six questions using words and phrases from three or four columns in the table. Then work with another student. Take turns to ask and answer your questions.

How much chocolate do you eat?

How	much	nutritional information	do you eat?
Do you eat	many	chocolate	do you drink?
Do you drink	a lot of	cakes and biscuits	varied enough?
Is your diet	a lot	water	in your diet?
Is there	too much	fruit juice	on food labels?
	too many	takeaway and ready meals
	enough	variety
	very little	fruit and vegetables

Speaking: It's all too much

7 Work in pairs. What would you say in each of these situations?

1 Your new assistant has reserved a meeting room and ordered lunch for you and two colleagues. She has booked the boardroom which seats 30 people, ordered 30 sandwiches and two small bottles of water. Tell her what the problems are and what you want her to do.

2 You're having a meal in a restaurant with a friend. The soup is cold, the bottled water is warm, the portions are small, the food is expensive and there's a 20% service charge. What do you say to each other? What do you say to the waiter?

3 Your teenage brother/son loves pizza and pasta and never eats any fruit or vegetables. He also plays video games for hours but never does any exercise.

TALKING POINT

- How has the diet in your country/region changed? What do people eat and drink more or less of?
- How can you get children and teenagers to eat fewer unhealthy snacks?

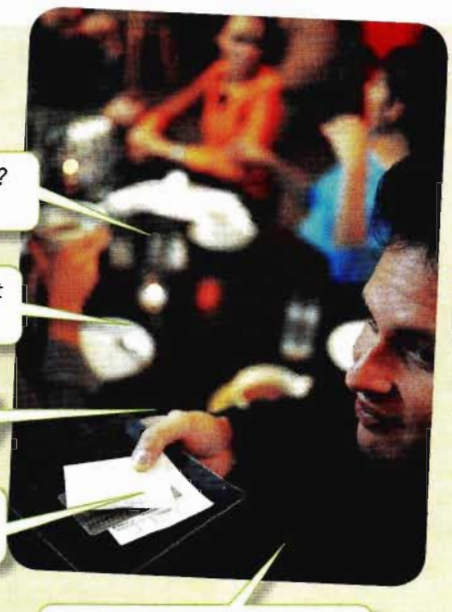
3 Communication strategies Saying 'no'

Speaking: Hosts and guests

1 When is it polite to argue with people? Think of some situations where it is polite to say 'no' and disagree with other people.

2 Look at the man and the woman in the photos. Each one is having a conversation with another person. Read their half of the conversation. Which person is a host and which is a guest? What are they arguing about?

Conversation 1



A: Is that the check? Let me get that.

A: No, no. Why don't we split it?

A: Are you sure?

A: Well, that's very kind of you.

A: Well, thank you very much. It was a terrific meal.

Conversation 2

A: Have some more paella.

A: Some more shrimps then?

A: You don't need to lose weight!

A: Just a few more?

A: Good, and a little more paella?

3 What would you say to the host and guest in exercise 2 if you were talking to them? Use these phrases to create the two complete conversations.

1 I do!
2 It's our pleasure.
3 No really, I'm full. I'm trying to diet.
4 I'm glad you enjoyed it. Don't forget your doggy bag.
5 No really. I'll have to pass on that, but thank you.
6 No, no I insist. You're our guest.
7 No, no. It was terrific, but I couldn't manage any more.
8 Oh no. This is on me.
9 Well … maybe just a few then.
10 Yes, the company's paying.

4 1.16 Listen to the two complete conversations and check your answers.

5 What qualities does a perfect host have? What qualities does a perfect guest have?

6 Look at some things that English speakers often do when they turn down invitations. Then label the different parts of the refusal using items 1–6 from the table.

Saying 'no'

1 Give an excuse
2 Apologize
3 Hesitate
4 Suggest an alternative
5 Say something positive
6 Say thank you

3

Oh … It sounds great. I'm so sorry, but I have to study.
Thanks for thinking of me. Perhaps we can meet up another time?

Listening: An invitation

7 When was the last time you said 'no' to an invitation? What was the event and why did you turn it down?

8 1.17 Listen to one half of a telephone conversation. What's the event and why can't Gabriella go?

9 Look at what Gabriella said. What do you think Sandy said?

Hello. ... Sandy! Great to hear from you. How are you? ... Not too bad. How's Peter? ... Oh, nothing exciting. I've got some exams coming up so I'm studying all weekend. ... Oh ... I don't think I can. Sunday, you say? ... It sounds great, but I have two exams the next day – Marketing and Accounting. ... I'm really sorry, but I have to study. ... Thanks for thinking of me. Look, when my exams are over, perhaps you and Peter can come over to my place for a meal? ... OK, choose a restaurant you want to go to and it'll be my treat. ... No, no, I insist. It'll be your birthday present. ... OK, I will. And have a lovely birthday on Sunday. ... Bye.

10 Now listen to the complete conversation. Were your answers similar?

11 Try to remember the missing words from the conversation. Then listen again and check your answers.

1 Listen, what [1]_____ _____ _____ this Sunday?

2 Can you [2]_____ _____ _____ ? It's my birthday and I'm [3]_____ a party.

3 Oh, what a [4]_____ !

4 It's OK, I [5]_____ .

5 [6]_____ be nice. Or [7]_____ _____ all go out to a restaurant together.

6 Oh no. We'll pay for [8]_____ .

7 No, you [9]_____ _____ _____ do that. Let's talk about it later.

12 Look back at what Gabriella says in exercise 9 and underline the different ways she uses to say 'no'.

13 Look at the audio script on page 146. Are there any things people might say differently in your culture?

Speaking: Turning someone down

14 Work in pairs. Think of different ways to say 'no' in these situations. Try to think of good excuses.

1 Have you ever tried sheep's brains/insects/fish eyes? Do try some. They're a delicacy.

2 We're going jogging at six o'clock tomorrow morning. Would you like to join us?

3 Terminator 10 is playing at the Roxy Cinema. Do you want to come and see it?

4 I'm going to the library to study. Would you like to come?

5 We need to clean out the garage. Would you like to help?

15 Work in pairs. What could hosts and guests say in these situations?

1 A classmate invites you to a late-night party this Friday. You have to work on Saturday.

2 Your English teacher invites all the class to see a Shakespeare play. It will last about three and a half hours.

3 Your Polish host offers you tripe soup in a restaurant.

4 Your cousin, who lives in Canada, invites you to visit him this winter. He says he'll pay for the flight. The ticket is expensive and it's very cold in Toronto in winter.

5 Your new boss invites all the people in your department for a meal after work on Tuesday.

6 Your supplier offers you two free flights to Rome but it is company policy not to accept expensive gifts.

16 Work in pairs. Act out situations 1–3. Student A: Turn down the offer or invitation. Student B: Insist a little. Then change roles and act out situations 4–6.

Grammar reference page 171

There are many ways of turning down an invitation politely. You can apologize, give an excuse or suggest an alternative.

Oh, I'm so sorry but we're going to be on holiday then.
No, really. It was delicious but I'm on a diet.

We use many, a few, few and too many with countable nouns.
How many visitors are coming?
There are a few questions I want to ask.

We use much, a little, little and too much with uncountable nouns.
I don't have much information about their visit.
We have a little time to visit the factory before lunch.

Speaking: Gift-giving

1 When was the last time you gave or received a gift? What was it and who was it to or from?

2 Which of these gifts would you prefer to accept from a business contact? Why?

- a key ring
- local handicrafts (e.g. a wooden box)
- a book
- the company calendar
- a bouquet of flowers
- a potted plant
- a packet of tea/coffee
- quality chocolates
- a pen with the company logo
- tickets for a cultural event

3 What kinds of gifts are popular in your company and country? What taboos are there?

You greet a group of international visitors at the airport. Act out the situation.

8
In the corridor, you meet the Marketing Manager. Introduce him/her to the visitors.

9
One of the visitors asks where the nearest restroom is. Give her the wrong directions. Miss a turn.

10
You attend some presentations. Offer the best seat to the visiting director. When he turns it down, insist. Act out the situation.

FINISH

18
At the airport, you say goodbye to the visitors and exchange small gifts. What do you give? Offer the gifts and when they refuse, insist.

17
At the end of their visit, you take the guests to the airport. You give them gifts of pen knives. Go back two spaces.

Board game: Entertaining

4 Work in pairs. Discuss these questions.

1 Do you ever have important visitors to your company or department? Who are they? How often do they visit and why?

2 When was the last time you were a visitor? Where did you go and why?

3 What kinds of things can sometimes go wrong with visits?

5 Play this game in pairs. An important group of international visitors come to your company/organization.

Rules

1 Toss a coin to move. Heads, move one square, tails move two.

2 Follow the instructions on each square. Answer the question or act out the conversations.

3 If you land on a square someone landed on before, move on to the next new square.

4 The first person to finish is the winner.

2
While having a coffee, you chat to your guests. Your guest asks you about the food in your country.

3
You're presenting the programme for the visit. Some of the visitors ask if they can change the order of some of the items on the programme. Act out the situation.

4
After the morning meeting you take the visitors to lunch. You give them a brief summary of the kind of food on the menu and recommend one of the dishes.

5
You suggest eating out this evening but one of the guests says 'no' and gives an excuse. What does he/she say? The thing is ...

6
One of the visitors comes up to you and tells you that one of the members of the group has his 50th birthday that week. You discuss what gift would be appropriate and how to celebrate the event.

7
You offer the visitors a tour of the company. Act out the situation.

11
Arrange a time and a place to meet your visitors before dinner this evening. One of the guests can't come to the pre-dinner venue. Act out the situation.

12
In the restaurant that evening, a visitor who does not eat meat asks you to recommend some regional dishes. What do you suggest?

13
Complete these questions to ask your guests.
_____ bottles of water would you like?
Would you like _____ bread with your meal?

14
The waiter takes your order. What do you order for everyone as a starter and for the main course? (There is one vegetarian and one diabetic.)

15
After the main course, you recommend a typical dessert from your country. One of the guests doesn't want it. What does he say?

16
Your visitors invite you to go sightseeing the next day but you have a lot of work. What do you say?

Writing: A thank-you note

6 You have recently returned from an overseas visit to another company. Write an email thanking your hosts for organizing your visit and for the gifts you received. Say something nice about the food in their country.

Reading: Mental abilities

1 How often do you do puzzles? What type of puzzles do you like?

2 Look at this puzzle. You have to make words that contain the letter N. How many words can you find in three minutes?

3 Did you enjoy the puzzle? Why?/Why not? Do you think puzzles like this are good exercise for your brain?

4 Read the article about brain power. Find six ways to improve your mental abilities.

5 What do you think is the best advice in the article?

6 Find words in the article that mean the following.

1 increase or improve something (paragraph 3)

2 make someone do something they don't want to do (paragraphs 3 and 4)

3 something that tests skills and abilities in an interesting way (paragraph 4)

4 make someone use all their abilities or intelligence (paragraph 5)

5 how well a person or thing does a particular activity (paragraph 5)

Easy ways to improve your brain power

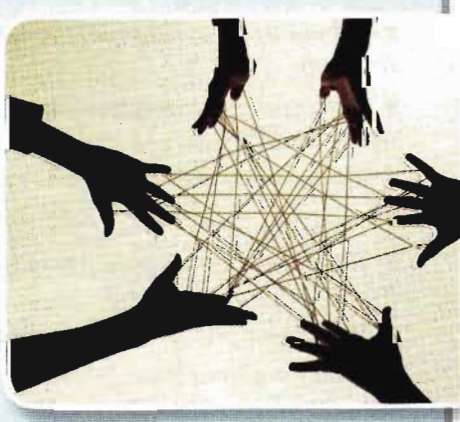
I can remember the name of my first teacher but I can't remember what I did yesterday. I was able to learn things a lot faster when I was a child. Are you able to remember things easily? Could you learn things quicker when you were younger?

What can we do to improve our memories? Google 'improve brain power' and you'll find all sorts of tips on the subject. Most of them involve physical exercise, balanced nutrition and complex mental exercises. It would be cool* to incorporate all these tips, but it is hard work.

Fortunately, for the lazy people like me there are easier things to boost the way the brain functions. By changing the side of your mouse pad you force yourself to use your non-dominant hand. This will stimulate the neural connections between the right and left hemispheres in your brain. Ideally, you want to do as many activities as possible with your non-dominant hand.

Force yourself to remember things. You can stimulate the brain just like your muscles and the more you exercise it, the stronger it will get. For example, last year I couldn't remember my mobile phone number. Every morning for a month I forced myself to write down the number from memory. Now I am able to memorize phone numbers very easily. Remembering names, memorizing phone numbers and not writing shopping lists is a great challenge for the brain.

By playing games that involve some thinking you will be able to keep your brain in shape. Activities as simple as sudoku or crosswords stretch the thinking process and soon have an impact on your brain's performance. Regularity is the key here, so try to make these games or exercises part of your routine.



cool: great, very good

Grammar: can, could and be able to 7 Read the information in the table. Find all the examples of can, could and be able to in the article.

can, could* and *be able to

2 What other subject would you like to learn online?

Writing: Asking about a new course

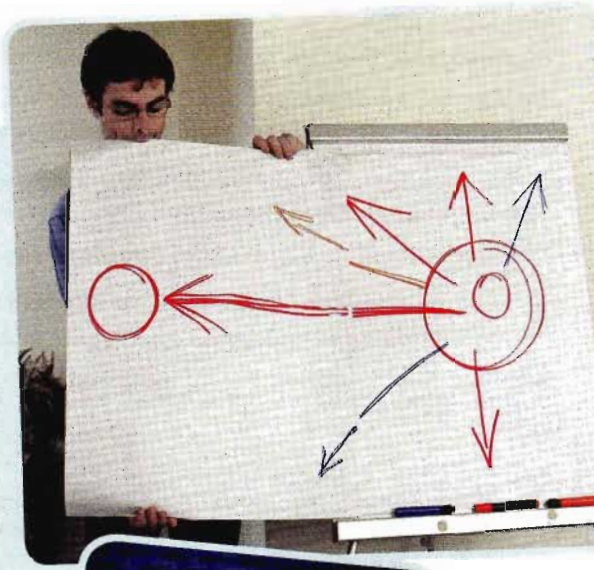
9 You see a website advertising an English course by e-learning. There are two types of course available: a three-year course and a six-month intensive. Write an email to the website stating your situation and asking for more information to find out which course is suitable for you.

TALKING POINT

- What new skill would you like to learn?
- What method of learning do you prefer for your chosen skill/subject?

Reading: Improvisation skills

1 Improvisation is doing things without preparing first. Are you a planner or an improviser? Do this quiz with a partner. Then turn to File 5 on page 132 and find out.



1 You're cooking a meal with a friend. Which one of these things are you most likely to say?

a 'Could we follow the recipe exactly?'
b 'Why don't we make things up as we go along?'
c 'What we could do is change a couple of ingredients.'

2 There's no shower cap in the hotel you're staying in and your husband/wife doesn't want to get their hair wet. What do you say?

a 'Don't have a shower then.'
b 'What if we use a plastic bag just for the top of your head?'
c 'Let's call room service and find out if they have one.'

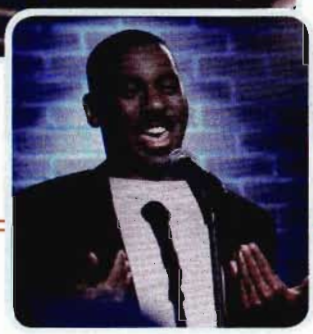
3 You've driven half way to the campsite when you realize you've forgotten to pack the camping chairs. What do you say?

a 'Oh, no. We'll have to go back home and get them.'
b 'Oh, it doesn't matter. I'll work something out*.'
c 'Let's wait and see – maybe there's a camping shop on the way.'

4 Which is closest to your philosophy of life?

a 'It's always best to plan, plan, plan.'
b 'I like to adapt: life is full of surprises.'
c 'I try to be organized but you've got to be flexible sometimes.'

work something out: think of a solution to a problem



2 Discuss these questions.

1 What kinds of people often improvise?

2 People often have to improvise because of unexpected events. Do you have to improvise much in your job? How?

3 Is improvisation a natural skill or is it something people can learn? Why? Read the article and find out if the writer agrees with you.

The skill of improvisation

Organizations need their employees to look ahead and plan for the future. They also need them to improvise when the unexpected happens and adapt to new situations. Improvisation isn't just a natural talent. It's something people can learn, and more and more organizations are employing improvisation experts to help them train their staff. So who are these experts? Surprisingly, the new company trainers are comedians.

Improvised comedy is one of the most risky forms of comedy but also one of the most fun. There are no scripts, so nobody knows their words in advance, and there are no rehearsals*, so nobody practises first. The audience provides the ideas and the comedians make things up* on the spot. Many comedians are now teaching company executives and employees the skills they had to learn.

A key skill they teach is how to say 'Yes ..., and ...'. Many people like to stick to* their own ideas and they resist new ones. So when they hear another person's suggestion, they automatically want to raise objections. The first thing you have to learn when you're improvising is to think 'That's a good idea'. So you can't say, 'Yes, but...'. You have to say 'Sounds great to me' instead.

'Yes ..., and ...' is a powerful technique with two parts. The first part is the 'yes' which means 'I'll go along with* that'. The second part is the 'and' which means you have to build on the idea. So instead of resisting the idea you add to it. It's a great way to develop creativity. Organizations have found it's a powerful way to build teams and encourage employees to take risks in the workplace, too.

rehearsal: a time when actors prepare for a public performance make up: invent things stick to: stay fixed or attached to go along with: agree to someone's ideas

4 Discuss these questions.

1 Do you know anyone who often resists new ideas? Think of examples.

2 Do you know anyone who's good at improvising and coming up with new ideas? Think of examples.

3 Do you think training in the 'Yes ..., and ...' technique sounds useful? Why?/Why not?

5 Find four expressions in the article in exercise 3 that you could say if you like an idea. Then find one expression you can say if you don't.

6 Work in pairs. Experiment with the 'Yes ..., and ...' technique. Use the phrases in the box to make suggestions about these ideas.

Learning to ride a motorbike
Taking classes in Latin
Buying everyone in the office a mobile phone
Driving across Australia on your next summer holiday

Building on ideas

What if we _____?	Yes, I'll go along with that and ...
Could we _____?	Great idea! And we could ...
Let's _____?	Sounds good to me. And ...
Why don't we _____?	Fantastic! And what we could do is ...

1 First have a 'Yes, but ...' conversation where you don't build on one another's ideas. Try to resist your partner's ideas and raise objections.

2 Then have a 'Yes ..., and ...' conversation. Use the responses in the box and add to your partner's ideas.

7 Compare the conversations you had with 'Yes, but ...' and 'Yes ..., and ...'.

1 Which conversation generated the most ideas?

2 Which one was easier? Why?

3 What other expressions did you use to resist ideas?

4 Some people say 'Yes ..., and ...' is a good way of thinking because it opens your mind. Do you agree? Why?/Why not?

Speaking: Improvising and organizing

8 Work in pairs or groups. Read about the situation and brainstorm some ideas. When you disagree with each other's ideas, you can use 'Yes, but ...' But also try to use the 'Yes ..., and ...' technique to build on ideas.

The head of marketing in your organization is visiting your offices in four weeks' time.

During her visit you want to:

- introduce her to all the team
- give a presentation about your department's work
- arrange a special fun event which will show off your team's creative talents, e.g. a talent show, concert, or sports day

The members of the team each have special skills and talents. Look at File 10, page 134 and choose one of the roles.

The head of marketing is visiting company offices around the world. There is a prize for the most creative team!

9 When you have finished, compare your ideas with your group, or the rest of the class.

1 Who thought of the most original and creative event?

2 Who had the best organizational skills?

3 Who was able to make the most of all the team's personal skills?

10 Congratulations! Your team won! Turn to File 43, page 141 and look at the information.

Reminder

Grammar reference pages 167 and 172

When we talk about skills and abilities we use can/could but be able to as the base form.
I'd like to be able to give good presentations.
I can't/won't be able to do a course on Saturdays.

We use comparatives and superlatives to compare ideas.
This course will be more interesting than that one.
It's the best course for me.

Some people say, 'Yes ..., and ...' because it helps people to build on ideas.
We can use these expressions when responding to people's ideas.
Yes, I'll go along with that, and ...
Great idea! And what you could do is ...
Sounds good to me.

Listening: Staff training needs

1 Think of two or three training courses you've attended. What were they about? What was good about them?

2 1.20 Look at the photos of three employees from a&k. Listen to them talking to the Training Manager, Oskar. What are their training needs?

3 Look at the brochure for the training company Total Training Solutions. Which course(s) do you think Karen, Ricardo and Nadia could do? Why?

a&k is a Swedish company based in Stockholm that manufactures electronic cards and high-tech security systems for banks, financial institutions and other leading companies worldwide.

1 Karen Barnes,
Research Assistant, 26

2 Ricardo Sanchez,
Computer Technician, 30

3 Nadia Hudak,
Product Manager, 46

TOTAL TRAINING SOLUTIONS

TTS has developed a series of one-day or two-day courses using theoretical knowledge and modern psychology. Training is in groups or one-on-one.*

Assertiveness

Learn to communicate your preferences while taking into consideration other people's needs. Delegates practise how to express their own needs in an honest, direct and positive way and build their self-confidence.

Presentations Across Cultures

Our cross-cultural course on presentation skills assists managers, academics and salespeople to improve their awareness of intercultural differences. The course provides analysis of presentation styles and looks at how people deliver and understand presentations internationally. Learn how to adapt your presentation in areas such as: content, using your voice, body language and maximizing impact.

Advocacy and Mediation

In these advocacy training sessions, you learn the art of effective persuasion. We teach you techniques that lead to positive results quickly and easily. This two-day seminar provides a systematic approach for anyone who has to persuade others: directors, managers, salespeople and consultants.

Ex-pat Relocation

How can we reduce the impact of culture shock for people who are going to be relocated*? Our training provides an introduction to the country and gives you an understanding of the culture's values, customs and etiquette in work and social life. We give tips on working with international colleagues and how to deal with cultural differences. Courses are given by cross-cultural specialists with knowledge of working in the target country. Additional language classes can also be provided.

Playing Golf with NLP

Reduce negative self-talk and create positive game plans. Using fast, effective NLP (Neuro-linguistic Programming) techniques, you will learn to stay in control and improve your performance when playing golf even in the most challenging games.

Call us to discuss your specific requirements*. Courses run from Monday to Saturday. One-day courses, €349 + VAT; two-day courses, €549+ VAT per person.

knowledge: information, skills and understanding gained through learning and experience relocate: move to a different place requirements: something that someone needs

4 1.21 Listen to Karen talking to the Training Manager, Oskar. Which course(s) would she like to do and why? What do they agree to do?

5 Look at Oskar's email to Karen. What has happened?

Subject: a&k Meeting and Training Course

Dear Karen

Congratulations on your recent promotion! I hear you have been asked to attend the annual a&k meeting in Copenhagen next month and present our latest electronic card technology. Let me know if you need any help with this.

I am also writing to confirm that the company has agreed to pay for one of your training courses, although you will attend two. Please let me know if you have any questions.

Best wishes

Oskar

a&k

6 Work in pairs. Student A: Look at your information below. Student B: Turn to File 6, page 132. Roleplay the situation.

Student A:

You are Karen. You think a&k should pay for both of your courses now that you have been promoted. Persuade your training manager that your point of view is right.

Make some notes before you begin. Make sure you mention the benefits to the company of doing both courses.

7 Would you be interested in doing any of these courses? Why?/Why not?

Speaking: Persuading the boss

8 Work in pairs. Student A: Look at the information below. Student B: Look at the information in File 11, page 134. Act out the situation. Then change roles.

Student A:

You are an employee at a&k. Choose the most suitable course(s) for you from the TTS brochure and negotiate with your training manager. The company will pay for one course but maybe you can persuade them to let you do some more. Consider these points before you begin.

1 Your motivation

2 Benefits of the training to you and the company

3 Cost, e.g. How many courses can you do? Do you have to pay for part of the cost yourself? (You are prepared to pay for up to 20% of the costs but it depends on the course. Do not tell this to your manager.)

4 Length and time, e.g. Will you be able to attend in company time? It is difficult for you to make up lost time in the office/factory because you do shift work and have family commitments.

5 Your attendance – You sometimes work in the evening and at weekends so this will affect your attendance.

Reading: Talented people

1 Look at the photos of these people. Who are they and what do you know about them?

2 Read the three profiles quickly and match them to the photos.

3 These texts were written in 2009. What changes to the lives of these people do you know about since that year?

PROFILE A

Born in Mallorca, this sportsman has taken the tennis world by storm in recent years. In 2001 he turned professional at the age of 15. His coach is his uncle. Like Björn Borg, he has won four consecutive singles titles in the French Open. In 2008 the Spanish champion won four titles including the French Open, the US Open, Wimbledon and a gold medal in the Olympic Games. He won the Australian Open for the first time in 2009. He is the first male tennis player to hold Grand Slam* singles titles on three different surfaces at the same time. He has been especially successful on clay* courts, which is why he is known as the King of Clay.

Grand Slam: important sports event in a particular sport clay: a type of red earth

Profile B

Born in 1969, she is one of the most talented performers on cinema screens today. She has played diverse roles such as Elizabeth I in Elizabeth, the elf queen in The Lord of the Rings trilogy and Bob Dylan in the film I'm Not There. She has starred alongside famous actors such as Dame Judi Dench, Brad Pitt and George Clooney. She has won several acting awards*. In 2006 she won an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress in Martin Scorsese's The Aviator. But she has not received an Oscar for Best Actress yet. Her husband is playwright Andrew Upton and they have been artistic directors of the Sydney Theatre Company since 2008.

award: prize or money given to reward someone for something they have done

PROFILE C

This writer was born in Kyoto in 1949. Both his parents taught Japanese literature. Since childhood, Western culture has influenced him, particularly music and literature. He ran a jazz club in Tokyo before he became an author at the age of 30. His best known novels include Norwegian Wood, The Wind-up Bird Chronicle, and the international bestseller, Kafka on the Shore, for which he received the Franz Kafka Prize in 2006. In addition to writing books, he enjoys running. He is a skilful translator of English works and has translated his own novels into English. There are translations of his work in 34 languages.

4 Read the profiles again and answer these questions. There is sometimes more than one possible answer.

1 Who has won an award?
2 Who won four titles in the same year?
3 Who likes doing sport?
4 Who has had two jobs?
5 Who started working in their profession in his/her thirties?
6 Who has relatives who work in a similar field?

5 Which of these talented personalities would you most like to meet? Why? What would you like to talk about with him/her?

6 Find five words in profile A related to sports; five words in profile B related to films and five words in profile C related to books.

Grammar: Present perfect and past simple

7 When do we use the past simple and present perfect tenses? Look at the table, choose the correct options and complete the examples.

Present perfect and past simple

1 We use the present perfect/past simple to talk about finished actions and events in the past. We can give a definite time when the events happened.

Haruki Murakami _____ (become) an author at the age of 30.

2 We use the present perfect/past simple to talk about life experiences in an indefinite time in the past.

Cate Blanchett _____ (not/receive) an Oscar for Best Actress yet.

3 We use the present perfect/past simple to talk about an action or situation that started in the past and which is still continuing now.

They _____ (be) artistic directors of the Sydney Theatre Company since 2008.

4 We use the present perfect/past simple to talk about present results of past actions and to announce news.

Rafael Nadal _____ (just/win) the match.

>> For more information on the present perfect and the past simple, see pages 161 and 163.

8 How many more examples of the present perfect can you find in the texts? Why did the writer use the present perfect and not the past?

! We use for with time periods and we use since to refer to the start of an event or situation.

They have been artistic directors since 2008.

He's been a writer for over thirty years.

When we speak about 'unfinished time', we often use the adverbs already and yet. Already is used to say something has happened sooner than expected.

He has already won four consecutive singles titles.

Not yet is used when something you expected to happen hasn't happened.

She hasn't received an Oscar yet.

9 Do we use for or since with these time expressions?

many years 2007 May ages he was 15 two minutes 15 years a long time months last Monday

10 Look at these sentences. What is the difference in meaning?

1 a She has already starred with Dame Judi Dench.
  b She hasn't starred with Dame Judi Dench yet.
2 a He hasn't won the Australian Open yet.
  b He has already won the Australian Open.

11 Which sentence in exercise 10 is true for the people in the texts? Using yet and already, make more sentences about the people in the texts.

12 Work in pairs. Look at some more information about one of the three people. Student A: Turn to File 2, page 132. Student B: Turn to File 13, page 134. Write questions in the present perfect or past simple to complete your information. Ask your partner the questions.

Speaking: 'A' list

13 Who are the most talented people in your country? Make an 'A' list and add a new category of your own. Write one or two sentences about each of them. Compare with your partner.

1 Best sports personality:

2 Best actor/actress:

3 Best author:

4 Best musician/singer:

5 Category(ies) of your choice:

14 Compare your 'A' lists with another pair and explain your choices. If all the people are from the same country, vote for the most talented.

TALKING POINT

- Who do you think is the most talented personality of your generation? Why?
- Why is it too late to start in some professions at the age of 30?

Reading: Career change

1 How did you become interested in your job or field of work?

2 What are some of the similarities and differences between the lives of a photojournalist and an investment banker? Compare your ideas and then read the article.

Bleasdale swapped his banking job for a camera

Banker-turned-photojournalist

As an investment banker, Marcus Bleasdale used to earn £500,000 a year. By 30 he was the owner of two houses and a Porsche, and he spent weekends skiing in the Alps. Bleasdale is now a photojournalist. He owns a flat but no car, and at 40 earns £60,000 a year. At short notice he is sent to report on conflicts around the world. 'I just like life being real,' he says.

Bleasdale studied Economics and Finance at university and in 1996 was working for ABN Amro in Amsterdam.

'I used to get up at 5.30 every morning and be in bed by 10.30. Everyone thinks it's glamorous, but it's not that glamorous. I didn't want to be sitting in front of computer screens when I was 40.'

Then, he found something that completely changed his life. 'A girlfriend wanted a camera for her birthday,' he explains. He picked it up one day, started taking pictures of nature and did some evening courses.

The move in 1998 was dramatic.

'I remember reading about the Balkans. I got into work the next day and someone said, "Have you seen the newspaper headlines?" I said, "Yes, horrific isn't it?" He said, "What do you think that's going to do to the price of the dollar?" I knew I didn't want to be a banker any more.' Within 24 hours he was on a plane to the Balkans.

Why did he go? 'I just felt I needed to be there. I loved the freedom, the energy.' On his return to London, he enrolled* on a photojournalism course and then won an award for best young photojournalist. Since then Bleasdale has worked for Time, Newsweek, and National Geographic.

He now lives modestly in Norway with his wife. His savings have long gone, spent on subsidizing his new career, and also on an orphanage* in eastern Congo. 'It's not easy to come back and fit back into normal life,' he says. But it is the camaraderie* of banking that he misses most. 'The life of a journalist is quite lonely.' Does he feel he has changed?

'I think I appreciate life a lot more. I think I'm more sensitive. I'm a nicer guy.'

enrol: officially arrange to do a course orphanage: a large house where children who are orphans live camaraderie: feeling of friendship, especially when working together

3 Read the article again. Find evidence to support the following statements.

1 Marcus was a successful investment banker.
2 He was unhappy as a banker.
3 He is very flexible in his approach to life and work.
4 He is very talented.
5 He contributes to charity.
6 He has changed as a person.

4 In what ways is Marcus Bleasdale's life better than before? In what ways is it worse?

Grammar: used to 5 Look at the information in the table and choose the correct options.

used to

1 We use used to when we talk about present/past habits, which we no longer do, or to describe states, which are not true now.

Marcus Bleasdale used to earn £500,000 a year.

He didn't use to enjoy his work but he loves it now.

Did he use to work in a bank? Yes, he did./No, he didn't.

2 We can also use the past simple/present perfect to describe past habits.

He drove fast cars. (He used to drive fast cars.)

3 We use the present simple/used to with an adverb of frequency when we talk about present habits.

Marcus is usually away from home six months of the year.

>> For more information on used to, see page 164.

6 Complete the information about Marcus Bleasdale's life using used to and the verbs in the box.

sit love help say not appreciate eat out live wear

1 As a boy, Marcus _____ his family pay the bills.

2 His father _____, 'You should make sure you earn enough money.'

3 When Marcus worked as a banker, he _____ in expensive restaurants twice a week.

4 In the bank he _____ in front of computers.

5 Marcus _____ smart suits. Nowadays he usually wears trousers and a shirt that he can wash easily at night.

6 He _____ life as much as he does now.

7 Marcus _____ cities but he hates them now.

8 He _____ in Amsterdam but now he lives in Norway.

Speaking: Guess what I used to do

7 Work in pairs. Student A: You used to be rich. Look at the information below. Student B: You used to be poor. Turn to File 16, page 135.

Student A:

1 You used to be a rich businessperson but you lost all your money. Complete these sentences about your former life. Then answer your partner's questions.

- I used to drive _____. (form of transport)
- I used to own _____. (type of business/company)
- I used to work _____. (working hours)
- I used to have _____. (possessions)
- I used to spend my holidays in _____. (places)
- I didn't use to … (type of problems)

2 Ask Student B questions to guess what he/she used to do.

Did you use to work in an office?

8 Write down three significant changes in your life. Talk about them with your partner and ask each other questions. What do you both have in common?

TALKING POINT

- Which job would you like to do for one month/one year? Why?
- Who do you know who has reinvented himself/herself? How did they do it?

5 Conversation topics

Listening: Making small talk

1 Small talk is light informal conversation. How many small talk topics can you find?

```
televisionsportspoliticsfashionartnovelsfamilyarchitecturethe economicclimatemusicpetstheweatherreligionfoodandrestaurantstravel experiencesholidayplansthenewssalariesyourhometownhealthweekend activitiesfilmsandcinemayourjobhobbiescelebritygossipfestivals

2 Which items in exercise 1 are your favourite small talk topics? Which topics are not suitable in a lot of local situations? Why?

3 Look at the blog entry. What does this woman say are her favourite small talk topics? What is her theory, and how does she get her customers talking?

I'm the queen of small talk because I'm in sales. My favourite safe topics are: weather, travel, what are you reading? movies, kids, pets. One of my never-miss topics is pursuing my theory that everyone knows of one amazingly beautiful and special place where they live. There exist beautiful places even in areas that you wouldn't expect beauty. But if you investigate a bit, they will share and it's so cool to go to those places and see neat things that only the locals know about, like waterfalls, fields of flowers, architecture, historical monuments, etc. People love talking about where they live and how it's cool – and I LOVE learning from my customers, so I ask a lot of questions – it's like an imaginary vacation.

! News is an uncountable noun. We can say: I heard some news or It's an interesting piece of news, but not ~~I read a news about him.~~

4 On what occasions do you usually make small talk and what about? Think of four situations, e.g. When I arrive at work on a Monday morning, I ask my colleagues about their weekend.

5 1.22 Listen to six people starting a conversation. Which six of these topics are they talking about?

the weather the physical environment the news the town television weekend activities celebrity gossip work

6 Listen again and complete what they say.

1 Are you _____ _____ _____ the match on Saturday?

2 _____ you _____ the rain we're having this week?

3 Have you _____ _____ _____ _____ the physics experiment in Switzerland?

4 _____ _____ _____ the big boss is coming from France next week.

5 What do _____ _____ _____ that new shopping centre?

6 _____ you _____ the beautiful spring flowers outside the office?

7 How could you respond to each person in exercise 6?

8 Choose one of the expressions in exercise 6 and use it to start some small talk with your partner.

A: I hear that there is a flower festival in town at the moment.

B: Yes, I read about it in the local newspaper. I think I'll go. Do you like flowers?

9 1.23 Listen to the start of two phone calls. Which call doesn't begin with small talk? Why do you think that is? In what kind of situations is small talk inappropriate?

10 Listen again. How does Marco move from small talk to work talk?

Word focus: Conversation topics

11 Look at these groups of words. What is the small talk topic for each one? Which word does not belong to each group? Why?

Topic:

1 _____ storm, flood, boiling, exhibition, changeable, _____ _____

2 _____ the sales, flu, casual wear, designer label, suit, _____ _____

3 _____ plot, the ending, main course, leading actor, thriller, _____ _____

4 _____ mayor, local council, author, taxes, elections, _____ _____

5 _____ flight delays, tie, campsite, lost luggage, first class, _____ _____

6 _____ aunt, nephew, library, anniversary, in-laws, _____ _____

12 Put the words in the box with the correct category in exercise 11. Think of three more words to add to each group.

T-shirt	soundtrack	niece	flip-flops	politician	director
check-in	vote	traffic jam	freezing	daughter	shower

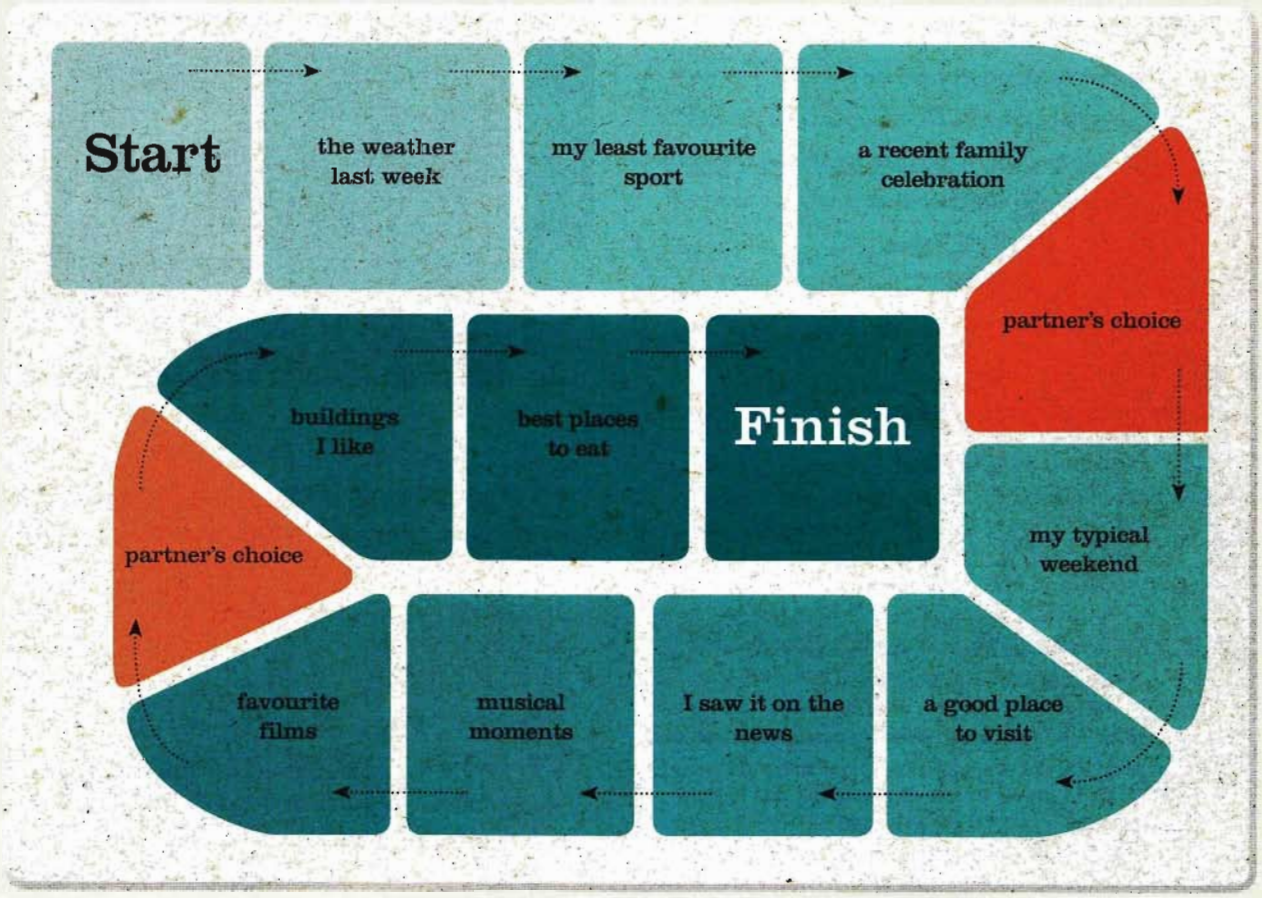
13 Choose a topic from exercise 1 and write four words that relate to it and one that does not. Test another person in the class.

Speaking: Keep talking

14 Work in pairs. Read the rules. Then play the game.

Rules

1 Use a coin to move forward. Heads move one space. Tails move two.
2 Talk for a minute about the subject without repeating a word or hesitating. Then, your partner will ask you two questions.
3 If you can't talk for a minute, move back to your previous position.
4 If you land on 'partner's choice', your partner chooses the subject you talk about.



TALKING POINT How important is small talk in your job?

5 Communication strategies Socializing

Listening: Meeting and greeting

1 Look at the information about greeting people in Honduras. How is it similar or different from greeting people in your country? Discuss these points.

- Greeting family and close friends
- Meeting acquaintances
- Differences when greeting men and women
- Introductions with business contacts
- Meeting people for the first time

Hugs and kisses are common in Honduran culture. Women usually greet each other with a little hug and a kissing gesture on the cheek, even when meeting for the first time.

Men who are relatives or close friends may greet women that way, too. Among each other, men will usually shake hands, sometimes accompanied by a hug and a pat on the back if they are friends or family. The same gestures are exchanged again when parting.

2 1.24 Listen to six greetings. How would you respond to each one? Choose the correct option a), b) or c).

1 a I'm going to get a drink. Want one?
  b She's fine. Thanks for asking.
  c Not bad. And yourself?

2 a Yes, it's been a long time since the last conference.
  b I've been looking forward to meeting you, too.
  c You haven't changed a bit either!

3 a Hi, I'm Helena Coltrane. Nice to meet you, Sandra.
  b Great to see you again, too, Sandra. How have you been?
  c So, where are you working now?

4 a No, it's old. I've had it for ages.
  b Oh, not much. What are you up to these days?
  c No, I haven't watched the news today.

5 a Of course.
  b Can I have your name, please?
  c Yes, that's right. Do I know you?

6 a Not at all. Please do.
  b Yes, I'll join you later.
  c I don't mind.

3 Which people in exercise 2 have met before? Which conversations were the least formal?

! How do you do? is not often used nowadays. It's more common to say Nice to meet you. or Pleased to meet you. when meeting people for the first time.

There are also many informal expressions for meeting and greeting such as: Long time, no see! How are things with you?

4 Complete the gaps with informal greetings from the conversations. Do you know any others?

How are you doing?

Hey, what's [1] _____?

Long time, no see!

Hi! How's [2] _____ _____?

Hey, what's new?

5 Look at the other responses in exercise 2 again. In what situations are they appropriate responses?

I'm going to get a drink. Want one?

= When you want to explain why you're leaving someone you're talking to.

Reading: Compliments

6 Look at this travel blog. Do North American customs sound similar to your country? Why?/Why not?

Things are going well for me in Chicago. I've found people are very friendly. They don't wait to be introduced here, and they start conversations with strangers very easily.

Something unusual I've noticed is that Americans pay a lot of compliments – even to people they don't know. I don't think we do that much in the UK. Yesterday I was waiting in the queue at the supermarket when the customer next to me said, 'I love your coat'. I didn't know how to reply at first. I wanted to say 'Oh, it's old – nothing special', but that seemed unfriendly. So I said 'Thanks, I like your coat, too', and then we started chatting. In the next three minutes, this complete stranger told me her whole life story. It's an interesting way to start a conversation, but I don't know if I'll ever be good at it.

7 How would you respond to these compliments? Choose a, b or c.

1 That was a great presentation!
   - a I know. I'm fabulous, aren't I?
   - b Do you think so? I was really nervous at the start.
   - c Thanks a lot. I think it went well.

2 Cool shirt!
   - a Thank you. I like yours, too.
   - b I'm not so sure about it myself. It's a bit loud.
   - c Do you mean that? Or are you just saying it?

3 Your apartment is really beautiful.
   - a Yes, we'd like to renovate the kitchen though.
   - b Yes, but it's a noisy neighbourhood.
   - c I don't deserve it.

4 I love your dress.
   - a Thanks! It's a bit tight on me now. I've put on weight.
   - b Thanks! It was a birthday present from my husband.
   - c Yeah, it's all right. Nothing special.

5 You did a nice job on the product launch.
   - a It really wasn't me. I had a lot of help from Ivan.
   - b Thanks. I'm sure Ivan will appreciate hearing that, too.
   - c It was a bit of luck really.

8 Read some strategies for responding to compliments. Then look at the responses in exercise 7. Decide which strategy the speaker was using and write it in the table. The first two are done for you.

Responding to compliments

It's sometimes difficult to respond to compliments. On the one hand, we want to be modest. But, on the other hand, we don't want to be disagreeable. Here are some typical strategies.

Strategy	Examples
Accepting the compliment
Responding with a compliment
Questioning the compliment	1b
Sharing the praise with someone else
Downgrading the praise, so it seems less important Giving an explanation
Joking	1a

9 Make up some compliments. Think of some words to complete the spaces in the table. Then compare your compliments to another student's. In what situations could you use them?

Paying compliments

1 Your _____ is _____ .
2 That _____ was really _____ .
3 I _____ your _____ .
4 That was a really _____ party.
5 This is a _____ _____ .

Speaking: Social chit-chat

10 Work in pairs. You meet your colleague who you know well in the corridor or lift. Think of a compliment you can pay him/her and start a one-minute conversation. Change partners and start another conversation.

11 Work in pairs. Imagine you don't know each other and you meet for the first time at a party at work. Greet each other, include a compliment if appropriate, and talk for two minutes.

Reminder

Grammar reference pages 161 and 163

We use the past simple to talk about finished actions and events in the past.

When I started I had very little money.

We use the present perfect to talk about life experiences at an indefinite time in the past.

Zahir Rahman has received many social enterprise awards.

We use the present perfect to talk about events that started in the past and which still continue today.

His company has sold solar panels for several years.

There are many ways of responding to compliments. For instance, we can share the praise, we can give an explanation or we can respond with a compliment.

A: You're doing a great job with the youth orchestra.

B: Thank you. I'm lucky I have a very supportive partner.

Listening: Social enterprise

1 1.25 What is a social enterprise? Listen to the first part of an interview with Zahir Rahman and complete the definition with one to three words in each gap.

A social enterprise is an organization that provides [1]_____ like any other business and uses the same [2]_____. A social enterprise focuses on [3]_____ and needs. Unlike commercial businesses, the [4]_____ generated are put back into the business rather than going into the [5]_____ of owners or shareholders.

2 Listen again and write down three examples of social enterprises.

3 1.26 Listen to the second part of the interview and correct this biographical information about Zahir Rahman.

1 Zahir Rahman has run his social enterprise for twelve years.

2 He has more than 118,000 customers today.

3 He thinks that a social entrepreneur is an inventor.

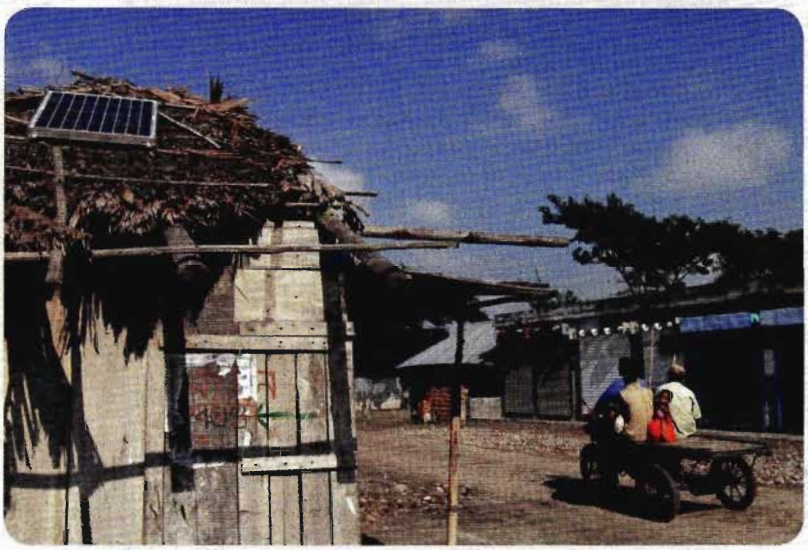
4 He qualified in engineering.

5 He went to live in the US twelve years ago.

6 He has just started a clean water company.

4 Would you like to work for a social enterprise? Which social needs would you focus on? Why? Look at the following suggestions.

health education housing transport children the elderly the unemployed



5 Read this advertisement. Who's offering the Social Enterprise Award and what does the prize include?

Social Enterprise Award

We're giving away £500,000

The Daily Times newspaper and the Northern Hibernia Bank offer annual awards worth £500,000 to social entrepreneurs and enterprises that have innovative ideas to achieve social change.

People can apply in one or more of these categories:

- Making profits for social purposes
- Transforming people's health
- Bringing communities together
- Passion for the environment

What we're offering:

- £300,000 for the overall winner
- £200,000 to be divided between the other three finalists

The four winners will also each receive a free consultation from one of the UK's leading social entrepreneurs as well as publicity in the Daily Times. Nominations for this year are now open.

Speaking: Four finalists

6 Work in pairs. Student A: Look at this information about David Horn and Carla D'Silva and ask Student B questions to complete the other two profiles. Then answer Student B's questions about Sally Warren and Jamie Barnes. Student B: Turn to File 15, page 135.

Started: six years ago

Main achievements:

- Jamie runs three high-quality restaurants in fashionable parts of London.
- He has written eight cookbooks and some of the money from sales goes into his apprentice restaurant chain.
- The restaurants create opportunities for people who have been unemployed for a long time.
- Professional staff in the restaurants work with and train new apprentices for six months.
- 80% of the apprentices who graduate have found permanent jobs.

7 Work in pairs. Student A: Read the information below. Student B: Turn to File 37, page 140.

The finalists for the award are staying in the same hotel. There is a party at the hotel for them to socialize the evening before the award ceremony. Decide if you are Sally Warren or Jamie Barnes. Make small talk with one of the other candidates. Compliment him/her on something he/she is wearing and ask him/her questions.

8 Decide which is the strongest candidate with your partner. Then explain your choice to the rest of the class.

9 1.27 Listen to each of the finalists telling the judges about their plans for the future and make notes.

10 Work in groups. Discuss these ideas and come to a final decision.

1 Choose the winner. Is it the same person as your strongest candidate in exercise 8?

2 How much of the remaining £200,000 will you give to each of the other three finalists? Give reasons for your decisions.

3 What conditions should there be for spending the money?

Writing: Choosing the winner

11 You are one of the judges for the Social Enterprise Award. Write a short article for the Daily Times. Provide some background information about the award and announce this year's winners. Give your reasons for choosing the overall winner and the three finalists and explain how the £500,000 prize money is divided.

Reading: Happy Computers

1 What makes your company, organization or school a good place to work or study? Make a list.

2 Quickly read the article about a company called Happy Computers. Find three things that make it a great place to work. Were any of these on your list?

3 Read the article again and find the information that supports these statements.

1 Staff can choose their own working hours.

2 People can work fewer days and achieve more.

3 The company's business has expanded in new directions.

4 Staff can contribute to the company's planning processes.

5 There is open communication within the company.

6 There are a lot of people interested in working for Happy.

Happy Computers show the way ahead

Happy Computers, last year rated* as one of the UK's top 10 companies, shows that there are many ways to achieve a contented and productive workplace.

The London-based firm aims to keep its staff happy. They don't have to give a reason for wanting a flexible timetable. 'There are no specific rules,' says Sabina Barbato, who is in charge of human resources. 'The simple reason that you need to have flexi-time is good enough for us to give it to you.'

For instance, when one staff member asked to take Mondays off* to recover from a weekend of clubbing*, the company agreed. 'It worked very well because he was much more productive on the other four days,' she says.

Happy believes that learning should be fun. Originally focused on IT training, the 50-employee company now offers management and personal development courses as well. Its chief executive Henry Stewart passionately believes that staff should have the freedom to do things their way.

He lets staff participate in business and financial decisions and allows them to vote on most major decisions. They can also have a say in* pay rises and bonuses, which are all team-based and set* by staff. A spreadsheet posted on the company intranet shows the salaries of all Happy employees.

'Nothing is secret. We're very open about things like finances and people's salaries,' says Ms Barbato. 'The reason behind that is if you ask for a pay rise then you have to be able to justify it in front of everybody.'

The company's reputation as a good employer has brought it many awards. And Happy doesn't need to pay for recruitment agencies or job advertisements. It currently has about 2,000 people signed up to receive information when a position at the company becomes available.

At Happy, having no rules such as 'You must park only in allocated spaces.' or 'You should work from 9 to 5', means that employees are much freer in their approach to the working day. No 'shoulds' or 'musts' obviously produce a very contented workforce.

Grammar: can, have to, must, need to and should 4 Complete the first column of the table with the correct form of can, have to, must, need to and should. Then complete the examples.

can, have to, must, need to* and *should 1 _____	possible or permitted	They _____ in pay rises and bonuses.
must 2 _____	necessary, important, an order, a rule, a law	Visitors must sign in at reception. You _____ to justify it in front of everybody.
3 _____		The simple reason that _____ flexi-time is good enough for us.
4 _____	a good idea or the right thing to do	Happy believes that learning _____. Staff _____ to do things their way.
shouldn't	a bad idea or wrong to do	Staff shouldn't worry about making mistakes.
mustn't can't	not permitted	You mustn't make overseas phone calls. You can't wear jeans to work.
5 _____ 6 _____	not necessary	They _____ a reason for wanting a flexible timetable. Happy _____ for recruitment agencies.

We also use let and allow when you have permission to do something.

He lets staff participate in business and financial decisions and allows them to vote on most major decisions.

>> For more information on can, have to, must, need to and should, see pages 167 and 168.

5 Complete these sentences with mustn't or don't have to.

1 We _____ park our cars in the Director's space. She doesn't like it.
2 Please help yourself to tea and coffee. You _____ ask.
3 We _____ go into the production area. It's for authorized staff only.
4 Food in the canteen is quite cheap. We _____ pay much for lunch.
5 I _____ attend the meeting tomorrow. It's not very important for me.
6 We _____ smoke anywhere in the building. It's against the law.
7 I _____ forget to call Sandy. It's her birthday today.
8 We have plenty of time. We _____ rush.

> ! Have to and need to are more common in conversation than must. In American English the contraction mustn't is never used. See the grammar notes on page 167 for more information.

Speaking: Unwritten rules

6 What is an 'unwritten rule'? Suggest words and phrases to complete some unwritten rules.

1 You shouldn't stare at …
2 Don't sit next to another passenger on a bus if …
3 If you want to get noticed at work, you have to …
4 You should never overtake …
5 Close your umbrella when …
6 You don't have to be rich …

7 Match these endings to the correct rules in exercise 6. Are these unwritten rules true for your country or culture?

a there's a free seat somewhere else.
b to show generosity to others.
c you go inside.
d volunteer for important assignments.
e a police car.
f other people in public places.

8 Work in pairs. What are the unwritten rules in these situations? Write them down.

1 in a lift
2 in the cinema
3 when using a mobile
4 in friendship

9 Read your rules to the class.

Who had the most rules?
Whose rules were the most interesting?
Whose rules were the funniest?

TALKING POINT Could you run your organization like Happy Computers? Why?/Why not?

6 Obligation in the past

Listening: A memorable boss

1 Do you remember your best boss? What made him/her a good boss?

2 1.28 Listen to five people talking about a present or past manager. Pause after each speaker and discuss these questions with a partner.

1 Does the speaker think their manager is/was good or bad? Why?/Why not?

2 Would you like to work for this particular boss? Why?/Why not?

3 Listen again. Who says the following? Match the speaker to the information.

Speaker 1	a	His/Her boss allows some staff to work less than others.
Speaker 2	b	His/Her boss recognized and credited the staff's good work.
Speaker 3	c	His/Her boss didn't like to mix with staff.
Speaker 4	d	His/Her boss preferred to communicate by email.
Speaker 5	e	His/Her boss doesn't overwork the staff.

Grammar: Obligation in the past

4 Put the correct past forms of have to, need to and be allowed to in the table.

Obligation in the past

There is no past form of the modal verb of obligation must. Instead we use the past forms of have to and need to.

Present	Past	Example
1 have to	had to	I had to do most of it.
2 need to
3 don't have to
4 don't need to
5 isn't/aren't allowed to

6 We use [1]_____ and _____ when something was necessary in the past.
We use [2]_____ and _____ when something was not necessary in the past.
We use [3]_____ when something was not permitted in the past.

>> For more information on obligation in the past, see page 168.

5 Look at the audio script for exercise 3 on page 149 and find examples to complete the table.

6 Imagine these were some of the rules in your last job. Rewrite the rules using the past forms.

1 I have to start work at 9 a.m. and finish at 6 p.m. every day.

2 We must wear a uniform and an ID badge for work.

3 We aren't allowed to surf the internet for fun.

4 I need to leave my mobile phone on during meetings.

5 We aren't allowed to smoke anywhere in the building.

6 Sometimes everyone has to do some overtime.

Speaking: Those were the days

7 1.29 Listen to two colleagues talking about a TV show and answer the questions.

1 What's the show called? 2 What's it about? 3 Where's it set? 4 When's it set? 5 What does one colleague like about it?

8 Listen again. What do they say about working lives at this time?

1 In those days people were allowed to _____.

2 Men had to wear _____ to the office.

3 Women were basically second-class citizens and had to _____ then.

4 They usually had to work as _____ or _____ or stay at home with the kids.

5 A secretary had to _____ and give the boss his hat and coat when he left the office.

9 How have the lives of your family changed over the years? Make five or six sentences and then ask your partner questions about his/her sentences.

1	When I was a child	I	had to …
2	When I was at school/university	we	didn't have to …
3	When I left home	they	was/were allowed to …
4	When my parents were young	people	wasn't/weren't allowed to …
5	In my first/previous job
6	Twenty years ago

10 In what ways do you think working lives were different in the past? Were there more or fewer rules and regulations? Think about some of the following.

- the age people started work and retired
- dress code
- attitudes to people in authority
- health and safety regulations
- equal opportunities legislation

TALKING POINT What are some of the most memorable rules for places you have visited, worked in or studied at in the past?

6 Writing emails 1

Reading: Informality in writing

1 Look at the examples of punctuation. Identify a comma, full stop, semicolon, colon, an exclamation mark, a letter in lower case and a capital letter.

2 What does C u l8r mean? Where do you usually see it written?

3 Look at this message and punctuate it. Then read the first paragraph of the article and check your answers.

i sadly will be late for our meeting the underground is running with long delays

C u l8r informality

Last week I received a text message from a young colleague that read: 'I, sadly, will be late for our meeting; the Underground is running with long delays.'

He's a 26-year-old man. So if he sends punctuated text messages, does this signify the end of an era? Could it be that the lower-case, c-u-l8r age of business language is over?

The next day I read an email from the UK head of internal communications at Google. It did not begin 'Hi'. Instead it started: 'Dear Ms Kellaway'. It was an invitation to speak at an event and finished: 'I look forward to hearing from you'. The message was signed off 'Yours sincerely'. If Google employees have given up the language of the internet and are now composing emails in this manner, something must be changing.

To find out more, I have just carried out some research and discovered some surprising results. I examined the latest 100 unsolicited* emails in my inbox and graded them for style, punctuation and formality. I then compared the results with those of a similar test I did in 2000.

The results prove that the pendulum has swung away* from informality towards correct usage. In 2000, more than a quarter of emails were entirely written in lower case. In my recent research only one email didn't use a capital letter.

In my earlier audit there was a rich variety in email sign-offs, but almost all were ugly. One of the most common was 'rgds', a horrible little abbreviation. But in the recent group there was only one 'rgds', and instead 'Yours sincerely' and even 'Yours faithfully' have come back.

There has been a corresponding return of surnames. Nearly 40 per cent of the recent emails addressed me as 'Ms Kellaway', 'Mrs Kellaway' or 'Lucy Kellaway', and before the name came 'Dear'. This is firmly back in fashion, while 'Hi' and 'Hey' are on the way out*.

This is no surprise. Just as recession encourages people to put on ties, it also makes them look more kindly on capital letters and semicolons. When people are losing their jobs, correct dress and correct usage of words seem like a good insurance policy.

unsolicited: unwanted the pendulum has swung away: tendency of ideas to change regularly to the opposite on the way out: soon to be replaced by something else

4 Read the rest of the article and discuss these questions in pairs.

1 Does the writer prefer more informal or formal emails from people she doesn't know? What about you?

2 What research did the writer carry out?

3 What does she think is happening to business writing nowadays? Do you agree? Why?/Why not?

Writing: Emails 1

5 Work in pairs and answer these questions.

1 When do we usually write 'I look forward to hearing from you'?
2 What is the difference between Ms Kellaway and Mrs Kellaway?
3 What is rgds an abbreviation of?
4 How do you usually sign off emails in your company or organization?
5 When do we usually use Yours sincerely and Yours faithfully?
6 Which of these are correct forms of address to someone you don't know?
Hey Lucy, Dear Ms Kellaway, Hi Lucy, Dear Lucy Kellaway, Dear Mrs Kellaway

6 Work in pairs. Look at this email that John Moore has written to Lucy Kellaway. Discuss what you would need to change to write it in a more formal style. Consider the following points.

- form of address
- signing off
- organization of paragraphs
- use of formal/informal words and expressions
- punctuation and spelling
- use of abbreviations
- the impact your email will have on the reader

dear lucy
how's it going? we want you to speak at an event that we're organizing it's about how business writing is changing and it's going to be on thurs. 21 feb. write soon.
rgds
john

7 Work in pairs again. Rewrite the message in exercise 6 in a more formal style. One person writes; the other checks spelling and grammar.

8 Look at another message for Lucy Kellaway. What advice does the man ask for? What advice would you give him?

Dear Ms Kellaway
I am writing to your blog as I would very much like your advice on a personal issue. Three years ago I resigned as a manager and since then I have thoroughly enjoyed more meaningful leisure activities such as gardening, fishing, writing and so on. However, lately, I have been concerned that my utopian existence is no longer sustainable, so I went to see a recruitment agency. When I explained the past three years to one of their staff, he looked completely shocked. I fear any future employer will react similarly. How should I present my current circumstances and curriculum vitae to best effect at the next interview?
Yours sincerely
MB
Unemployed, male, 41

9 Rewrite the message in exercise 8 in a more informal style and make it shorter.

Speaking: Formal and informal styles

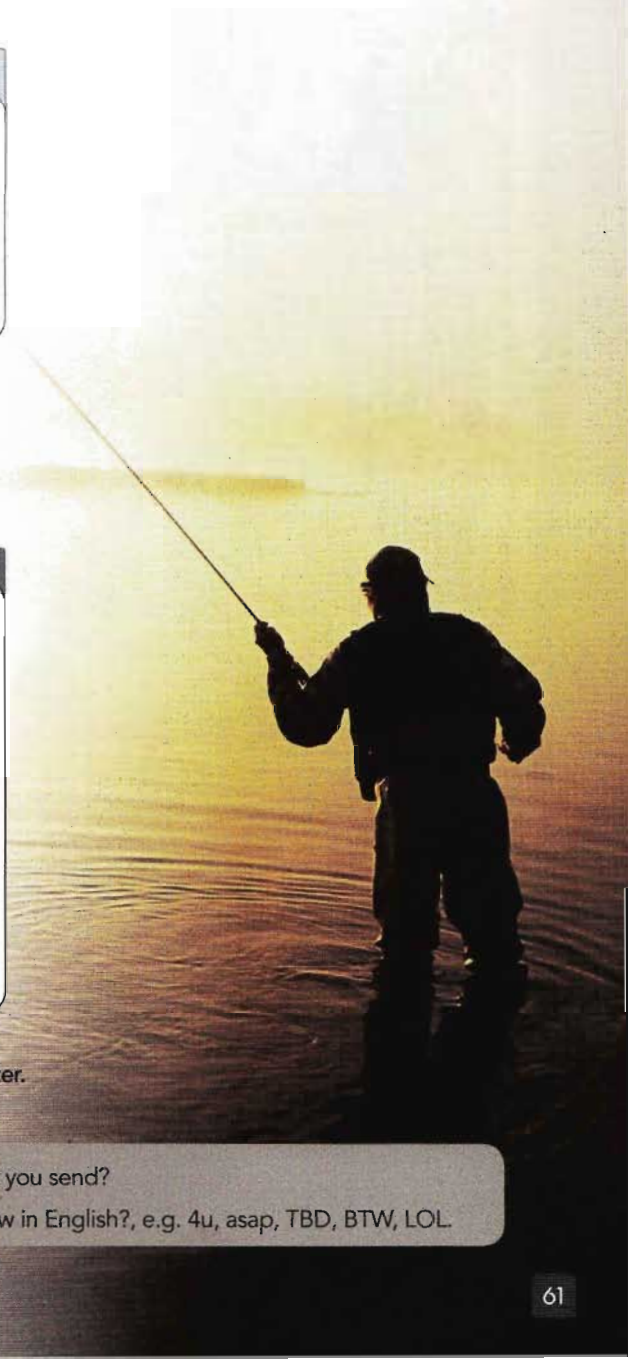
10 Discuss these questions in pairs or groups.

1 Who do you usually write emails and letters to? How informal or formal are they? How informal or formal are those you receive?

2 Is there a common writing style in your organization? How formal/informal is it?

3 If you don't have a common writing style, what do you think it should be?

4 How important is formality in your place of work or study? Consider the way you dress, speak, address people and generally behave.



TALKING POINT
- How well-written are the SMS or text messages that you send?
- What abbreviated words or expressions do you know in English?, e.g. 4u, asap, TBD, BTW, LOL

6 Communication strategies Giving advice

Listening: What should I do?

1 Look at these sentences. Which ones are true for you? Discuss your answers in groups.

1 I only give people advice when they specifically ask for my opinion.

2 I think giving advice shows you care about someone.

3 I'm a terrible backseat driver. When someone else is driving I always make comments.

4 It's very annoying when everyone tells you how to bring up your children.

> ! Advice is an uncountable noun; you ask for, give, or get some advice. Alternatively, you can say a bit of/a piece of advice.

2 1.30 Listen to two conversations in which people give some advice. What are they talking about in each conversation? There are two items you don't need.

a career advice

b taking time off work

c holiday plans

d a job interview

3 What do you think is the relationship between the speakers? What advice is given?

4 Listen to the two conversations again and complete these dialogues.

Conversation 1

Kelly: Robert, I have a question. I want to ask Kristof for a few days off next month but I think he'll say no. It's one of our busy periods. I wonder what I should say to him.

Robert: 1_____ _____ _____ just tell him why you need to have the time off.

Kelly: OK, I'll try that.

Robert: And 2_____ _____ _____ _____ make sure your work is up to date before you go away.

Kelly: Yes, that's a good idea. And I'll tell Kristof I'll do that.

Robert: And 3_____ _____ _____ do is leave information with me, you know, so I can cover for you. Tell Kris I'll take care of things, no problem.

Kelly: Really? That's excellent. Thanks Robert. I'll do the same for you some day.

Conversation 2

Kelly: You know that job interview I went for last week.

Jake: Yeah, did you get the job?

Kelly: Well, I dunno. I haven't heard from them yet. But I thought the interview went really well. Do you think I should phone them?

Jake: No, 4_____ _____ _____ yet. It'd 5_____ _____ to send them a thank-you note first.

Kelly: A thank-you note? You must be joking!

Jake: No seriously, that's pretty standard in the States. An email will do. Then you follow up with a phone call.

Kelly: Oh no. I don't think that would work. We don't do that here.

Jake: Oh, OK. I think 6_____ _____ phone them then.

Kelly: Yeah, perhaps. I'll give it another couple of days.

5 Which of these phrases for giving advice were used in the first conversation? Which were used in the second?

Giving advice
You might want to ...
You should ...
No, don't do that ...
It'd be better to ...
What you could do is ...
Maybe you could ...

6 Look at the phrases in the box in exercise 5 and decide which are more forceful.

Speaking: If you want my advice

7 Who would you probably go to for advice about the following? Why?

- buying a new car or another major purchase
- investing or saving money
- feeling stressed or overworked
- your job and career options
- where to go for a holiday
- a good place to eat out in your town
- what to wear on a special occasion
- ideas for decorating your home

8 What advice do you think these people might give you? Would they say it forcefully or not? Use phrases from the box in exercise 5 to say what they might say.

9 1.31 Listen to six people receiving advice. What's the advice about? Which responses sound positive and which negative? Do you think the person will follow the advice?

10 Work in pairs or small groups and take it in turns to be the person asking for and giving advice in these situations. Remember to respond to the advice you receive.

1 You are a junior manager. You're thinking of introducing some changes in your department and you ask your senior manager(s) for some advice. You want to improve dress standards by getting everyone to wear business suits and ties to work every day. You also want to improve the level of English of your employees and would like all formal meetings to be in English from now on.

2 You recently got married and you've found that your partner is incredibly messy around the home. You want to hire a cleaner but your partner doesn't. You are having constant arguments about housework and cleaning. Confide in a close friend or family member and see if they can give you any useful advice.

3 Your company wants to make some staff redundant and there is a generous package of six months' salary. You want to leave to travel around the world for a year. The economy is experiencing a downturn and it isn't a good time to leave a secure job either but you want to take the risk. You've asked a lot of people for advice. Now ask your colleague(s) at work what they think you should do.

4 Your teenage son is doing badly at school this year and seems to be going through a rebellious stage. Ask your mother and/or father (his grandparents) for some advice. They have more experience of bringing up children than you do.

5 You have been given the responsibility for organizing a surprise birthday party and buying a present for your boss's 60th birthday. You aren't sure what to get or what sort of event it should be. Ask your colleague(s) for some advice.

6 Interaction Helping new people

Reminder

Grammar reference pages 167 and 168

We can use several modal verbs to talk about rules and obligation.

We have to sign in every morning.

You don't have to pay for tea and coffee. It's all free.

We're not allowed to smoke in the building.

We give other people advice in more or less forceful ways depending on the type of relationship we have with them.

You should arrive early for your first day at work.

You might want to introduce yourself to the other staf

What you could do is work with someone with more experience.

Listening: First-day nerves

1 Why do people often feel nervous about starting a new job? Read the newspaper article and compare your answers.

FIGHT THOSE FIRST-DAY NERVES

Recent research shows that starting a new job is one of the situations we most fear – worries about the unknown, strange surroundings and unfamiliar faces can be frightening even for the most confident recruits.

In a survey of 500 job-seekers, independent recruitment agency Pertemps discovered that almost three-quarters of them (72%) suffered from acute first-day nerves. When asked to classify the level of their fears on a first day, around half of the sufferers (46%) said it was more stressful than moving house.

2 Discuss these questions.

1 Can you remember any situations when you have (or someone you know has) had first-day nerves?

2 What do you remember about your first week in your company or present job?

3 What were some of the rules and procedures you had to learn?

4 How did your company and colleagues help you in the first few weeks?

5 What do new staff need to know when they start work in your company/ department?

6 Is there an induction or orientation programme for new staff? What does it include?

3 1.32 Listen to two people describing their first day at work. Who enjoyed their first day more, Julia or Saul?

4 Match these words and expressions from exercise 3 to the meanings.

1 show (someone) around	a it's someone's responsibility or decision
2 it's up to me/you, etc.	b do things incorrectly
3 get to know	c understand and remember new information
4 get things wrong	d become familiar with a person or place
5 take in	e have done something which someone will not be happy about
6 be in trouble	f join with someone in order to work on something
7 team up	g go around a place with someone when they first arrive there, to show them what is interesting and useful

5 Listen to Julia and Saul again and answer the questions.

	Julia	Saul	both
1 Who started work without an induction programme?
2 Who admits he/she made mistakes?
3 Who wasn't able to concentrate?
4 Who started conversations with people?
5 Who was more confident?
6 Who got help and advice from his/her boss?

6 Did Julia and Saul's companies do enough to help them in their new jobs? What else could they do to help new staff?

Speaking: What should we do?

7 Work in pairs. Student A: This is your first day at work. Student B: You are the manager. Prepare a short dialogue and roleplay the conversation.

Student A:

This is your first day at work. You didn't sleep well last night because you were nervous.

Today you haven't taken in much information and you've got things wrong several times. Your boss asks to speak to you. You think you're in trouble.

Student B:

You can see your new member of staff is nervous. Ask him/her how he/she feels after the first day at work.

Find out why he/she doesn't take in instructions and gets things wrong. Give him/her some advice.

Tell Student A that you're going to team him/her up with an experienced member of staff tomorrow and advise him/her what to do.

8 Work in pairs. Student B: You are a new member of staff. Ask Student A for advice on how to make a good impression in your first week at work. Student A: Give advice to Student B.

9 You are going to design an induction programme for new staff or students. Look at the agenda for your project meeting and decide what points you want to discuss.

Agenda

Aim: Design an induction programme

1 Reasons for programme
2 Personal experiences
3 Feedback on existing programme
4 Brainstorm new programme
5 Content of induction booklet
6 Time needed
7 AOB

10 Work in pairs. Student A and Student B consider the questions below and prepare for the meeting.

Student A:

- Will new staff need to have a security pass?
- Should we show a new person around? What should we show him/her?
- Who will need to go through the job description and the appraisal system?
- What should a new team member know about professional development and training?
- Should the line manager give some guidelines on how he/she would like a new employee to communicate with him or her, e.g. email or face-to-face?
- More suggestions?

Student B:

- What organizational policies does a new person need to know, e.g. parking, smoking, internet and email, data protection?
- Should the team socialize with the new staff? What sort of formal and informal social events?
- What technology training is required, e.g. how to log on to the computer system and use certain software packages?
- Do new employees get a staff handbook? What information is included, e.g. health and safety?
- More suggestions?

11 Work in groups. Decide who is going to lead the discussion and hold the meeting.

12 Summarize and present your ideas for the induction programme to the class. Imagine you have only five PowerPoint slides to summarize your ideas.

Past continuous

Some of the most famous people in the world started their working lives in the most humdrum jobs. In his early twenties, Brad Pitt dropped out of a degree in advertising and journalism, and drove to Hollywood to pursue his childhood dream of becoming an actor. As for many aspiring actors, the early days were tough and Pitt did various part-time jobs while he was taking acting lessons. He worked as a limo chauffeur, a fridge removal man, and he even dressed up in a chicken costume to attract customers when he was working for the Mexican fast food chain El Pollo Loco.

Actor Johnny Depp dropped out of school at 15. As a teenager he played guitar with a rock band called The Kids. After that, he worked as a phone salesman, a position he once called his 'first acting job' because he used different voices when he was bored. 'You're calling people who don't want you to call them,' he recalls. 'You put on your best fake voice and try and sell them ballpoint pens with their name printed on them.' Depp was still selling pens when his friend Nicolas Cage suggested that he try acting. At 22, he got his first role in A Nightmare on Elm Street.

At the age of 12, the founder of Dell computers, Michael Dell was washing dishes in a Chinese restaurant for $2.30 an hour. Dell had several more jobs like that and by the age of 16 he was selling newspaper subscriptions. He recalls, 'I'd call people on the phone and try to convince them to buy the newspaper. I discovered that people who were moving into new houses or apartments were buying more newspapers than other people, so I tried to find those people and that worked very well.' By the time Dell enrolled at the University of Texas, he was already a successful businessman.

5 Find seven examples of the past continuous in the texts.

6 Match the uses of the past continuous in the table to the examples in exercise 5.

Past continuous

1 We use the past continuous to describe past actions or situations which were in progress at a particular time in the past.

2 We often use the past continuous together with the past simple. The past continuous gives the background details or describes longer events.

3 We can also use the past continuous to show two or more actions were in progress at the same time.

While he was studying at university, he was also running a successful business.*

When, while and as often introduce the action or situation in progress which is interrupted by another action or event. The shorter action can be introduced by when but not while.

1 Look at the photos. What kind of business does Anya Hindmarch have? Do you think this type of company does well or badly in times of an economic recession?

2 Read the article about handbag designer, Anya Hindmarch and put these events in chronological order.

a When the writer visited Anya's office, the male employees were growing beards.

b During the recession Anya gave a humorous presentation to motivate her staff.

c The web team had the idea of a beard-growing competition while they were having dinner with Anya.

d By the age of 19, Anya Hindmarch had set up her own business, although she hadn't been to business school.

e One evening she invited members of staff to her home for dinner.

f Her handbag stores became successful.

A Fun-and-Games Strategy
Part One

When I walked into the handbag designer Anya Hindmarch's head office in London last month, I was surprised to see all of the men were growing long beards. 'It was a beard-growing contest, with prizes for growth and creativity,' says Ms Hindmarch. 'It was the web team's idea,' she explains. 'We had them for supper at home and my husband James hadn't shaved* that morning. We were joking around* when we came up with the plan.'

Last year sales at the handbag store were up four per cent at a time when most luxury businesses were experiencing hard times. Perhaps Ms Hindmarch's shop was successful because she had set up her company by the age of 19, or perhaps because she hadn't gone to business school, or perhaps because she had made her name with stylish evening bags and fun bags with personalized images.

Ms Hindmarch says her strategy is about humour and cost-cutting. She first began her fun-and-games strategy a year ago when she made an internal presentation to staff. Instead of talking through the sales figures from her 53 stores around the world, she used slides* of war-time propaganda posters of the 'Keep Calm and Carry On*' kind. 'It made them laugh,' she says. She explains the idea was about working hard and building a sense of community in hard times.

shave: cut hair very close to the skin, especially from the face joke around: say things that are funny slide: a single page of a presentation created with software like PowerPoint carry on: continue doing something

3 Discuss these questions in pairs.

1 What do you remember about Anya's fun-and-games strategy?

2 Would you like to work for someone like Anya? Why?/Why not?

Grammar: Past tenses

4 Read and complete the table with these tenses: past simple, past perfect or past continuous. Then find two other examples of the past perfect in part one of the article.

Past tenses

We form the past perfect using _____ + _____ of the main verb.

1 We use the _____ to talk about things that happened in the past.

She first began her fun-and-games strategy a year ago when she made an internal presentation.

2 We use the _____ to talk about things that were in progress at a particular time in the past.

We were joking around when we came up with the plan.

3 When we want to show that one action or event happened before another in the past, we use the _____ to talk about the earlier one.

They came for dinner and my husband hadn't shaved that morning.

4 We can use the _____ to talk about life experience before a point of time in the past.

She had set up her company by the age of 19.

See pages 164 and 165 for more information on past tenses.

5 Look at these things that are mentioned in part two of the article. What do you think happened next?

ice cream manicure little girl makeover £50 note

6 Read part two of the article quickly and find out if you were right.

7 Complete part two of the article by putting the verbs in the past simple, past continuous or past perfect. Sometimes more than one option is possible.

A Fun-and-Games Strategy
Part Two

After her presentation, Ms Hindmarch handed out £50 notes that she [1] _____ (photocopy) to every employee saying: 'If you can think of a way to save £500, I'll give you a real note.' The aim [2] _____ (be) to think about saving, so that people were rethinking business travel and [3] _____ (not/order) expensive office equipment. By the end of the year, the company [4] _____ (save) £25,000.

To motivate her employees, she [5] _____ (offer) them a weekly manicure* so that they [6] _____ (not/have to) leave the office to get one. This way they [7] _____ (spend) more time at work. The handbag designer then [8] _____ (extend) her ideas to her customers and started joint ventures with other brands: an ice cream brand* [9] _____ (serve) icecream in-store for a week; and a cosmetic brand [10] _____ (give) customers makeovers*.

As a result, more people came into the stores. 'Our customers felt we [11] _____ (treat*) them like friends,' she says. 'One mother came in to buy her daughter an icecream and the daughter announced the next time she [12] _____ (want) both an icecream and a handbag.'

manicure: a treatment for hands and nails brand: a name given to a product so that it can be easily recognized give someone a makeover: make someone more attractive by giving them new clothes, a new hair style, etc.
treat: behave towards someone in a particular way

5 Read an article about a researcher who wanted to find the world's funniest joke. What research questions did he want to answer? What do you think the answers to the questions were?

THE FUNNIEST JOKE IN THE WORLD

from LaughLab,
University of Hertfordshire, UK

Few people have had so much fun at work as Richard Wiseman. Richard is a psychology professor who spent a year doing research into jokes and humour. More than 40,000 people from all over the world sent their favourite jokes to the LaughLab website and 1.5 million rated how funny they were.

The project aimed to answer some serious questions about the psychology of humour:

1 Do people from different countries laugh at the same jokes?
2 When is the best time of day to tell a joke?
3 When is the best time of the month to tell a joke?
4 Which animal do people find the funniest?

So what's the world's funniest joke?
The funniest joke is interesting because it works across many different countries and different kinds of people find it funny: men and women, young and old. This joke had universal appeal.

6 2.1 Listen to one of the researchers talking about their findings. What were the answers to the four questions?

7 2.2 Listen to the world's funniest joke about two hunters. Discuss these questions.

1 What does the telephone operator say?
2 What happens at the end?
3 How funny did you find it?

8 Look at the audio script on page 150. What tense is used? Try to remember the joke and practise telling it in pairs.

> ! When we are telling stories informally, we often use present tenses.

Speaking: Find someone who 9 Ask and answer these questions in groups.

Find someone who …

1 enjoys the same TV comedy show as you. (Which one?)
2 used to like the same cartoons as you. (Which ones?)
3 has laughed out loud recently. (Why?)
4 has sent/received a funny email recently. (What?)
5 liked playing practical jokes as a child. (What?)
6 thinks that there's no best time to tell a joke. (Why?)
7 likes the same comedy films as you. (What?)
8 thinks that a sense of humour is the most important thing in a relationship. (Why?)
9 thinks humour is important at work. (Why?)
10 is good at telling jokes. (Can they tell you one?)

10 When you have finished, report back to your teacher.

Repeating or paraphrasing:	A: As they were going down the hill, I was falling behind. *B: 5*_____
Linking a story to someone else's
*6*_____ A similar thing happened to me when ….

Word focus: Linkers

8 Read this story. Think of a good title.

I'll never forget the time my parents left me in the car. [1] _____ I was about six years old and we'd just driven all the way from Bristol to Birmingham to visit some distant Italian cousins of ours. I had fallen asleep on the way [2] _____ my parents decided to leave me asleep in the car [3] _____ they didn't want to wake me up. [4] _____ I woke up, I didn't know where I was or where my parents were, [5] _____ I got out of the car and started to look for them. In fact they had parked right outside our friends' house [6] _____ I didn't know that. [7] _____ , I asked some people in the street if they knew any Italian people living in the area. [8] _____ they found the house where my family was staying, but it was one of the scariest moments of my life. [9] _____ , I was OK, [10] _____ I was really annoyed with my parents for leaving me in the car!

7 They met in Venice. _____ , she never saw him again.

11 Choose one or two of the stories in exercise 10 to tell to your partner. What else happened? Add some more details.

Speaking: One-minute stories

12 Work in pairs. Student A: Turn to File 3, page 132. Student B: Turn to File 22, page 137.

13 When you have finished, change partners and retell two of the stories: your favourite one and one of the stories your partner told you.

Reminder

Grammar reference
pages 163, 164 and 165

We use the past continuous to describe actions or situations in progress in the past.

We were doing well when suddenly we lost all our customers.

We use the past perfect to talk about actions or events that happened before something else in the past.

It was my first job. I had never worked in an office before.

We use linkers to connect the different parts in a story.

It was a weird experience, although I learnt a lot.

We can use different expressions to start a story or respond to someone's story.

I'd like to tell you about my proudest moment.*

That reminds me of the time I was working in advertising.*

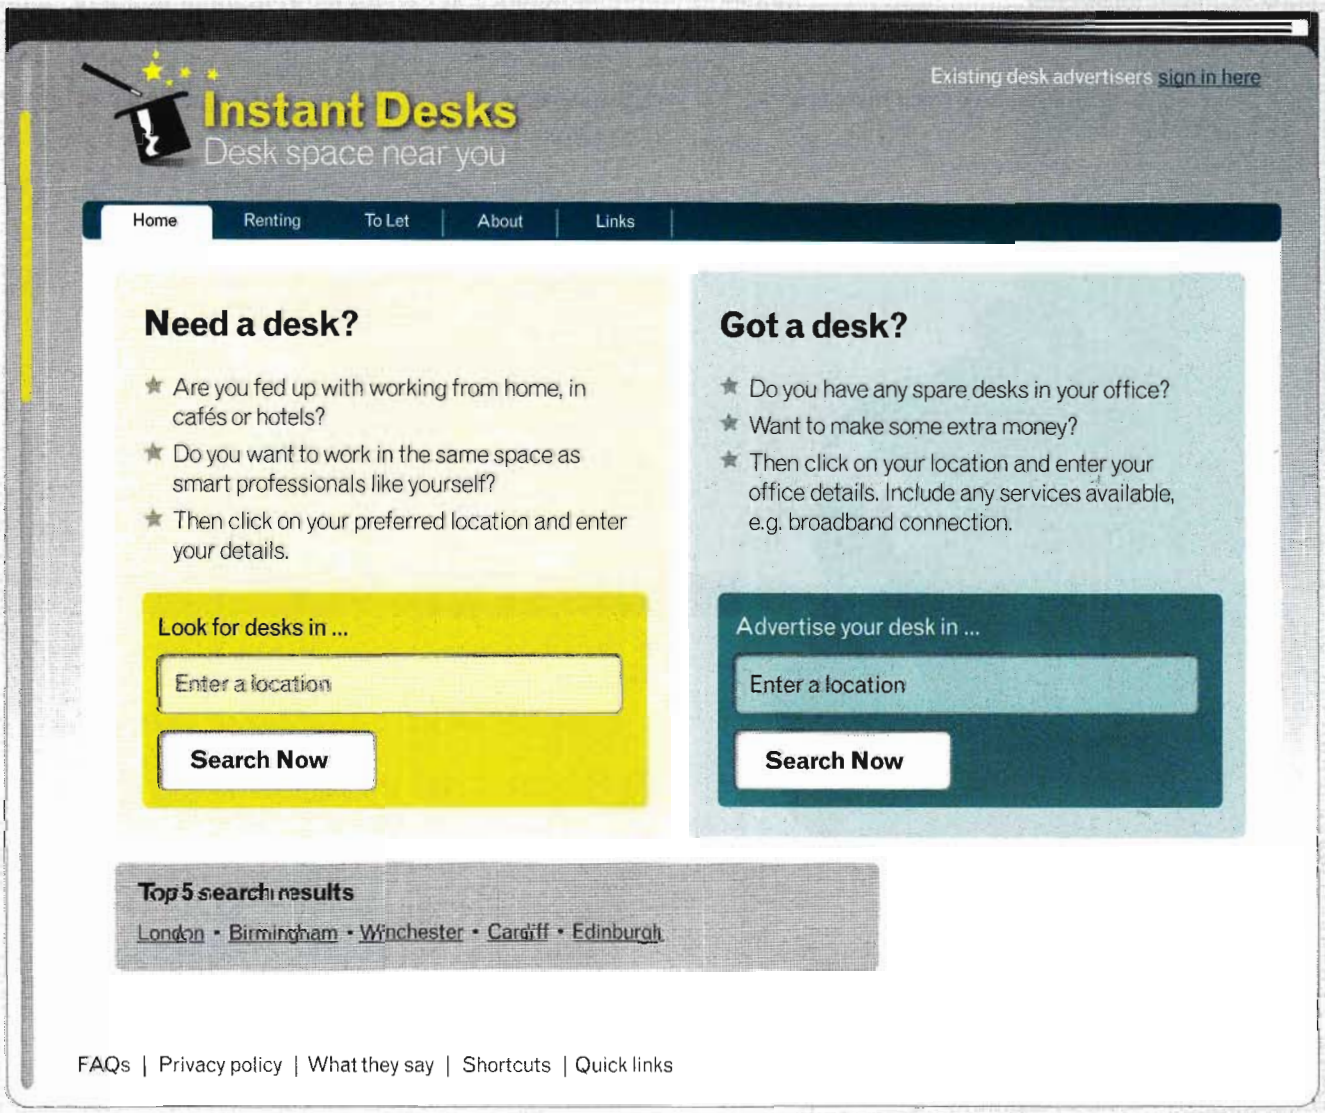
Listening: Elevator pitch

1 Work in pairs. What is the best office space you have worked in? What did you like about it?

2 Look at this website. What kind of business is Instant Desks?



3 2.5 Listen to entrepreneur Sam Harris giving a presentation about his new business venture to a group of potential investors. What is he doing in this part of the talk?

4 You are an investor interested in Instant Desks. Listen to the start of the presentation again and make notes on these questions.

1 What does Sam Harris do?

2 How many online businesses does he mention?

3 Is his new business making any money?

5 2.6 Listen to part two of the presentation and answer these questions.

1 What exactly is Instant Desks?

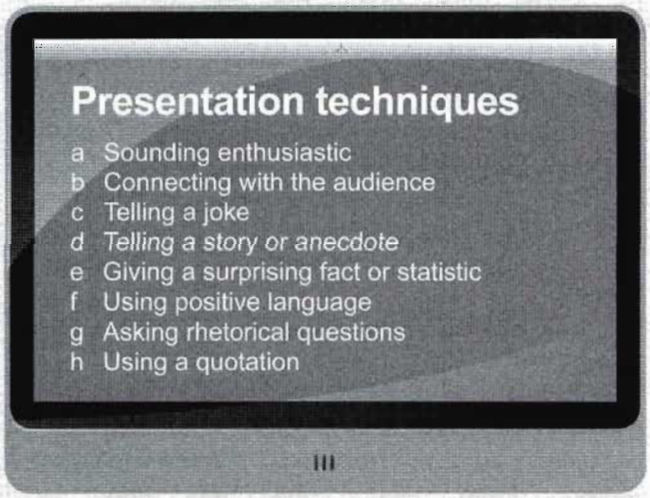
2 Who are 'deskers'?

3 How does it work for advertisers?

4 How does the website make money?

6 Would you invest in the website? Why?/Why not?

7 Tick (✓) the presentation techniques that Sam uses to make his talk more interesting. Which techniques do speakers often use in your culture? Anything else? What?



8 Look at these sentences. Which of them make a better impact in a presentation? Check your answers in the audio script on page 151.

1 a Here are a few facts about me.
b Let me tell you a bit about myself.

2 a I'm an e-commerce entrepreneur, which is my real passion.
b I'm an e-commerce entrepreneur.

3 a It's my new company and it's making a bit of money.
b It's our new business venture and it's already profitable.

4 a Now I'm going to describe my company's services.
b So, how does Instant Desks work?

5 a You're probably thinking, 'How much does it cost?'
b This is what it costs.

6 a The great thing about Instant Desks is it's absolutely free.
b Instant Desks is free.

9 Match the correct sentences in exercise 8 to some of the presentation techniques that Sam uses in exercise 7.

Speaking: A proud moment

10 Prepare a short presentation about yourself for some work colleagues who you are meeting for the first time. Use some of the correct expressions from exercise 8. Practise it in pairs.

11 Prepare an elevator pitch about the benefits of your company's products or services. Try to do it in two minutes and choose one of these audiences. Practise it in pairs.

1 a group of potential advertisers

2 a group of potential customers

3 a group of potential investors

4 a group of work colleagues

5 a group of students aged 16–18

6 your teacher's mum

12 Present your elevator pitch to the whole class. While you listen to your classmates, think of one or two questions to ask them.

13 What do you remember about your classmates' presentations? Which presentation techniques did they use? How could you improve your presentation next time?

14 Prepare a short anecdote for your presentation on one of these topics. It doesn't have to be funny but, if you want to, you can use humour. Practise it in pairs

1 My proudest achievement(s) at work

2 A proud moment in my life

3 My real passion(s)

4 My biggest challenge

5 Our closest competitors

6 My weirdest business experience so far

15 When you have finished, retell your anecdote to the rest of the class. Who told the most unusual/surprising/funniest anecdote?

A Zero and first conditionals
B Products
C Second conditional
D Communication strategies Problem solving
E Interaction Planning a green office

Green chic

Zero and first conditionals

Listening: Eco-revolution 1

1 Read about how three major companies are going 'green'. Do you know any organizations that have taken similar initiatives? Think of two other green initiatives.

British Telecom fuelled by renewable energies

Cisco's videoconferencing plan saves carbon emissions

Japanese Giant Sanyo recycles 99.8% waste

2 Match these verbs and nouns. Then make sentences using these verb and noun combinations.

1	reduce	a	paper and envelopes
2	replace	b	a recycling scheme
3	reuse	c	light bulbs with low-energy ones
4	drive	d	energy costs
5	launch	e	fuel-efficient cars

3 2.7 Listen to part one of a radio programme about green business. Tick (✓) the initiatives that are mentioned in exercise 2. What other ideas do you hear?

4 Listen to part one of the programme again and correct this advice to companies about going green. There are nine errors.

1 If you exchange your old light bulbs with low-energy ones, it can increase your electricity bills.

2 Switch to less fuel-efficient cars if you have a fleet of company buses.

3 If you drive a recycling scheme, it probably won't save you time, but it will help to replace your employees.

4 Unless you have a lot of time and energy, it makes sense to start with these big initiatives.

Grammar: Zero and first conditionals

5 Read the information in the table and complete the sentences.

Zero conditional

If + present simple, present simple.
It is possible to change the order of the clauses.

1 If he _____ (leave) the office, he _____ (switch off) the light.

2 _____ (switch off) the light if you _____ (leave) the office.

We can use unless, when or whenever instead of if in the main clause.

3 When/Whenever she _____ (leave) a room, she _____ (switch off) the lights.

4 Unless you _____ (have) a lot of time and money, it _____ (make) sense to start with simple initiatives.

We use the zero conditional to talk about situations and events that are generally true.

6 Complete these company guidelines to staff about going green. Put the verbs in the correct form using the zero conditional.

be save clean turn not print use pay help

Eco Guidelines

1 You save trees when you _____ recycled paper.

2 You reduce the use of paper if you _____ emails and documents.

3 Every time you _____ down the thermostat, you cut down on electricity consumption and carbon emissions.

4 When you car share with colleagues, you _____ yourself money and _____ to protect the environment.

5 If there _____ plants in your office, they _____ the air and provide more oxygen.

6 If you _____ attention to the small things, it is easy to have a greener, more pleasant office.

7 Read the information in the table and complete the sentences.

First conditional

If + present tense, will + base form (or an imperative). It is possible to change the order of the clauses.

1 We use the first conditional to talk about real possibilities now and in the future.

If we _____ (use) recycled paper, it _____ (be) more eco-friendly.

2 We use unless to mean 'if not'.

Air quality _____ (get) worse unless we _____ (reduce) carbon emissions.

3 We can use other modal verbs such as may, might, must, have to, can, should instead of will in the first conditional.

You _____ (save) money if you _____ (turn) the heating down a bit.

>> For more information on the zero and first conditionals, see page 169.

8 Complete these sentences using the first conditional.

1 If I _____ (have) time later, I _____ (take) these newspapers to the recycling bin.

2 He _____ (help) you if you _____ (not understand) anything in the guidelines.

3 If we _____ (not turn down) the heating, our bill _____ (be) enormous this month.

4 Our client _____ (go) to another supplier if we _____ (not implement) a green energy policy.

5 They _____ (not be) very happy if they _____ (not get) that new contract.

6 People _____ (not buy) more of our products unless we _____ (reduce) the prices.

Listening: Eco-revolution 2

9 2.8 Listen to part two of the radio programme and complete the journalist's notes.

One major corporation that is introducing more innovative green projects is [1]_____.
The company have installed [2]_____ solar panels on the rooftops of their headquarters.
These panels can provide [3]_____% of the company's electricity at peak times. The investment will pay for itself in [4]_____ _____ and then they'll have cheap electricity for many years.
The company makes donations to charity if staff [5]_____ _____ _____, _____ or _____ to work. It also provides a [6]_____ service for staff. And if they must use their cars, they get cash incentives to [7] _____ _____ _____ _____.
PB Copy is a small [8] _____ _____ company in Canada. They use an [9] _____ _____ to power their equipment. Customers can help by [10]_____ _____ _____ while they're waiting for their copies.

10 Look at the audio script on page 152 and find three more examples of conditional sentences.

TALKING POINT Has your place of work/study gone green? How? Why?

Speaking: Bright ideas

11 Work in groups. Look at the ideas in exercise 6 again.

a Brainstorm more ideas for reducing an organization's impact on the environment.

b Rank your ideas in order of importance.

c Prepare a five-point proposal to present to another group.

d Give reasons why your ideas will be effective.

5 Choose the correct options to complete these adverts. Which products would you buy?

These natural cotton grocery bags carry much more weight than plastic ones and they are [1] reusable / disposable, so they won't pollute the environment! Five-bag set $39.99 + free shipping.

Creating art from [2] fuel-efficient / recycled products has become a growing trend in South Africa resulting in unique and imaginative folk art. Papier maché bowls $12.99 each.

Discover the many shapes and sizes of [3] energy-efficient / biodegradable lighting. GE Energy Smart bulbs give you the high-quality lighting you expect. Save energy – up to 75% less energy! Last up to ten times longer!

Simple Green produces [4] eco-friendly / refillable cleaning products that are non-toxic and [5] biodegradable / disposable. Our all-purpose cleaner tackles the toughest cleaning jobs.

Speaking: Your carbon footprints

6 Work in pairs. Ask and answer the questions in this quiz to find out how green your lifestyle is. Turn to File 24, page 137. Look at the analysis. Do you agree with it?

How Green is Your Lifestyle?

1 You need to buy some food for dinner. What would you probably do?

a Walk to the local market with your reusable shopping bag, and buy some organic food.

b Drive your gas guzzler* to the supermarket, buy more than you need and put it all into disposable plastic bags.

c Make a meal from whatever you find in the cupboards.

d Phone for a pizza, eat half of it and throw the rest in the bin along with the box.

2 How do you usually deal with waste* at home?

a I don't give it much thought. Everything goes in the same bin.

b I carefully separate out paper, plastic, metal, glass and organic waste for recycling.

c As well as recycling my waste, I often buy recycled goods.

d In the past I used to separate my rubbish and recycle packaging, but I've stopped doing it.

3 You see an advert on TV for a new eco-friendly car. What do you probably think?

a If it's a reasonable price I might buy that when I need a new car.

b That's just marketing. It probably pollutes as much as standard cars.

c Not another green message. I'm so bored with these ads.

d It would be better if we all used public transport and bicycles.

4 Which description best reflects your electricity consumption at home?

a I go round switching off the lights – sometimes when people are still in the room.

b We leave all the lights on and have TVs switched on in different rooms.

c I have low-energy light bulbs and energy-efficient appliances. I don't use the dishwasher or the washing machine unless there is a full load.

d I used to be more energy-conscious but I don't think the things I can do will help the environment.

5 When you think about air travel and pollution what do you do?

a Feel guilty about flying and always pay the carbon offset charge* to the airlines.

b Don't feel guilty – it's up to the government and businesses to deal with carbon emissions.

c Feel guilty about flying but don't pay the carbon offset charge to the airlines.

d Know you have made a conscious effort to stop travelling by plane so often.

gas guzzler: car that consumes a lot of fuel waste: unwanted materials or substances carbon offset charge: money donated to environmental projects to compensate for the CO_2 emissions

TALKING POINT In what ways were our parents and grandparents' generations greener than this generation?

8 Second conditional

Reading: Electric cars

1 How do you normally travel to work? Which of these forms of transport is the most/least eco-friendly? (1 = the most friendly). Why do you think that is?

bus skateboard electric scooter train underground car hybrid car bicycle motorbike

2 What do you think are the advantages and disadvantages of driving an electric car? Look at the article about the smart ed and check your ideas.

The smart ed (Electric Drive)

With high fuel prices and carbon emissions*, now is a good time to think about alternative transport to the petrol engine. The people at Smart have designed an all-electric car.

The smart ed is powered only by electricity – charging* it takes about eight hours. The car has a top speed of 60 mph/97 kmph and a range of up to 70 miles/113 km, although this is reduced as your speed increases.

Smart say a trip from London to Brighton (54 m/87 km) will cost you around £1 (€1.26) in the UK. I suspect that the car would get to Brighton, but it wouldn't get back without recharging, and only if you didn't drive over 40 mph/64 kmph.

Smart ed emits no harmful* emissions, although generating the electricity to drive the car will. But the car emits no carbon dioxide, or carbon monoxide, or even noise as you accelerate.

The two-seater smart ed has plenty of room in the front but a very small boot. It's brilliant if you're just driving to work. Great if you have only one passenger. If you were just a couple, you could probably fit a week's shopping in it.

Another problem is charging the car. They recommend you charge the car whenever it is not in use. If you live in a house with a garage that has a supply of electricity, you'll be fine. I do not have a garage, but I live in a house where I can park the car directly outside – so I can put an extension cable out of the window to the car. This is not something I would do overnight or if I were out one evening.

If you had a garage, worked somewhere where you could charge it safely and only wanted to use it for commuting, this would be an ideal second car. But if you are thinking of changing your existing family car for a smart ed, you will probably have to wait a few more years.

emissions: gases like carbon dioxide that are sent into the air charging: take in and store electricity harmful: causing damage or pollution

3 How many words do you know that are related to cars? Find words in the text which mean the following.

1 liquid used to supply power to vehicles (two words)
2 part of a car that produces power to make it move
3 rate at which something moves or travels
4 start to go faster
5 for two people
6 space in the back of the car used for luggage
7 building where you keep a car
8 regularly travelling a long distance to work

4 Discuss these questions.

1 Do people have garages in your area? If not, where do they usually park?

2 Have you ever driven or been in a two-seater, or an electric car? What was it like?

3 Would you drive a smart ed? Why?/Why not? How easy would it be to charge?

Grammar: Second conditional

5 Look at the information in the table. Complete it and choose the correct options.

Second conditional

1 We form second conditional sentences using If + _____, + _____ + base form.

We can change the order of the clauses.

This would be an ideal second car _____ you wanted to use it for commuting.

2 We use the second conditional to talk about 'unreal', imaginary or unlikely possibilities.

If you had a garage, this would be an ideal second car.

3 We can also substitute the modal, would for might or _____ .

If you were just a couple, you could probably fit a week's shopping in it.

4 Sometimes we can use either the zero, first or second conditional. It depends how likely it is.

If you have a garage, this is/will be an ideal second car. (likely / unlikely)

If you had a garage, this would be an ideal second car. (likely / unlikely)

>> For more information on the second conditional, see page 170.

6 A politician is standing for election as mayor. He is being interviewed by some journalists. They are interviewing some local people, too. Complete some of the things they say, forming second or first conditionals.

1 When I'm elected, I _____ (introduce) a bike-sharing system in our town like they have in Paris or Barcelona. I've already included a proposal in the election programme.

2 If I _____ (be) a politician, I would probably reduce the number of cars per household.

3 As soon as I _____ (be) in power, I _____ (pass) a law to reduce the speed limit.

4 Politicians aren't doing enough about carbon emissions. I _____ (encourage) people to use public transport more regularly if I were the mayor.

5 We _____ (not/fine) companies for business travel when I _____ (be) mayor, but we'll run a campaign to reduce air miles.

6 I _____ (probably/ban) big cars like 4x4s if I were in a position of power.

7 I'm a local shop owner. If I were mayor, I _____ (not/charge) drivers for going into the town centre because it _____ (be) bad for my business.

8 We _____ (definitely/put up) car prices for big cars and we _____ (offer) money to citizens if they _____ (stop) driving their old cars.

7 Compare your answers with a partner, then report back to the class. Consider these questions.

a Who said what? The politician or a local person?

b Did they use a first or second conditional? Did they think it was a likely or an unlikely possibility?

We use journey to talk about travelling a long distance or travelling regularly.
She has a long journey to work.
Trips are short journeys or journeys you don't make regularly.
He's not in the office today. He's gone to Brighton on a business trip.
Sometimes we can use either word.
You could use a bicycle for shorter trips/journeys.

Speaking: Eco-friendly travel

8 Work in groups. You are going to do a class survey. If you wanted to be responsible travellers, what would you do? Look at the ideas and prepare ten questions.

1 share a car?
2 cycle everywhere?
3 how/reduce your air miles?
4 stop going abroad?
5 ban 4x4s?
6 how/encourage people/ use public transport?
7 put up petrol prices?
8 how/reduce number of car journeys?
9 what kind of tax/impose on cars?
10 how/reduce the speed limit?

9 Ask and answer the questions. Then report back to your teacher. Which were the most popular ideas?

TALKING POINT

- Would you share a car to commute to work? Why?/Why not?
- What do you think are the pros and cons of a bike-sharing system in a big city like Barcelona or Paris?

Word focus: Talking about problems

1 Think of a problem you are facing at the moment. It can be any problem you like, e.g. you own something that is lost or broken, you have a work problem or a 'people-problem'. Don't tell anyone what your problem is yet.

2 Read an article and see if it contains any ideas that could help you solve your problem.

Problem-solving techniques

Step 1: Identifying the problem

Before you start to tackle any problem, make sure you have a clear understanding of what's wrong. Gather information and, if you discover that you're facing many problems, prioritize them so you can deal with the most urgent ones first.

Step 2: Brainstorming solutions

Try to think of new ways to look at the problem and come up with as many different solutions as you can. Ask other people to suggest solutions, too. Don't worry if some of your options don't look attractive at this stage. You can always reject them later.

Step 3: Making decisions

Examine each option and think about what the consequences will be if you implement it. Remember, no solution is perfect, and you can always revise your plans later. It may take several attempts before you find a solution that works so don't be afraid to take risks.

3 Read the article again and answer these questions.

1 What should you do if you have identified more than one problem?

2 What can you do to help generate more possible solutions?

3 What can you do if your first solution doesn't work?

4 Look at these definitions and put the verbs in the correct space.

work out come up with deal with

1 to do something to make sure the problem no longer exists. _____

2 to find a solution to a problem or make a decision after thinking carefully. _____

3 to think of an idea, answer, etc. _____

5 Underline verbs in the article that are used with a) problem(s), b) solution(s), c) option(s) and plan(s).

6 Tell another student about the problem you thought of in exercise 1. Discuss the best way to tackle it. Which ideas in the article can you use? Think of another idea to add to the article.

Listening: Working together

7 2.9 Listen to a conversation and answer these questions.

1 What relationship do the speakers have?

2 What problem do they discuss?

3 What possible solutions do they discuss?

4 What decision is made?

5 Can you see any possible problems with the solution?

8 Listen again and complete the expressions in the table.

Problem solving
Step 1: Identifying the problem
A: 'Can I have [1] _____ _____ ?'
B: 'Sure, what's [2] _____ ?'
We've got a [3] _____ problem with the photocopiers.
It's a bit of a [4] _____ .
Step 2: Brainstorming solutions
So, [5] _____ if we do a little experiment?
Then we'll know [6] _____ it's a problem with the copiers or the recycled [7] _____ .
Step 3: Making decisions
'I like that idea.'
'It's a [8] _____ .'
'That's right and we can [9] _____ what _____ .'
'We haven't [10] _____ it out yet, but I think I [11] _____ what to do now.'
'That was [12] _____ . Thanks!'

9 Here are some phrases from another problem-solving discussion. In which stage of the discussion do you think you will hear them? What do you think the discussion is about?

a So we have a plan of action now.

b It's a real headache.

c If we buy one second-hand, it'll be cheaper.

d I'm glad you thought of that.

e Not if we borrowed against the house.

10 2.10 Listen and find out if you are right. Then answer the questions in exercise 7 for this conversation.

Speaking: We can work it out

11 Work in small groups. Discuss these scenarios and come up with a plan of action.

1 One person describes the problem.

2 Think of as many solutions as possible and then discuss each option and its consequences.

3 Make a decision and sum up each discussion at the end.

Office temperature

The room temperature is causing many arguments in your office. Some employees say it's too hot, some too cold. Your heating and air conditioning bills are very high. As office managers, how are you going to keep everyone happy and also keep your bills down?

Old IT equipment

You have a lot of old computers and IT equipment which you need to dispose of. There is a lot of data on the hard disks, so security is an issue. On the other hand, the equipment still works well so it could be useful to other people. What can you do with it?

Recycling

Your organization has a six-storey office block with a recycling collection point in the basement. Every individual employee has to bring all their waste there and sort it into one of twelve categories. Employees are complaining that the collection point is too far from their desks and they don't know which bins to put things in.

Writing: Presenting solutions

12 Write some PowerPoint slides presenting a solution to a problem to your colleagues. You can write about one of the problems in exercise 11 or choose your own problem. Include the information below.

1 A description of the problem

2 Some different options and their consequences

3 The decision you've made and why you think it's the best solution

8 Interaction Planning a green office

Reminder

Grammar reference pages 169 and 170

We use conditional sentences to talk about the real, likely or unlikely consequences of an action or event.

If we improve the ventilation, staff will feel better and be happier at work.

If the roads were safer, I would cycle to work.

When we're discussing problems and possible solutions we can use several expressions:

We've got a little problem ...

So what/how about if we do a little experiment?

Speaking: A new look

1 What are the advantages and disadvantages of open-plan offices compared with walled offices in your experience? Use these words to help you compare the two.

privacy communication individual space noise and interruptions walls access to fresh air ability to control heating and lighting access to natural light

2 Complete these sentences using one of these words.

soundproof screen renovate perimeter refurbish partition cubicle

1 When you _____ or _____ a building or an office you repair and decorate it so that it is in good condition again.

2 A _____ room or wall, etc. is one that noise cannot pass out of or into.

3 The _____ is the border of an enclosed area, such as an office or car park.

4 A _____ is a thin wall that separates one part of a room from another. If this wall can be moved around it is called a _____.

5 A _____ is a small part of a room separated from the rest of the room for individual use.

3 Look at the two photos. Which of the three descriptions match the photos?

A Meguro Office

Japanese design team Nendo created this office space in Tokyo by using giant U-shaped partitions. It redesigns the traditional office space structures of cubicles and conference rooms. You have to step over the lowest point in the partition to get from one section of the office to another. Spaces that need some privacy are separated by soundproof plastic curtains.

B Olanto Call Centre

Olanto's refurbished office space in San Francisco has reduced electricity consumption by 40% and water consumption by 30% and has created a healthier and more productive work environment for employees. The office is mainly open plan, with high screens providing privacy for administrative and management staff. A moveable wall system allows training rooms to be divided into smaller meeting rooms.

C Devalon Headquarters

Devalon successfully converted this old factory into modern, open-plan offices. Many original features, such as the brick arches, have been conserved. A glass wall at one end of the building and skylights in the roof make use of natural light and create a bright environment for all employees. The split-level design makes excellent use of space and offers a meeting area for teams away from their desks.

4 Which of these offices would you most/least like to work in and why?

5 Work in pairs. Look at this office that needs to be renovated. Discuss what you would do to refurbish it. Which ideas would be the most expensive?

Listening: Sustainable offices

6 2.11 Listen to an architect giving a presentation to a group of company managers about green office design. In what order does she mention these points?

a materials used to build and furnish the office

b travelling to the building

c conservation of water

d quality of light and air

e saving energy

7 Listen to her presentation again and complete these notes from the meeting.

Ways to reduce the negative environmental impact of an office and improve conditions for the occupants:

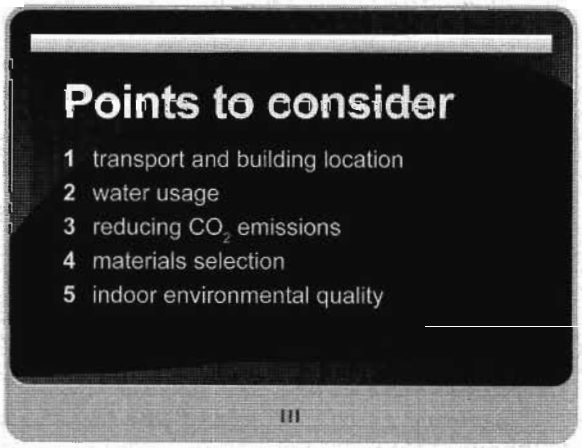
- The building should be easy to get to on foot, by bike and by [1] _____ _____.
- The good use and saving of water is a priority.
- Carbon emissions are controlled by using [2] _____ equipment.
- The office is built using [3] _____ _____ and organic and low chemical-emitting paints and products.
- Access to [4] _____ _____ and improved ventilation makes people feel better and increases productivity.

The extra costs of building a green office should be paid back through savings in [5] _____ _____. For example, the software maker Adobe Systems spent $ [6] _____ million on a green office project at its San Jose headquarters and earned that back in savings in less than 10 months.

Speaking: A greener place to work

8 Work in groups of three. You are the project team responsible for refurbishing the office where you work to make it greener. Student A: Turn to File 8, page 133. Student B: Turn to File 19, page 136. Student C: Turn to File 26, page 138.

9 Discuss your proposals and the possible consequences of each, and decide which ideas you want to implement first and which you will leave for a second stage. Decide who is going to lead the meeting.



10 In your groups, prepare five PowerPoint slides to explain your proposal.

Reading: The cellphone novel

1 Would you like to read a novel on your mobile phone? Why?/Why not?

2 Read these sentences about phone books in Japan and predict the missing information. Then read the article quickly and check your answers.

1 Last year _____ of Japan's top ten novels were originally mobile novels.
2 The top _____ novels were all written by new authors.
3 Nearly _____ US dollars a year is spent on electronic books in the country.
4 It's estimated that there are _____ mobile phones in Japan.
5 It costs between _____ and _____ to buy a mobile novel.
6 _____ films were shown at Japan's first mobile phone film festival.

3 Read the article again and answer the questions.

1 How did one author find time to write her cellphone novel?
2 When and where are people typically reading Keitai novels?
3 Why did one woman change her opinion about Keitai novels?
4 What three elements do most mobile phones now have?
5 What can you do with the latest models of mobile phone?
6 Which two innovations have made it easier to read comics on the mobile?

Japan ♥ phone books

The cellphone novel, or Keitai novel, is now a big part of Japanese popular culture. Half of last year's top ten bestselling novels originated from the (very) small screen and the top three books were all written by first-time cellphone authors. One bestselling novel was tapped out* on a mobile phone while the young author commuted to work, then uploaded to her blog.

The mass media*, which uses the phrase 'oya yubi seddai', the thumb generation* to describe Japan's cellphone users, is now asking: are real novels dead? It was recently estimated that the market for e-books was nearly 20 billion yen ($200m), and it is growing by more than 200 per cent a year. The books are being read in cafés, during work breaks and during Japan's famously long commutes to work.

'I thought the idea of a Keitai novel was a bit dumb because the screens are so small,' said Eriko Saito, 25. 'But you quickly get into them because the stories are so irresistible.'

The mobile phone is Japan's most popular accessory – there are now 100 million of them in circulation. Standard features* include internet browsers, games and digital cameras, while newer models are used to watch television, go through train-ticket barriers and pay bills. Bigger screens and faster downloads have made manga comics* increasingly possible. Thousands of Japanese books are now being accessed for about 210 to 450 yen ($2.10 to $4.50) each – cheaper than a paperback book.

'Is the cellphone the library of the future?' asked one magazine. Perhaps it might become the new cinema, too. Japan's first Pocket Film Festival has recently been launched in Yokohama, screening 400 movies made on camera-equipped cellphones.

tapped out: written mass media: television, radio and newspapers thumb generation: people, who as adolescents communicated by text messaging on mobiles standard features: typical parts manga comics: Japanese comic books.

Grammar: Passive forms

4 Complete the sentences from the article in the table below. Then complete the rules.

Passive forms

1 To form passives, we use the appropriate tense of the verb _____ and the _____ form of the main verb.

When we want to say who did an action, we use the preposition _____ .

2 We use passives when we are more interested in what happens to someone or something than who does it.

Newer models _____ _____ to watch television.

(We are more interested in the new models than who uses them.)

Japan's first Pocket Film Festival _____ recently _____ _____ in Yokohama.

(We are more interested in the Film Festival than who launched it.)

3 We often use passives when we don't know who did the action.

Thousands of Japanese books _____ now _____ _____ for about 210 to 450 yen.

(We don't know who is accessing them.)

The top three books _____ all _____ by first-time cellphone authors.

(We don't know who wrote them.)

>> For more information on the passive form, see page 170.

Speaking: Mobile facts and figures

5 Work in pairs. Student A: Read the facts and figures about mobile phones below. Student B: Turn to File 35, page 140 for your version of the facts and figures. Ask your partner questions to complete the missing information in your text.

Student A:

1. The first call on a mobile phone was made by Dr Martin Cooper of Motorola, in _____ (when?). He called his rival at AT&T's Bell Labs in New York.
2. In December 1992 the first SMS text message was sent on Vodafone's network.
3. Around _____ text messages (how many?) are sent worldwide each day.
4. Chatting on your mobile phone is forbidden in 'quiet' train carriages in the UK.
5. The train's windows are covered with _____ (what?) that blocks phone signals.
6. The world's most expensive mobile phone number is 666 6666. It was sold for 10m riyals ($2.75m) at a charity auction in Qatar.
7. The ring tone was first launched _____ (where?) in 1998.
8. The first full internet service on mobile phones was introduced in 1999 and was called i-Mode.
9. As early mobile phones were too large to carry they were installed in _____ (where?).
10. A standard charger for mobile phones was agreed in February 2009 by the GSM Association.

TALKING POINT

- What other inventions have changed the world? In what way?
- Which invention do you think has been the most useful? Why?

9 Active or passive

Reading: Online social networking

1 What's the most important web technology that you use each day? Discuss some of these ideas in pairs.

email social networking blogs customer forums chatrooms downloading music files consulting the company intranet photo sharing listening to podcasts online gaming

2 What are the advantages and disadvantages of using the internet at work? Does anybody not use the internet at work? Read the article and compare your answers.

Social networking sites – opportunity or threat?

Social networking sites are the next big change for the internet. What are they exactly? They are online ways of social networking (YouTube, Myspace, Facebook, LinkedIn, etc.) which have been made as interactive as possible.

Not surprisingly this new technology is being adopted by many companies. Employees are encouraged to access employee blogs, customer forums, multimedia content and self-created encyclopaedias (wikis).

A recent survey of these social networking sites shows that more than 39% of people are typically accessing such a site for more than an hour a day. This is especially true for 16 to 25-year-olds. These Web technologies can be accessed at work. Now during the working day not only personal emails are being sent. These days photos, music files and videos can also be shared between colleagues and friends.

As with all new technologies, there are issues for companies. First of all, privacy is threatened*. Professional information can be stolen on the web. There is a danger that photographs and private information could be used without permission. There is also the issue of financial cost: increased use of the company's computer system for private networking means that employee productivity has been decreased.

This is not just a problem for a few techies*. Use of social networking technologies at work needs to be controlled.

threaten: likely to be harmed or destroyed techies: (informal) people working in or very interested in IT

Grammar: Active or passive

3 How many examples of the passive can you find in the text? Which tenses are used?

4 Read the information in the table and choose the correct options.

Active or passive

1 We tend to use the passive form more often when writing / speaking. But sometimes both active and passive forms are possible.

This new technology is being adopted by many companies. (active / passive)

Many companies are adopting this new technology. (active / passive)

2 We usually use the active / passive when we don't know, or don't want to say, who is responsible for an action.

Use of social networking technologies at work needs to be controlled.

3 We can also use it to sound more formal in emails, reports, research papers, newspaper articles and manuals.

Privacy is threatened. (formal / less formal)

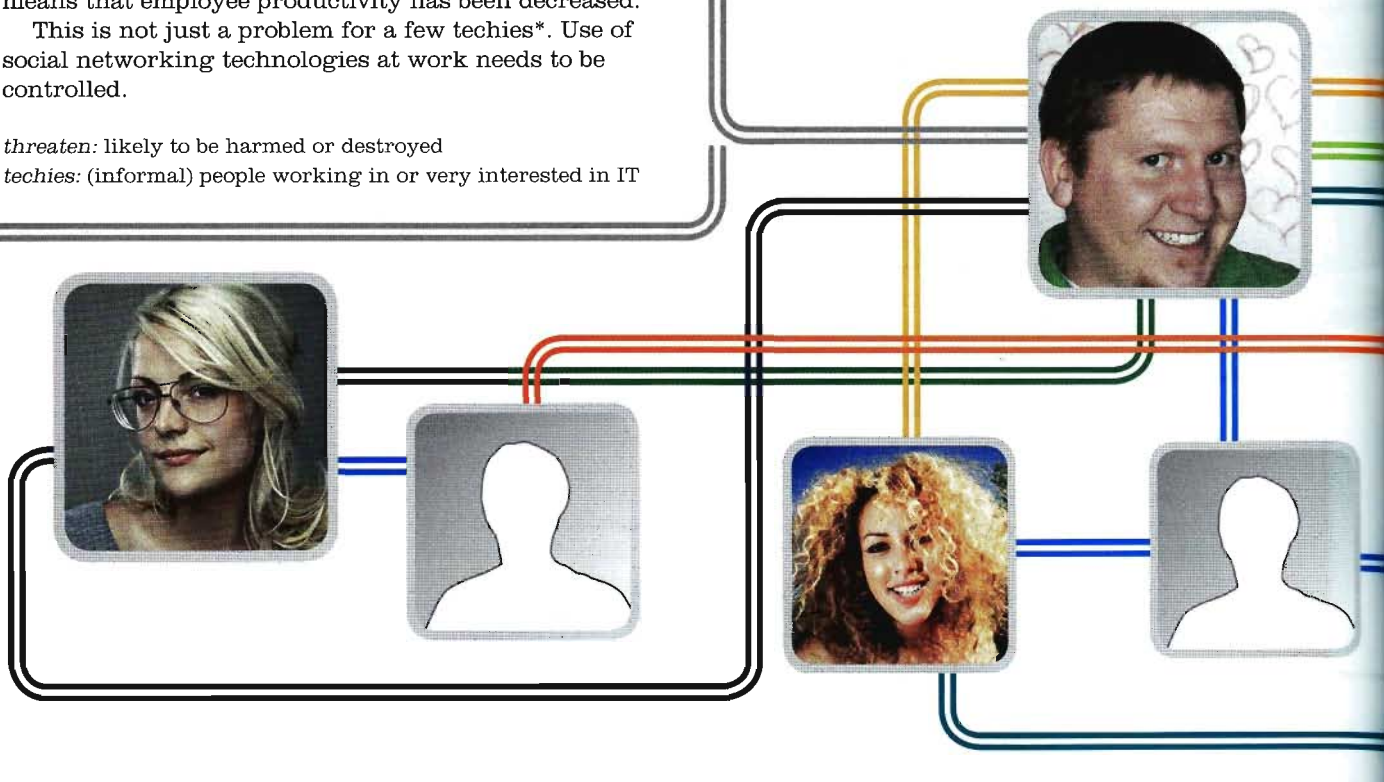
Social networking sites threaten our privacy. (formal / less formal)

4 We usually use the active / passive when we want to sound more informal in emails and letters, text messages, notes, adverts, stories and newspaper articles.

Anyone could use this private information without permission. (formal / less formal)

Private information could be used without permission. (formal / less formal)

>> For more information on the passive form, see page 170.



5 Which form sounds best? Sometimes both the active and passive are possible.

1 a Researchers in Tokyo have developed Saya, the robotic receptionist.
b Saya, the robotic receptionist, has been developed by researchers in Tokyo.

2 a A rescue team rescued two backpackers in the Italian Alps yesterday.
b Two backpackers were rescued in the Italian Alps yesterday.

3 a Mix well until the mixture drops easily off the spoon.
b The mixture is stirred well until it easily drops off the spoon.

4 a I'm afraid one of our employees has accidentally deleted the file.
b I'm afraid the file has been accidentally deleted.

5 a A hacker infected the official website of the singer with a virus.
b The official website of the singer was infected with a virus.

6 a Someone has trained our employees to use the latest new technologies.
b Our employees have been trained to use the latest new technologies.

7 a Then repeat step 2 of the process.
b Step 2 of the process is then repeated.

6 Where do you think the extracts in exercise 5 are from? An email, newspaper or manual? Anything else? What?

Speaking: A union meeting

7 What is the internet policy in your company or organization? Is the employee's internet access or use restricted in any way?

8 Work in small groups. Group A: You are a group of managers who want to restrict employee use of the internet. Brainstorm reasons why employees should have limited access. Group B: You are a group of employees. Brainstorm reasons why employees should have freedom to use the internet.

9 Managers, meet with your employees at a union meeting to discuss your differences of opinion and to come to a fair agreement.

Writing: Notes on a meeting

10 You are the union representative. Write an email to employees on the outcome of the meeting using these notes.

Main concerns:

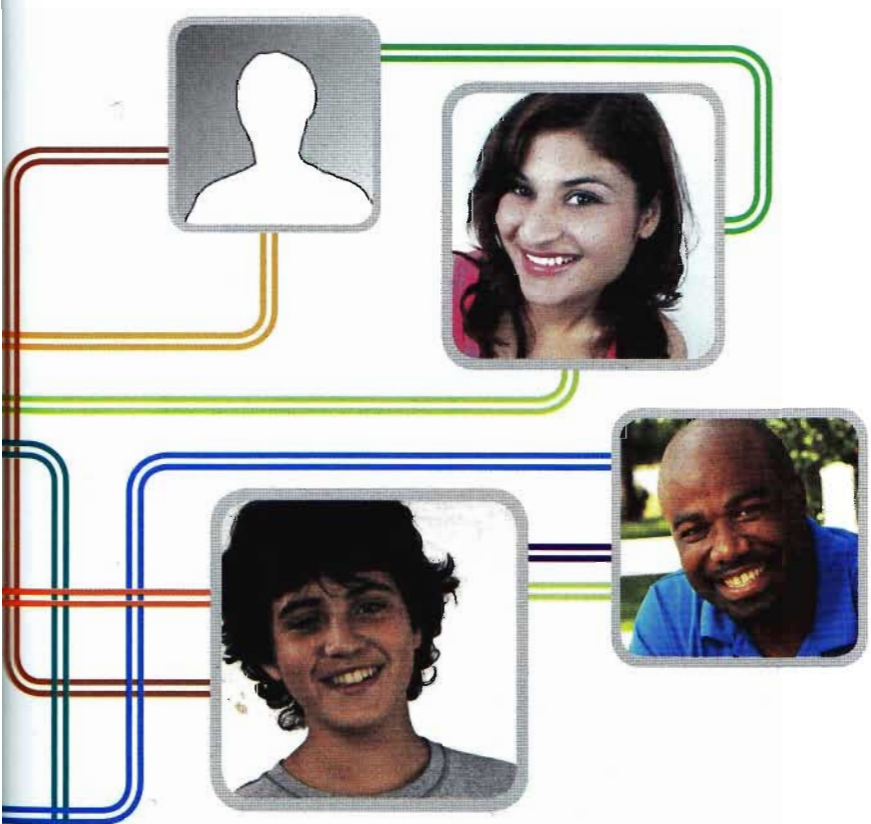
Some employees are spending a lot of work time doing personal jobs and entertaining themselves on the internet.
The company is losing productivity.
Staff can write personal emails and go online at any time.
Employees might access inappropriate websites.

Points to consider:

Recent research shows that staff who take a break to surf are more productive!
We should encourage employees to improve their web skills.
We must allow staff some personal freedom.

Action to be taken:

We have to give staff set times for internet use.
We need to discipline employees when they misuse the internet.
We can't ban web use at work – this will be counter-productive.



TALKING POINT
- When did you last visit a social networking site? What did you do?
- How popular are these sites in your culture?

Word focus: Telephoning phrasal verbs

1 Which of these communication methods do you most/least prefer when speaking in English? Why? Something else, what?

email phone text messaging face-to-face webcam

2 2.12 What three tips would you give to someone for dealing with phone calls in English? Listen to these people and compare your ideas. Which of the telephoning tips do you find the most/least useful? Why?

3 Listen again to the tips and write down the phrasal verbs you hear. What do you think they mean?

Speaker 1 If you know what you're going to say before you [1] p_____ _____ the phone, it makes it easier.

Speaker 2 Take a deep breath before you [2] p_____ someone _____ .
[3] H_____ _____ a minute, please.

Speaker 4 I always ask the receptionist to [9] p_____ the caller _____ to a meeting room.
If I don't understand something, I [10] p_____ the caller _____ _____ .

4 Choose the correct phrasal verb in these sentences. Which of the people are talking on the phone?

1 I'm sorry. Ted is at lunch right now. Could you call up / phone back later?

2 That phone keeps ringing. Someone should pick it up / ring me up.

3 I'm afraid we're unable to answer your call now. But if you leave your name and number, we'll get back to / get through to you as soon as we can.

4 When I mentioned the unpaid invoice, our client was very rude and held on / hung up!

5 I'm sorry. She's out of the office today. But I can get through to / put you through to her assistant.

6 When I ring up / call back their customer service department, they always put on hold / put me on hold for ages.

7 Could you keep the noise down, please? I speak up / am on the phone.

8 The reference number? Hold on / Wait on a minute, please, I'll just check it.

5 When was the last time you made or took a phone call in English? What happened?

Listening: Improving your phone manner

6 2.13 Listen to four phone calls. What are the callers doing in each conversation?

a identifying herself/himself and explaining the reason for calling

b getting through to a voicemail

c confirming arrangements and ending a call

d leaving a recorded message

7 Which phone calls were the most/least effective? Why?

8 2.14 Listen to the voicemail again. How could you improve it? A: Prepare a personal voicemail. B: Prepare a voicemail for your company/organization.

9 Compare your voicemail scripts with the ones in File 40, page 140. Record them if possible.

10 2.15 How can you identify yourself on the phone? Listen again to calls two and three and complete what the callers say.

Call two

1 _____, _____ Amrit _____ _____ Nano-tech Systems in Delhi.

2 _____ _____ _____ equipment we ordered from you last month.

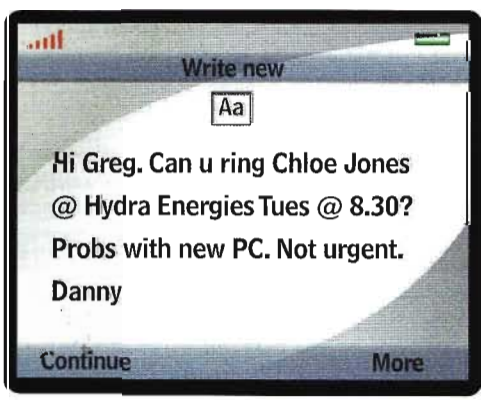
Call three

3 I'd _____ _____ _____ _____ Steve, please.

4 _____ _____ Chloe Jones _____ Hydra Energies.

5 _____ _____ _____ the software you installed for us recently.

11 2.16 Listen again to call four and correct Danny's text message. How did they end the call?



12 Put these telephoning expressions under the correct heading. All of them are from calls 1 to 4. What other expressions do you know?

a Could you call me back ...

b Was there anything else?

c I'm afraid we're not available ...

d This is Chloe Jones from ...

e I'll tell him you called.

f Is that the IT department?

g Thanks for calling.

Telephoning

Voicemail

1 _____ right now.

Could you please leave a message after the tone/beep?

Identifying yourself and explaining the reason for calling

Hello, it's Amrit here from Delhi.

2 _____

I'm phoning / calling about ...

Asking for someone

3 _____

I'd like to speak to Steve, please.

Leaving and taking messages

4 _____ as soon as you can?

5 _____

Ending a call

6 _____

If there's anything else, just call me on my mobile, OK?

7 _____

It's good doing business with you.

13 Test each other in pairs. Say the first two or three words of an expression and ask your partner to complete the sentence.

Speaking: Ring ring

14 Work in pairs. Prepare a better phone call between Chloe and Steve. Sit back-to-back and act it out.

15 Roleplay some phone calls in pairs. If you take a message, write down any important information. Give your real name and number when necessary. Student A: Turn to File 14, page 134. Student B: Turn to File 28, page 138.

TALKING POINT What's your biggest fear? Speaking on the phone in English? Speaking in public in any language? Spiders? Flying? Anything else? What?

Listening: Spoken requests

1 Look at the photos and read the situation for each one. What do you think the people are saying?

1 Directions
Alex, a Spanish business visitor, needs directions. He asks a company employee.

2 Snack Bar
Horst, a German tourist, is on holiday in the UK. He goes to a snack bar.

3 Class Trip
A teacher asks her students to help organize the class trip.

2 2.17 Listen to the conversations. What was the communication problem in each situation, a or b?

1 a Alex sounds too direct.
b The person doesn't understand Alex's request.
2 a Horst doesn't sound polite.
b Horst sounds odd because he is being too formal.
3 a The teacher sounds rude.
b Pieter doesn't give a reason when he says 'no' and sounds unhelpful.

3 Look at the audio scripts from exercise 2 on page 154. Make any necessary changes to the dialogues and then act them out in pairs.

4 2.18 The level of directness in a request depends on the request and the relationship between the speakers. Listen to four pairs of requests. Which request do you hear first, a or b?

Situation 1: a coffee a a regular customer to a waiter
b a new member of staff to a work colleague

Situation 2: a technical problem a a caller trying to get through b a supplier talking to a business contact

Situation 3: an arrangement a someone talking to a business visitor
b a husband talking to his wife

Situation 4: helping out a two friends
b a boss and employee

5 Listen again and complete the requests in the table.

Requests

Making requests
The request forms we choose generally depend on the size of the request, but also who we are talking to.

People we know well and strangers
With people we know very well and have a close relationship with, and also with strangers, we tend to use short, simple requests.

1 A caffè latte, _____ .
2 _____ one for technical assistance.
3 _____ leave around four, OK?
4 _____ _____ use yours?

People in the middle ground
With people who fall in the middle ground, we tend to use longer requests.

5 _____ _____ _____ _____ I help myself to coffee?
6 _____ _____ _____ OK to use the Canon projector for my presentation?
7 Do you _____ _____ at four?
8 _____ _____ _____ _____ could send me those pdf files?

6 How did the people reply to the requests in exercise 5? Look at the table. Underline the expressions below that were used.

Responding to requests

Saying 'yes'
OK. / Fine. / That's fine. / That'll be fine. / No problem. / Certainly. / Coming up. / Sure. Go ahead. / Of course, that'll be fine.

Saying 'no'
Sorry, but… / I'm afraid + clause./ Actually, … / The thing is …

7 Match these requests to the correct responses.

1 Oh dear, my computer's crashed again.	a Sure, what's up?
2 Do you mind if I leave early tomorrow?	b Yes, would you like to see it?
3 Would it be OK to borrow your ID card?	c OK, let's take a break.
4 Do you think you could go over that again?	d No problem. I'll bring it in tomorrow.
5 Can I borrow that DVD?	e Certainly. The code is XK-32W550-Q.
6 Do you have a moment?	f Here, let me help you.
7 Is that a new networking site?	g Actually, we have a lot of work to do.
8 I'm feeling a bit tired. Shall we have a coffee?	h Sorry, but security is very strict here.

Speaking: Making requests

8 Read the information. Work in pairs. Make requests starting with the ideas below.

Indirect requests

Sometimes people may avoid asking for something directly. They may hint and then the other person may offer to help.

A: The News is starting now on channel 6. B: Would you like to watch it?

It's easier to refuse an indirect request.

A: Are you watching the football match? B: Yes, I am.

1 That book looks interesting. (I want to borrow it.)

2 I didn't have much for lunch. (I want to have dinner now.)

3 Is that dessert good? (I'd like to try some of it.)

4 Oh no, I've forgotten to bring a pen. (I'd like to borrow your pen.)

5 Oh no, I have a problem with the printer. (I need someone to help me.)

6 It's hot in here, isn't it? (I'd like you to put the air conditioning on.)

7 Are you busy? (I've got some questions I need to ask you.)

! We say I'm sorry but ... when we give a reason for saying 'no'. We can also say Sorry and then make a new sentence.

I'm sorry*, but I'm very busy at the moment.*

Sorry*. We're closed on Saturdays.*

We use I'm afraid (that) + clause.

I'm afraid (that) I'm very busy at the moment.

I'm afraid you'll have to come back tomorrow.

9 Work in pairs. Roleplay these requests. Before you start, think about your relationship and the size of the request. Student A: Look at the information here. Student B: Turn to File 12, page 134.

Student A:

1 You are a student in an English class. Agree to your friend's request.

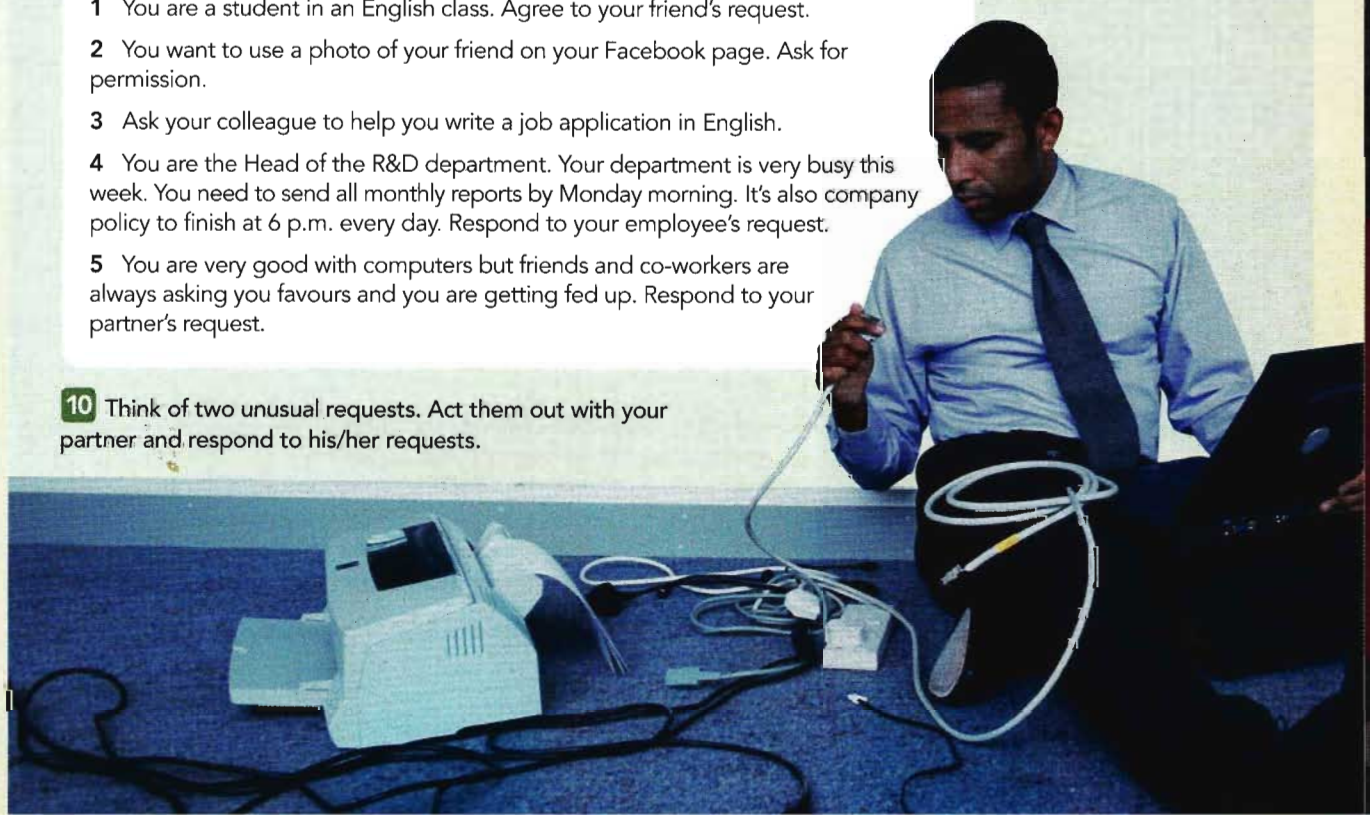
2 You want to use a photo of your friend on your Facebook page. Ask for permission.

3 Ask your colleague to help you write a job application in English.

4 You are the Head of the R&D department. Your department is very busy this week. You need to send all monthly reports by Monday morning. It's also company policy to finish at 6 p.m. every day. Respond to your employee's request.

5 You are very good with computers but friends and co-workers are always asking you favours and you are getting fed up. Respond to your partner's request.

10 Think of two unusual requests. Act them out with your partner and respond to his/her requests.



Reminder

Grammar reference page 170

We use the passive when we are interested in the action, not who does it.

The photos can be uploaded.

We use the passive when we don't know who is responsible for an action.

All the containers will be shipped back.

Small requests are generally short.

A cup of coffee, please.

Is it OK if I call you this evening?

Bigger requests are generally longer and may need explanation.

I know you're busy, but this is urgent. Do you think you could phone them?

Reading: Remote workers

1 Remote and virtual team management has become the norm for many organizations. What is a remote manager?

2 Quickly read these interviews from a college magazine for alumni. Where are they now and what do they do?

3 Work in twos or threes. Read about the alumni again and explain their work to your partner/group. How do they communicate virtually in their jobs?

4 What are the advantages and disadvantages of working remotely? Do you, or would you like to, work remotely?

Where are they now?

We interviewed some alumni* from all over the world who work remotely.

Tanya Wang, MA Art

I'm an artist and I have just been commissioned to coordinate a big project. The work is located on a big site based in Hong Kong, where we've put 50 freight* containers and invited 50 artists to paint on the surfaces of the containers. Later, the containers will be sailed around the world. Then all the containers will be shipped back to Hong Kong for another exhibition. I have to liaise with all the artists and arrange shipment of the containers via email and Skype. This is an ambitious project that involves a lot of virtual communication including video and teleconference.

Lauren West, BA Multimedia Studies

I work for Google Street View, the site where anyone can go online and look at images of streets and the people on them. I live in a small town in Canada but my remote manager is based in Toronto. My job is to change the photos that are taken. Individuals' faces and car licence plates have to be obscured by pixilation, that kind of thing. And then the photos can be uploaded. I mostly communicate with my supervisor and colleagues on the intranet and I'm left to get on with* the work, which is great. The only time we don't work remotely is when we have meetings or training in Toronto once a month.

Lidia Popescu, Bsc Information Technology

I'm a software developer and I work for a telephone company that's based in Oslo. My remote manager is currently working in India and I have colleagues in Paris, London and Frankfurt. Our manager trusts us and expects us to take the initiative. I communicate with him using email, Instant Messenger and the phone. Team meetings are held via videoconference. We're given a lot of autonomy.

alumni: former students of a college or university freight: goods that are carried by ship get on with: let someone do something on their own, without help

Listening: Working virtually

5 Read this report about managing remote teams and add these headings.

Using technology Building teams Management style

Managing and working remotely

1 _____

A high degree of trust is needed between the remote manager and the employee. Here are some of the main points:

- staff need to be informed of clear performance targets and short-term goals
- staff should be given regular and positive feedback
- remote teams need regular communication and team meetings – virtual and face-to-face, whenever feasible
- phone calls should include personal/social content and not purely business
- remote workers are in danger of developing the 'Superman' syndrome – a balance between control and autonomy is needed

2 _____

Electronic communication methods need to be user-friendly. New multimedia tools should be used, and adequate training provided.

3 _____

Too much use of technology can isolate people from their colleagues and business partners. Steps need to be taken to ensure teams meet together. When most day-to-day work is carried out virtually, face-to-face meetings can be sociable and highly productive.

6 2.19 The interviewees from exercise 2 were asked about the challenges of working remotely. Listen and underline in the report above the ideas they mention.

7 Who seems to enjoy working virtually the most/least?

Speaking: Do me a favour

8 2.20 It is Wednesday morning in Oslo and Lidia phones her boss, Erik in India. Listen to the call and tick (✓) the things Lidia does on her list.

Wednesday 21 April

1 Check Erik got the updated user manual
2 Tell Erik I won't have all proposals ready until Friday
3 Suggest face-to-face meeting with team
4 Confirm when Erik's back in Oslo

9 Listen again. What does Erik ask Lidia to do? What was the problem with their phone conversation?

Ask Lidia to ...

1 Send me project proposals today!
2 Phone project managers
3 Set up videoconference with team
4 Upload new software on intranet
5 Send me new user manual

10 Work in pairs and prepare and act out a better phone conversation between Lidia and Erik. Student A: You are Lidia. Student B: You are Erik. Turn to File 27, page 138.

11 Change roles and roleplay the phone call again. This time, Erik agrees to set up a face-to-face meeting with the team, including a discussion about working remotely. Which issues would you like to talk about? Prepare the call and then act it out.

Review 7–9

1 Complete this story. Put the verbs in brackets in the correct tense: either past simple, past continuous or past.

Shoppers in Canterbury were alarmed to see a 1.5m boa constrictor in the busy town centre on Thursday. One shopper, Esther Clark said, 'I [1]_____ (talk) to my sister when we [2]_____ (notice) some people [3]_____ (take) photos of something in the road. We [4]_____ (cannot) believe our eyes'.

Police later [5]_____ (discover) that the boa, called Snakespeare,[6]_____ (escape) from his cage in his owner's garage and [7]_____ (get) under the car. When his owner, David Shaw, drove to work in the morning, the reptile [8]_____ (go) into town with him.

Mr Shaw explained; 'While I [9]_____ (drive) home from work, I [10]_____ (hear) on the radio that something [11]_____ (happen) in the centre that morning, but I [12]_____ (not catch) the details. Then, I [13]_____ (get) home and [14]_____ (see) that his cage was empty, but I [15]_____ (not panic) at first. I [16]_____ (look) around the garage for him when my wife [17]_____ (come) home and told me that they [18]_____ (find) a boa on the street. I [19]_____ (have to) go to the police station to collect him. It [20]_____ (be) a bit embarrassing'.

2 Match the two parts of these famous proverbs to form zero conditional sentences.

1 If at first you don't succeed,	a do as the Romans do.
2 If a thing is worth doing,	b get out of the kitchen.
3 If you want a thing done well,	c the mice will play.
4 When in Rome,	d try, try again.

Reading: Daily dilemmas

1 How up-to-date is your CV? What information does it contain? Do you have several versions of your CV? How are they different?

2 Read this newspaper column Daily Dilemmas. Who is Lee McQueen and what did he do?

One reader asks the question: 'Is it ever OK to lie on your CV?'

Readers will be familiar with the popular reality TV show The Apprentice in which candidates compete to become an apprentice to a top businessperson. One contestant, Lee McQueen, lied on his CV and was caught. He said he had spent longer at university than he had. Despite this revelation, McQueen wasn't expelled* from The Apprentice and actually went on to win the show.

It makes great reality TV but is lying to a potential employer acceptable in the real world? 'No, definitely not' says employment expert Rowan Manahan. 'The message you send if you lie on your CV is people can't trust* you, especially if you aren't telling the truth about something as fundamental as your education. It's very easy for recruiters to run a background check and verify most of the information on your CV. If you don't have the necessary experience or education, then don't apply for that job.

expelled: forced to leave trust: believe, depend on 3 What is your opinion of Lee McQueen's action? Do you agree with Rowan Manahan? Can you think of any acceptable reasons for lying on a CV?

4 Read these messages on the Daily Dilemmas message board. Who do you agree with?

Today's question: Is it ever OK to lie on your CV?

MESSAGE 1 – POSTED BY KARL

I've told lies on my resume* before and it's actually worked. None of the lies were really crazy, but more an extension of the truth. Once I said I was an expert in Photoshop when I was just OK. I think we need to exaggerate a little and use a little marketing language to get an interview. What's important in the end is how well you do the job.

MESSAGE 2 – POSTED BY ROWAN MANAHAN

Karl – You were very lucky. If the interviewers had been good at their job, they wouldn't have given you the position. Imagine if they had asked a couple of in-depth technical questions, they would have discovered the truth. Or a quick test would have shown that you weren't as good as you claimed. You would have lost all credibility.

resume: CV – mainly used in American English

5 Which message in exercise 4 is talking about real past events? Which is imagining a different past?

Grammar: Third conditional

6 Read the information in the table and underline the examples of the third conditional in exercise 4.

Third conditional

We form the third conditional using If + past perfect + would have + past participle.

We use the third conditional when we want to imagine a different past from the reality, and to express criticism and regret about events and situations in the past.

If I had been Lee McQueen, I would have been very embarrassed.

They wouldn't have known about his lie if they hadn't phoned the university.

>> For more information on the third conditional, see page 170.

7 Read some more messages on the board and complete them using the third conditional form and the verbs in brackets.

MESSAGE 3 – POSTED BY ANON

If I [1] _____ (be) in Karl's position, I [2] _____ (do) the same. I'm sure recruiters know that smarter candidates exaggerate a bit on their CVs to get the job. If he [3] _____ (know) nothing about the software, he [4] _____ (have) problems doing his job.

MESSAGE 4 – POSTED BY SANDRA

My sister [5] _____ (not get) her first job in radio if she [6] _____ (not claim) that she already had some experience. She never got caught – and removed the false job from her resume as soon as she had real experience.

MESSAGE 5 – POSTED BY TARIK

I once read about a chief executive who lied about having an MBA. He lost his bonus but kept his job. My question is, [7] _____ the company _____ (fire) him if he [8] _____ (not be) the boss?

8 2.21 How would you pronounce the conditional sentences in exercise 7? Listen and repeat the pronunciation.

Speaking: What would you have done?

9 Read Vanessa's anecdote. Say what you would or wouldn't have done if you had been a) Vanessa, b) her friend, c) the HR manager, d) her boss.

I once applied for a job that required a degree but I didn't have one. I hadn't even been to university but I gave the name of a college and a fake telephone number on my resume. And I got the job. A week or two later, Human Resources called me at my new desk and told me that the number I gave wasn't working. So, I gave them the number of a friend of mine, Saskia. I told her that they were going to call and that all she had to do was confirm my attendance at the college and say I had a degree. Well, Saskia felt uneasy about lying for me but she agreed to help in the end. Then I felt bad about putting her in this position so I went to the HR manager and told him the truth.

10 2.22 What do you think happened to Vanessa in the end? Listen and find out if you are right.

TALKING POINT

- What makes a good resume?

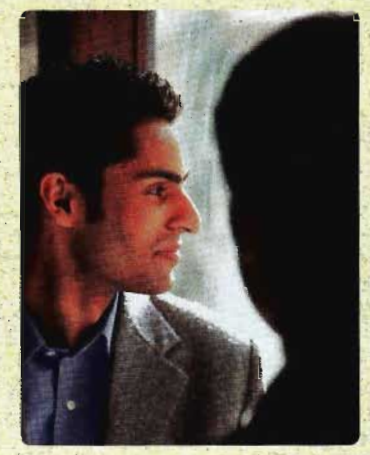
Word focus: Money

1 When was the last time you lent someone something? What was it?

2 Read this story about lending money to friends. Would you lend the money to Dan? Why?/Why not?

Money & Friendship



Kumar and Dan have been close friends since college. Kumar thinks that Dan has been a good friend in many ways. Kumar borrowed Dan's car when his broke down and Dan helped him move from one apartment to another. But Kumar has given similar help to Dan over the years.

Dan, who is manager of a small bookstore in the city, has been working on his first novel. Kumar is supportive of Dan's first major literary project. Dan has heard about a small house in a quiet area. He thinks the house would provide an ideal working environment for him.

Recently Dan asked Kumar to lend him $5,000 for the down payment* on the house. But the request surprised Kumar. Neither Kumar nor Dan has ever asked for a loan until now. Kumar and Dan never talk about their personal finances with each other.

Kumar, who works as a project manager for an engineering firm, can afford to lend the money to Dan. Kumar is not sure, however, exactly how Dan plans to pay a mortgage* when interest rates are so high, and repay the loan on his modest salary as a bookstore manager. Kumar feels uncomfortable asking Dan how he plans to repay the money, or when he hopes to pay it back.

down payment: the first payment made when you repay a large debt mortgage: when you borrow money from a bank to pay for your home

3 Work in pairs. Which word is the odd one out? Underline it. Then compare and justify your answers with a partner.

1 saving up spending buying
2 borrow take return
3 interest mortgage debt
4 repay lend pay back
5 credit card notes cash
6 down payment loan deposit
7 can afford can't afford have enough money
8 bank lender finance

4 Complete the questions using words from exercise 3 in the correct form and then discuss them.

1 When was the last time you _____ something from someone? What was it?
2 What expensive item would you like to buy but _____ to?
3 What would you do if a friend borrowed €20 from you but didn't _____ it _____?
4 When do you have to pay a deposit or _____?
5 How much _____ would you lend to someone who you didn't know very well?
6 Are you _____ for anything special at the moment? What?

Listening: Different points of view

5 2.23 Listen to Dan explaining his point of view to another friend. Tick (✓) the things Dan mentions. Has he paid back the money?

1 Dan got a loan from the bank for the down payment.
2 If Kumar had been in the same situation, he would have lent him the money.
3 Dan wasn't able to pay Kumar back after six months.
4 He found evening work to pay back the money.
5 Dan hopes to repay $2,000 by the end of the year.
6 Dan thinks he should have borrowed the money from his mother.

6 Listen again to Dan. What questions do you think his friend asks?

7 2.24 Now listen to Kumar telling his side of the story to the same friend. How did the situation affect Kumar's relationship with Dan?

8 Listen again to Kumar. What questions do you think the friend asks?

Grammar: should have/shouldn't have

9 Look at the table and complete what Dan and Kumar said. Check your answers in the audio scripts on page 155.

should have

1 We use should/shouldn't have to express criticism and regret about situations in the past.

When we are less sure we often use words like perhaps/maybe/I guess/I suppose.

2 We use the third conditional form: should/shouldn't + past participle of the main verb.

Dan: I guess I _____ _____ _____ another year before buying the house. (regret)

Kumar: Some of my friends say I _____ _____ _____ him the money. (criticism)

>> For more information on should have, see page 170.

10 Complete these sentences using should/shouldn't with the verbs in the correct form.

1 Kumar _____ _____ _____ (not/lend) his friend so much money.
2 Maybe Dan _____ _____ _____ (borrow) a smaller amount.
3 Dan _____ _____ _____ (not/ask) his friend for so much money.
4 Dan _____ _____ _____ (not/buy) a house in an expensive neighbourhood.
5 They _____ _____ _____ (agree) earlier how Dan planned to pay back the money.
6 I suppose Kumar _____ _____ _____ (ask) Dan to pay interest on the loan but he didn't.

Speaking: Asking for a friend's advice

11 Discuss these questions in pairs.

1 What do you think Dan and Kumar should or shouldn't have done?
2 Do you think Dan should have paid Kumar back sooner? How?
3 What would you have done if you had been in their position?

12 Work in pairs. Prepare what you are going to say before you begin the roleplay. Look at the story in exercise 2 or the audio script on page 155 again if you need to.

Student A: You are Dan. You think Kumar should apologize first. Explain your point of view to your friend and ask for advice.

Student B: You are the mutual friend. Listen to Dan and give him some advice. You are upset to see that your friends are not speaking to each other. Try to be fair.

13 Act out the roleplay again but change roles.

Student A: You are Kumar. You think Dan should apologize first. Explain your point of view to your friend and ask for advice.

Student B: You are the friend. Listen to Kumar and give him some advice. You are upset to see that your friends are not speaking to each other. Try to be fair.

Writing: Explaining your view

14 You are Dan and Kumar's friend. Write an email to one of them, explaining your view of the situation and why they should reconcile. Who should apologize and why?

TALKING POINT Have you ever lent something to someone and they didn't return it? What happened?

Word focus: blame and fault

1 Look at these definitions and complete the article The Blame Game with the correct forms of blame and fault.

blame (n): responsibility for a mistake or for something bad.

blame (v): to say or think that someone or something is responsible for something bad.

fault (n): If something bad that has happened is your fault, you should be blamed for it, because you made a mistake or failed to do something.

The Blame Game

Most people have heard the words 'It's your 1 _____' more than once in their lifetime. The suggestion that they have done something wrong is usually annoying. It seems that no one likes to get the 2 _____ for something. Putting the 3 _____ on other people seems to be a very common human characteristic. The Blame Game isn't isolated to relationships between couples. It's also played by family members, between friends and in workplace relationships. No one wants to be the person at 4 _____ in any situation. Generally, people find it difficult to say they made a mistake, didn't do something they should have or did something they shouldn't have. So what do we do instead? We either make excuses or point the finger at someone else and say, 'It's not my 5 _____ it's yours!' Why is it so difficult for people to accept that they may be to 6 _____ in a situation that has an unfortunate outcome*? Perhaps it has something to do with the other game that is played by many people. Taking the 7 _____ is accepting the fact that they are not perfect. In the end, the most important question to ask yourself is does it really matter who is right and who is wrong in any given situation. Does 8 _____ someone else ever improve a relationship? Probably not; in fact, it probably causes more problems than it solves. Choosing integrity* is better than playing The Blame Game.

unfortunate outcome: bad result integrity: the quality of being honest and strong about what you believe to be right

2 Underline the combination that is NOT possible with each verb. Look at the article in exercise 1 to help you.

1	make	an excuse / a mistake / something wrong
2	be	at fault / fault / to blame
3	take	my fault / responsibility / the blame
4	do	a serious mistake / something wrong / the right thing
5	get	the blame / your own fault / annoyed
6	blame	someone else / the government / responsible

3 Discuss these news items. Who or what do you think is to blame? Give reasons for your opinion.

Obesity is rising significantly among children in Europe. As many as one in four are affected in some regions.

It's time to stop drug-taking in sport. It threatens the image and integrity of sport. One cause of the increase in doping is the growing pressure from sponsors and promoters.

Who was to blame for the financial and economic crisis which started with the sub-prime mortgages in 2008? Bankers, government ministers, regulators or people who borrowed too much?

It's easy to blame the fashion industry for anorexia. Just look at all the ultra-thin models and digitally-enhanced images of celebrities in magazines and newspapers every day.

Word focus: make and do

4 Put these words and expressions with the correct verb.

a mistake something wrong some work hiccup: small problem or delay

3 2.25 Listen to a podcast on the internet about two companies that made public apologies. Complete the chart.

Name of company
Apologized for Apologized to 4 What is your reaction to these apologies? Are the apologies effective in your opinion? Why?/Why not?

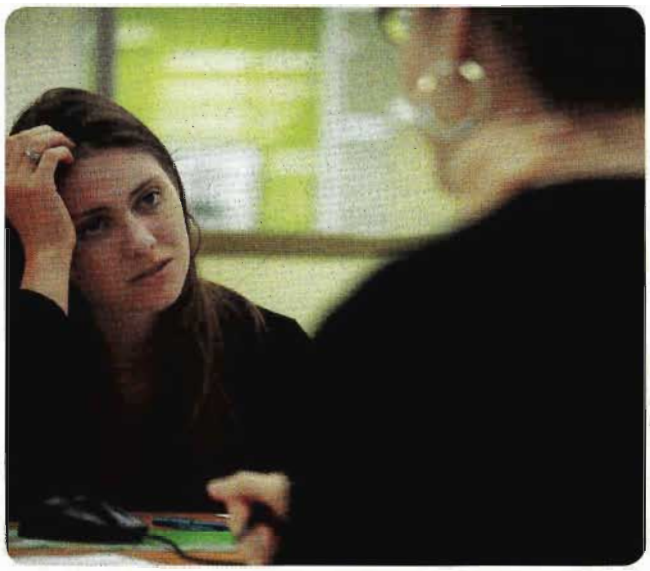
5 What would you say in the following situations? Why is it sometimes difficult to say sorry?

a You accidentally bump into someone in the street.

b You jump the queue in a shop and another customer points it out.

c Your partner was recording a TV programme and you wipe it by mistake.

d You haven't finished some work by the deadline you agreed with your boss.



6 2.26 Listen to four conversations and match them to the situations in exercise 5.

7 Listen again to each conversation and correct what was said.

Conversation 1

Please forgive me, Alicia. You know that progress report you wanted today? I'm afraid I haven't had time to finish it. It isn't my fault; a few people are off sick. I'll get on to it first thing tomorrow.

Conversation 2

I'm sorry. I didn't mean to do that. Are you all right?

Conversation 3

Jin: I'm such an idiot, Werner. I did something silly and wiped that match you were recording.

Werner: What?

Jin: You're right to be angry. I know you love your tennis.

Werner: Jin! It was the Shanghai Open final. I really wanted to watch that later.

Jin: I know, I know. I'm sorry. Look, I'll pay for the damage.

Conversation 4

Customer 1: Pardon me, I was here before you.

Customer 2: Oh, so sorry. I feel awful about pushing in.

8 Which situation in exercise 7 do you think was the most serious? Which would be the most embarrassing for you? Why?

9 Which of the strategies in the table does each speaker in exercise 7 use? Add more example phrases from the conversations.

Saying sorry		Responding to apologies
1 Expressing regret	I'm sorry.	Not to worry. Don't worry about it. No problem. Thanks for letting me know.
2 Asking for forgiveness	Please accept our apologies.
3 Giving an explanation	The traffic was terrible.
4 Taking responsibility	It's my mistake.
5 Not taking responsibility	It isn't my fault.
6 Showing concern for the other person	I hope I didn't upset you.
7 Offering to put things right	I'll pay for the damage.

10 Match the two halves of the apologies below. Which strategies from exercise 9 are used in each apology?

1 Sorry we're late.	a morning. I forgot we said we'd meet at 10.
2 Sorry I forgot your book.	b interrupt your meeting, but you have a visitor.
3 I'm so sorry about this	c your birthday. I've got a terrible memory.
4 I'm so sorry for	d The bus was slow. Have you been waiting long?
5 I'm sorry for forgetting	e I'll bring it next week.
6 I'm very sorry to	f wiping those files. I didn't mean to.

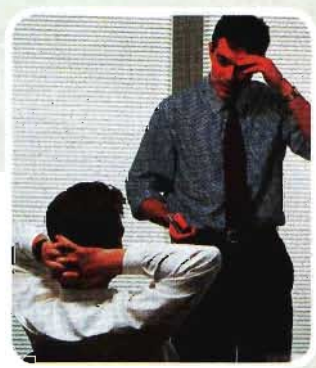
Speaking: I'm so sorry

11 Work in pairs. Student A: Look at the information on this page. Student B: Turn to File 32, page 139.



1 You have a tendency to always arrive a few minutes late. Most people don't mind, but one of your friends gets very upset when people aren't punctual. You arrive 15 minutes late at the restaurant where you agreed to meet. What do you say?

2 An important client phones to ask about an order that hasn't arrived as promised. This has happened before to this particular client. There will be a one-week delay because there were some problems with some new machinery, but everything is working fine now.

3 You asked your boss to look at a report you prepared a week ago and give you some feedback. Your boss hasn't said anything about it. Find out if he/she has finished reading it.

4 You are having a meal in an expensive restaurant. You've already been waiting for 15 minutes when your waiter / waitress brings you some ice cream instead of the dessert that you had ordered.

12 Look at the situations in exercise 11 again. When do you think a) you were right/wrong? b) both of you were to blame?

Reminder

Grammar reference page 170

We use the third conditional when we want to imagine a different past from the reality.

If he'd told us, it would have been different.

What would you have done?

We use should/shouldn't have to express criticism and regret about situations in the past.

He shouldn't have listened to her.
He should have asked me for advice instead.

Reading: Challenges at work

7 Read Susan Rossini's email to a friend. What sort of person do you think Susan is? What dilemmas did she face last week? How would you reply to her?

Hi Angie

How's it going? The family are all well but I'm really busy at work these days. You know, when I went into business with Anton I had no idea how hard it would be mixing work and friendship. We have a major project to finish right now, and yesterday he told me he's planning a two-week holiday in the middle of it. I didn't know what to say. He's leaving me to do all the work. What would you have said to him?

And last week I needed to find someone to do Karen's job while she's on maternity leave. Her friend Paula wanted to do it, but there was also someone more qualified than her. I wanted to be rational, but I was worried about how Karen would react if I rejected her friend, so I gave her the job. Was I right, do you think?

Susan

8 Read her friend's reply. Do you agree with her opinions? Why?/Why not? What would you have said?

Hi Susan

I think you should have said something to Anton. If it's a busy time, it's not very wise to take a holiday right now. Perhaps he should have renegotiated the deadline with your client so you're not left with all the work. Maybe his heart isn't in the business any more. I think you should talk to him when he gets back and discuss where your partnership is going.

As for Karen's substitute, maybe you should have employed the other, better-qualified candidate. At the same time, it's only a short-term contract and you would have upset Karen if you hadn't given her friend a job for a few months. I think you did the right thing there. I hope she does a good job for you.

Bye for now

Angie

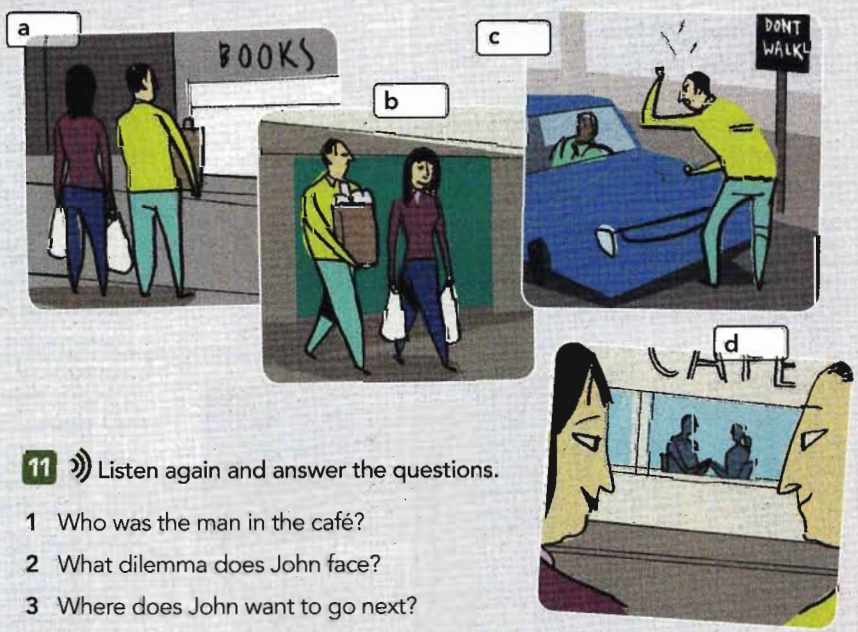
9 Student A: You are Susan. Read the information and roleplay the conversation on Anton's return from holiday. Student B: You are Susan's business partner, Anton, turn to File 38 page 140.

Student A:

Anton has just come back from a two-week Caribbean cruise with his wife. He looks incredibly relaxed and tanned. But you're feeling ill and stressed out.

- Ask Anton about his holiday.
- Ask him why he took time off when it was a busy period.
- Tell him that you haven't had a decent holiday for two years now and you'd like to spend more time with your family.
- Tell him that the project is behind schedule now and you don't know what to do about it.

10 2.29 John and Susan are out shopping one day. Listen to their conversation and put the four pictures in order.



11 Listen again and answer the questions.

1 Who was the man in the café?
2 What dilemma does John face?
3 Where does John want to go next?
4 Why does he argue with the driver?

12 What would you have done in these situations?

13 Read another email from Susan to her friend. Which dilemma(s) had an unexpected ending?

Hi Angie

Great to hear all your news, as always. I'm afraid I've been ill recently with flu. Remember Anton went away on holiday in the middle of a big project for us. Well, it was very stressful doing the work by myself and I got sick. I know, I should have said something to him. You were right. He apologized to me when he got back and said I worked too hard, but if he doesn't help out more, I can't take it easy.

And yesterday we thought we saw Michelle's boyfriend with another woman. But then she phoned us last night and told us they split up last week. I was so relieved. That was one dilemma solved.

c It performs for people who have experienced difficult situations.

d It teaches children that live in disadvantaged areas.

Clowns Without Borders

Clowns Without Borders is a non-profit NGO which travels around the world bringing smiles and laughter to those in crisis. It works in natural disaster areas, war zones, refugee camps and disadvantaged areas. Its aim is to work mostly with disadvantaged children and refugees, watching over and improving their psychological condition.

Payasos Sin Fronteras, which is its original Spanish name, was founded in Barcelona in 1993. It was after the success of a project in a refugee camp in Croatia where the Catalan artist Tortell Poltrona performed in front of 700 children. The performance proved that humour provides great psychological support* to people in need. Since then the number of clown projects sent to crisis areas around the world has gradually increased. There are now Clowns Without Borders teams that are based in France, Belgium, Sweden, Canada and the States.

The clowns are volunteers from all areas of the performing arts* who are neither educators nor social commentators and that work without any political or social agenda*. They perform with an awareness* of the local environment and tolerance of different cultural values. They are also sensitive to the difficult and traumatic situations the children have experienced. Their motivation is simply to bring smiles to the faces of those who need it most. And as we all know, laughter is always the best medicine.

support: help and being kind to someone performing arts: arts such as dance, music or drama political/social agenda: ideas that a political party thinks are important awareness: knowledge or understanding of something 1 Subject: _____

Hi Brenda

This is just to confirm that I'm now back in Brisbane. Can you please send me an update on which celebrities are taking part in the charity marathon? Could you also let me know their availability so we can discuss order of appearance on the show and program the celebrity slots.

It would be great if you could send me this information by Friday and if you have any questions, please let me know. Thanks.

Looking forward to seeing you.

Take care

Hello everyone!

We would like to thank all of you who have donated to this year's TV charity marathon in aid of Kanga's Kids. The response has been terrific. We still need your help to reach the targets so please tell all your family and friends about the marathon. Tell them to text us or phone the marathon hotline.

Remember to switch on at 7 p.m. on Friday for the show. Lots of your favourite TV stars will be appearing, including the lovely Linda McDonald.

Finally, many thanks for all your messages of support. The marathon team have been working day and night and we're sorry we haven't been able to answer them all yet, but we really appreciate them.

Best wishes

Dear Ms McDonald,

Following my phone conversation with your manager today, I am writing to confirm that we are organizing a TV charity marathon in aid of the charity Kanga's Kids on Friday 31 May. We would really appreciate it if you could take part in the show.

Could you please confirm your availability and whether you would be interested in visiting Kanga's Kids' centre. We could arrange a meeting with some of the children and they would love to meet you!

We would be happy to make travel arrangements for you to Brisbane as well as organizing your accommodation for the evening of the marathon.

Please do not hesitate to contact me should you have any questions.

We look forward to hearing from you.

4 Complete the table. Which use of the present perfect continuous are the examples in exercise 3?

Present perfect continuous

To form the present perfect continuous we use has/have + _____ + _____.

1 We use the present perfect continuous with for and since to talk about unfinished activities that started in the past and continue up until the present time.

I've been working at Barkington for almost two years now.

2 When we talk about unfinished actions, the present perfect continuous and the present perfect simple have a similar meaning:

I have only lived/been living in the UK since 2007.

3 We also use the present perfect continuous to talk about recent activities that have a consequence in the present.

Hospital staff have been helping to raise funds for improvements to the park and they've collected £5,000 already.

Reading: Career success

1 Networking is the process of establishing a mutually beneficial relationship with other professional people and building alliances. How important is networking in your job? Who do you network with, when and where?

2 Do you think networking has a bigger impact on men's careers than women's? Why?/Why not?

3 Look at the article: Networking behaviour and find out if you're right.

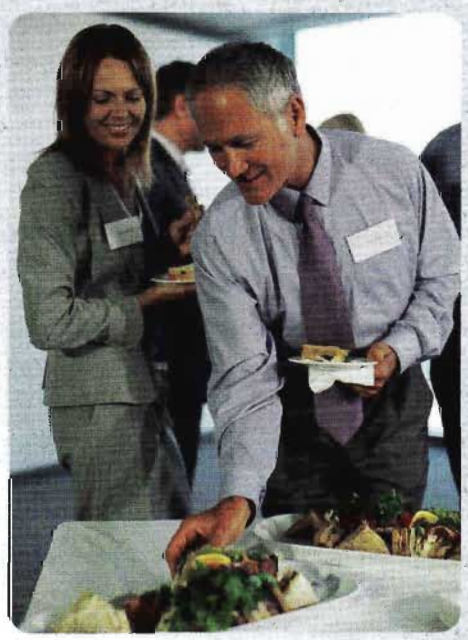
4 Look at the five types of networking behaviour mentioned in the article. Which ones do you engage in?



Networking behaviour

Recent research by Forret and Dougherty (2001) identified five types of networking behaviour: maintaining contacts, socializing, engaging in professional activities, participating in the community and increasing internal visibility in the company.

Further research by Forret and Dougherty (2004) indicates that only some forms of networking behaviour were related to longer-term career outcomes. In this study, the two most career-enhancing types of networking behaviour were increasing internal visibility and engaging in professional activities.

But these networking behaviours were related to career success for men only. Their results show that networking behaviours are not as advantageous for women as for men.

5 Look at this question in a forum and the reply. What reasons does the writer give for socializing at work? Do you agree? Add two more reasons to the list.

Is socializing at work really important?

Well, it does depend on what type of work you are in, but I think socializing is a good skill to have. I'm not surprised when the people person* type of employees get promoted. I mean, in most jobs you have to liaise* with other people – have good interpersonal skills. While some people spend little time at their desks, they have solid relations with other departments, customers, co-workers, etc. Very useful to have! I find troubleshooting* easy because I'm fully aware of what's going on in the organization. While I leave my desk only for short breaks, I'm visited all the time by other people for a chat. It's really made my life easy knowing everyone and getting the inside gossip* on what's going on. OK, some of it is pure entertainment but work-related info is always useful.

people person: someone who likes being with other people liaise: exchange information with someone who works in another department or place troubleshooting: finding solutions to serious problems inside gossip: talk about people's lives and things that have been happening at work

6 Read another message to the forum. How would you respond to this person?

As part of my job I am expected to attend a lot of functions, receptions and award dinners. I am expected to circulate and meet potential business contacts. But, to be honest, sometimes I just don't want to talk to strangers. Can you give me a few suggestions on feeling more comfortable networking at these events?

Listening: Making connections

7 2.32 Listen to a conversation at a company social event and answer the questions.

1 Do Michaela and Dev know each other?
2 What are their jobs?
3 What news and gossip do they exchange?
4 What doesn't Michaela want to talk about?
5 Do they manage to network effectively?

8 Here's the first part of their conversation, but it's in the wrong order. Put the parts of the conversation in the correct order.

- ☐ Are you? Congratulations!
- [1] Hi, I don't think we've met before. I'm Michaela Perry.
- ☐ Me, I'm taking over from her next month.
- ☐ Nice to meet you, Michaela. I'm Dev Sharma.
- ☐ Oh terrific. So who will be in charge when she goes on maternity leave?
- ☐ Oh yes, I hear she's expecting.
- ☐ PR. I'm the Assistant to the Events Coordinator, Amrita Krishen.
- ☐ Really? That's cool! How's it going?
- ☐ So, tell me about yourself Dev. Which department are you in?
- ☐ Things are pretty quiet at the moment. It's going to be hectic next month though. And Amrita's going to be away.

4 Drucker changed his mind about management theory in the 1950s.
5 The writer thinks Drucker was brave to admit to making mistakes.

3 Which of the ideas in the article do you most/least agree with? Why?

We learn by making mistakes

When was the last time you made a mistake? If you're honest with yourself, it was probably recently. Mistakes are part of life; they are part of business. But too many companies try to cover them up rather than admit* to them. Management guru* Peter Drucker wrote, in The Practice of Management, he would never promote a man into a top-level job who had not made mistakes.

Drucker argued that there are different kinds of talent in any organization. He believed there are two kinds of 'performers'. Drucker said one type of employee does consistently well but isn't exceptional. He added, 'Another man will perform only adequately under normal circumstances but will then perform like a true star.' Drucker continued, 'The one man to distrust, however, is the one who never makes a mistake'.

In the 1950s, Drucker thought there was only one way to manage people correctly: believing that everyone will be responsible and motivated. In the 1960s a competing theory argued that managers should treat every employee as if they are basically lazy and resistant to change.

But then psychologist Abraham Maslow said it was silly to talk about a single management theory. And Drucker was quickly persuaded. He agreed that different people had to be managed differently. In fact Drucker later admitted that he was wrong. Imagine, if more people had the courage* to say they were wrong, and learn from it, a lot more things would go right.

admit: say you have done something wrong guru: someone who knows a lot about something and gives advice to others performer: someone who does a job well or badly distrust: believe people aren't honest and usually do bad things courage: being brave when you are in a difficult situation

Grammar: Reported speech

4 Look at the table and fill in the gaps.

Reported speech

Tense changes

1 When we're reporting what someone has said we sometimes change the tense of the verbs.

'Mistakes are part of life.' → The writer says mistakes are part of life.

2 We don't always change the tense when something was said recently, or if something is still true in the present.

Present simple → Present simple or [1] _____

Present continuous → Present continuous or [2] _____

Past simple → Past simple or [3] _____

Present perfect → Present Perfect or [4] _____

3 Modal verbs change when we're reporting.

will → would have to/must → had to can → could

4 Pronouns also change when we're reporting.

'I almost never learn from my mistakes.' → She told me she almost never learns/learnt from [5] _____ mistakes.

>> For more information on reported speech, see page 174.

5 Change these sentences into reported speech. Use say or tell in your answers.

1 Your CEO: 'It is important to celebrate failure as well as success.'

2 Your colleague: 'Oops, I've made a mistake. I've sent you the wrong file again.'

3 Your supplier: 'Don't worry. The technician will come tomorrow.'

4 A football manager: 'We've just lost this match but we'll win next time!'

5 Your friend: 'I'm sorry, but I thought you said Tuesday. I can't come on Thursday.'

6 A designer: 'There are lots of faults in the design so we're going to start again.'

Speaking: Embarrassing mistakes

6 Work in pairs. Which of these mistakes do you think are the most embarrassing? Have similar things ever happened to you or someone you know?

1 You send an email with holiday photos to a client by mistake.

2 You mispronounce the Managing Director's name various times in a meeting.

3 You want to demonstrate a new product but it isn't working properly.

4 You have prepared a great presentation but can't find your pendrive five minutes before your talk.

5 You invite your boss to your home but forget he is vegetarian.

6 You work as a trader. You make a mistake which costs your company about US $100,000.

7 Report what the people said in the situations in exercise 6 to your partner. It is not necessary to report 'word for word'. Student A: Turn to File 25, page 137. Student B: Turn to File 41, page 141.

He said he was sorry and told me to ...

She apologized and offered to ...

Tacoma Narrows Suspension Bridge, (Washington State, USA, 1940.)

! After tell we say who was told something. So we tell someone something.

This doesn't happen with say. We say something (to someone).

She said she didn't agree.

She told the teacher/him she didn't agree.

TALKING POINT In your job is it more important to be careful or to take risks?

12 Embedded questions

Listening: Celebrity gossip

1 Discuss these questions.

1 Which famous people are most admired in your country? Why?

2 Do you like reading about celebrities in newspapers and magazines? Why?/Why not?

3 Why do you think we often enjoy seeing people in the public eye making mistakes?

2 Read some headlines below about different celebrities and answer these questions.

Who do you think:

a is planning to divorce?

b was taken ill during a show?

c may have a new girlfriend?

d has accused a newspaper of telling lies?

e has been involved in a scandal?

3 Find words in the headlines that mean:

1 will separate or stop living together

2 suddenly fell down because he/she was ill or weak

3 will make a legal claim against someone because they have harmed you

4 left a job, etc. especially without finishing it completely

4 2.37 Listen to a news interview about one of the celebrities in exercise 2. Which one are they talking about?

5 Listen again and complete the newsreader's questions.

1 Could you tell us _____ _____ _____ this morning?

2 Do you know _____ _____ _____ _____ _____ like this?

3 _____ _____ still a possibility?

4 _____ _____ _____ to her daughter yet?

5 So _____ _____ _____ _____ the possibility that this was a heart attack?

Grammar: Embedded questions

6 Compare the word order in the direct and embedded questions in the table. How is it different?

Embedded questions

Sometimes we do not ask questions directly. Instead we start with phrases like Do you know ...? or Could you tell me ...?

Direct questions	Embedded questions
Why did he quit the show?	Could you tell me why he quit the show?*
Are they planning to get married?	Do you know if they're planning to get married?*

>> For more information on embedded questions, see page 175.

7 Look at the questions in exercise 5 and answer these questions.

1 Did the embedded questions come at the beginning or the end of the interview?

2 Find a question where the interviewer is asking for confirmation. Does it contain a question form?

8 Look at some more questions about the celebrities in the headlines. Change them to embedded questions. Start: Could you tell me ...? or Do you know ...?

1 Will Richard's career survive?
2 What time did they leave the club?
3 Which law firm is Angie consulting?
4 Have they found a new presenter yet?
5 Are they living apart now?
6 What sort of financial settlement does Kate want?
7 Have we received a statement from the Post?
8 Which direction did their taxi go?

Speaking: Celebrity interviews

9 Work in pairs. Choose one of the following types of celebrities and one of the headlines. Then tell your partner which celebrity you are and which headline is about you.

Film star Politician TV chef Singer Top model
Reality TV contestant Entrepreneur

_____ CHECKS INTO WEIGHT LOSS CLINIC*

_____'S SON ARRESTED* AFTER PARTY

_____ QUITS CABINET

_____ SELLS RESTAURANT CHAIN

_____ STORMS OFF* TV INTERVIEW

_____ TO TAKE TRIP INTO SPACE

_____ ACCUSED OF LIBEL* ON BLOG

Weight loss clinic: place where you go to get thinner
Arrest: when the police take a person to a police station because he/she has done something illegal
Storm off: leave a place very quickly because you are angry
Libel: when someone writes untrue statements about someone 10 Take a few minutes to prepare to interview one another about the news in your headlines. Be ready to talk about these points.

- what the celebrity did or what happened to them (and why)
- what their plans for the future are

11 Take turns to interview each other. Reporters: begin the interview with embedded questions like Could you tell me ...? As the interview progresses, ask your questions more directly.

12 Report back to the class. Talk about these points.

a which celebrity your partner was and what they did b why they acted as they did

c what their plans are for the future

TALKING POINT If you saw your favourite celebrity in the street, what would you ask them?

12 Consumer vocabulary

Listening: Consumer stories

1 2.38 Listen to four podcasts. Match each extract to the description.

a News report about builders

b Advert for a consumer service

c Anecdote about an angry customer

d Problems with payment

2 2.39 Listen to the first story again and complete this note. What lesson did the speaker learn?

Complaints Form

A man phoned today to report an online [1] _____ _____ company. When he received his [2] _____ _____ bill they had charged him an extra [3] _____ euros. They promised to return the money within [4] _____ days but didn't. Can you call him back and get more details? Then find out if the company is still operating, get their [5] _____ and write to them?

3 2.40 Listen to the second story again and correct this newspaper article. There are five errors.

People prefer cheap builders

A survey reveals that 16% of UK homeowners prefer to pay cash to builders to avoid taxes. 20,000 adults were interviewed for the survey, commissioned by the National Federation of Architects. At the same time, Trading Standards* figures show that over 10,000 complaints are made about unprofessional builders and tradespeople each month.

Trading Standards: UK government agency responsible for protecting consumers

4 2.41 Listen to the third speaker again and complete her story.

This shop assistant works in a [1] _____ . When this incident happened yesterday the shop was especially [2] _____ . A customer gave her a prescription and she asked him to return [3] _____ minutes later for it. Unfortunately, she later found out that the medication was not [4] _____ _____ . When the man returned and heard this, he was very angry and demanded to speak to her [5] _____ .

Word focus: Consumer vocabulary

5 Look at these extracts from the podcasts in exercise 1. What do the words and phrases in italics mean? Use the context to help you. Then match them to the definitions.

1 But this one time I was nearly ripped off. c

2 … they'd overcharged me by 500 euros.

3 … and they'd refund my money within 15 days.

4 … I reported them to the trading standards people.

5 I'll only give my details online to well-known, reputable companies.

6 … there are a lot of internet scams about these days.

7 60% of UK homeowners prefer cash-in-hand builders.

8 Over half of Britons would risk hiring a cowboy builder to carry out work on their home.

9 There are over 100,000 complaints made about rogue tradespeople each year.

a complain about someone to people in authority

b clever but dishonest ways to make money

c charged too much money for something (two possibilities)

d payment made in notes and coins so that there is no record

e someone who is dishonest in business or produces very bad quality work (two possibilities) f money that is returned to you if you are not satisfied with the goods or services

g respected for being honest or for doing good work

6 Which tradespeople would you call in each of these situations? How would you choose a person/company to do some work for you, e.g. personal recommendation?

1 You want to install some lights.	a plumber
2 You've decided to repaint your home.	b electrician
3 You have to prune some trees.	c mechanic
4 Water is leaking from your bathroom taps.	d gas engineer
5 You want to install gas central heating.	e gardener
6 You'd like to knock down a wall.	f carpenter
7 Your motorbike won't start.	g decorator
8 Some old doors need to be replaced.	h builder

7 Can you think of other situations when you need expert help?

Speaking: This is what happened

8 Read and memorize your information. Tell your group your story using some of the expressions from exercise 5. What lesson(s) did you learn from the experience? Student B: Turn to File 34, page 139. Student C: Turn to File 42, page 141.

Student A:

You once hired some decorators.

- they were recommended to you
- they wanted to be paid cash-in-hand by the day
- they didn't work very fast
- you suspected that they were wasting time
- many days you got home early from work and they had already gone
- one day they just never came back again
- lesson(s) you've learnt …

9 Which experience in exercise 8 was the worst? Why?

TALKING POINT Do you remember a time you, or someone you know, had a particularly good or bad consumer experience? What? What lesson(s) did you learn?

12 Communication strategies Dealing with complaints

Speaking: Common complaints

1 Look at a list of situations when you might complain. Add two more of your own ideas.

- waiting to be served in a shop
- an incorrect or late delivery
- a faulty product
- the service in a restaurant
- noisy neighbours
- delays on public transport
- colleagues who take long breaks
- being overcharged for something
- _____
- _____

2 Work in pairs. Which situations in exercise 1 do you find most annoying and why?

3 When was the last time you complained about some of these things? What happened?

Listening: A customer complaint

4 2.42 Claire works in Customer Service for Ritchie's, a retail store that sells clothes both instore and online. What type of complaints do you think Claire might receive? Listen to two conversations. What are her customers complaining about?

5 Work in pairs. Roleplay the two phone calls between Claire and the customers. Student A: Turn to File 31, page 139. Student B: Turn to File 45, page 141.

6 2.43 Listen to the rest of Claire's phone call with the first customer and discuss these questions.

1 What happened? How was the conversation different from yours?

2 How professionally did Claire deal with the customer's complaint?

3 How would you feel if you were Claire?

7 Claire has to complete this online form about the complaint. Listen to Call 1 Part 2 again and complete the form.

Ritchie's Ltd Customer Services Incident

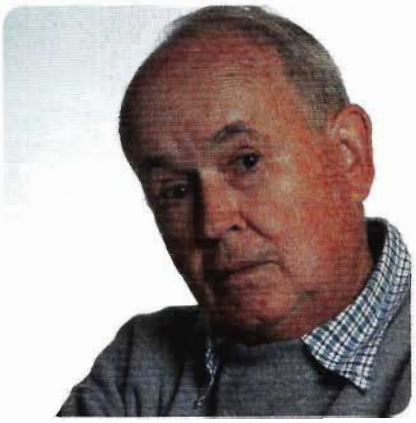
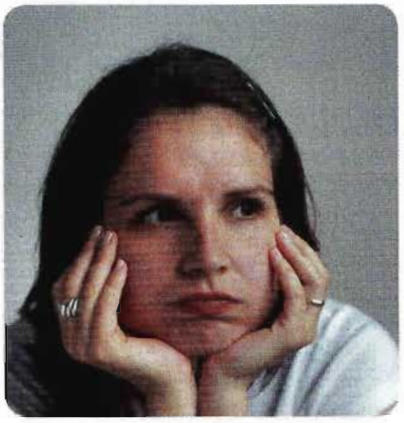
Customer satisfied? Yes / No. If not, please specify.

The customer thought the website was [5] _____ because he had to scroll down to see the [6] _____ .





8 Look at these expressions for responding to complaints. Underline the ones that a customer service representative would say. What is wrong with the other ones?

Dealing with complaints

Asking about the complaint

What's your problem?
What seems to be the problem?

Showing empathy

Don't worry my dear.
Oh dear, I'm sorry to hear that.
Yes, I see/understand.
That must be very annoying.
I know what you mean.

Apologizing

We're really very sorry about this.
Oops, sorry.
I do apologize.
I'm afraid we've had some trouble with the system.
The system doesn't work properly.

Correcting and explaining

No, you're wrong.
If you look at our website, I think you'll find ...
There seems to have been a mistake.
You've made a mistake.

Putting things right

You could complete our questionnaire.
You must complete this form.
You'll need to complete this form.
I'll see what I can do.
I'll pass on your complaint.
Thanks for letting us know.

Speaking: Putting things right

9 Work in pairs. Look again at exercise 1 and roleplay some of the other situations. Use some of the expressions in exercise 8.

10 Work in pairs. A customer has sent this email to your customer services department. Read the email. What seems to be the problem? What should you say to this customer to put things right?

To: Ritchie's Customer Services
From: Amy Henderson
Subject: Unsatisfactory delivery

Dear Customer Services

I am writing to complain about my order number: # 5821/304-973478.

I am a regular customer with your store, but I was very concerned to find that my last online order was delivered to my neighbour by mistake. What's more, the parcel was left in my neighbour's back garden in the rain for a few days with no note or explanation so no one noticed it. The parcel was wet through and the items, two T-shirts and a pair of trousers, were damaged because of the rain.

I called your customer service line and one of your employees told me that I can't have a refund because the goods are damaged. That is unacceptable. Please note that I will not place any more orders with Ritchie's if I don't receive a full refund immediately.

Regards

Amy Henderson

Writing: Replying to a complaint

11 Write an email in reply to Amy's complaint. Include these ideas.

- thank the customer for writing and express sympathy
- admit that a mistake was made: explain the local mail service sent the parcel, not Ritchie's
- offer a free replacement or refund
- say you will add €5 of credit to the customer's account on her next order
- apologize for any inconvenience caused

12 When you have finished, show your email to your partner. Would he/she be happy with your reply? Why?/Why not?

Reminder

Grammar reference page 175

Sometimes we do not ask questions directly. Instead we start with sentences like these:

Do you have any idea where you hope to be in five years' time?

But be careful with word order.

Could you tell me what you're working on at the moment?

When dealing with complaints we usually ask about the problem, show empathy, apologize, correct someone or explain and offer to put things right.

What seems to be the problem?

Oh dear, I'm sorry to hear that. I'll see what I can do.

2 Read about the entrepreneur, Lauren Luke. What does she sell? How did she become successful?

Entrepreneurs use social networks

A young mother goes from selling make-up on Ebay to launching her own beauty range and newspaper column. She owes her popularity to social networks such as MySpace and YouTube. Enthusiastic amateurs are turning professional by using web tools to achieve popularity.

As panacea81 has shown, online social networks can be powerful marketing machines for young entrepreneurs. But will the volume of people online make it harder to stand out*?

stand out: be different and noticeable

Dominic Fendius

Founder of Stitsh.com

1 It's a style blog, a street fashion site based in London.

2 We take pictures of fashionable members of the public and link their clothing to online retailers, where you can buy the items at great prices. When you scroll over the photos, a speech bubble appears with the details of the clothes. When you click on the speech bubble, you are taken directly to the retailer where you can buy it.

3 We earn a commission every time someone buys through Stitsh.

4 We're currently working on a New York version.

5 After studying business at university I started a free magazine in London, although this didn't work out. I then worked in the City for a US investment bank and saved some money to start my next business.

6 The first person I go to for advice is my mother who runs her own business.

7 I work very hard and really enjoy it. I'm careful to know when to stop and get away from work. But I find it difficult to stop thinking about it.

8 In five years we hope that Stitsh will be the first site people visit globally when shopping for new clothes.

Board game: Online business

6 Work in pairs. A: You are Trisha. B: You are the other people in the game. Read the situation and the rules.

Trisha Baron is a graphic designer who is trying to expand her business. Six months ago she started designing electronic greeting cards for friends and then started selling them on social networking sites. She now wants to sell other products online and is designing her own brand of stationery (notebooks, pens, etc.).

Rules

Play this game in pairs. You each need a coin to play. Move two squares if it is heads and one square if it is tails. Take it in turns to throw the coin and answer the questions, or act out the situations with your partner. Stay on the square if your partner is satisfied with your response. If not, go back to the previous square.

7 The CCTV cameras _____ (not catch) the thief on camera.

8 The waitress in the café _____ (not see) anything suspicious if she had _____ (be) busy.

The day my bag was stolen

I was having lunch the other day with a colleague in a café near the office. I had put my handbag across the back of my chair but when I stood up to leave, I found that it had gone. I'd been so interested in office [1] gossip / chat that I hadn't noticed someone had [2] stolen / stole my expensive, designer bag.

Inside were my keys, mobile phone, mp3 player, €300 in [3] money / cash (I had just been to the bank), [4] loan / credit cards, my make-up bag and my security pass. At first, I was very [5] upset / annoying. But later, I decided the thief [6] gave / had given me five reasons to be grateful:

- Being without your mobile phone is great. People can't phone you up so easily and have to make an effort to talk to you face-to-face.
- People have [7] bought / spent me things so far, a coffee, some chocolate and a free lunch. I lost €300 but at least I'll [8] save / afford some money until I get my new cards.
- It's not your [9] fault / blame. Once, when I lost my mobile phone, I was to [10] fault / blame and felt guilty. This time I was a victim, and people have been very sympathetic.
- We shouldn't worry about CCTV watching us. The [11] waitress / camera in the café failed to catch anything suspicious.
- I now have a story to [12] say / tell.

Dining Etiquette in Russia

- Dress smartly in clothes you might wear to the office.
- Remove your outdoor shoes – host may give you slippers.
- Guests are treated with honour and respect.
- Offer to help the host with the preparation or clearing up after a meal is served.
- Do not start eating until the host invites you to start.
- Men pour drinks for women seated next to them.
- You will often be encouraged to have second helpings.
- Leave a small amount of food on your plate to show you have finished eating.
- Do not get up until you are invited to leave the table. But at formal dinners, the guest of honour is the first to get up from the table.

Imagine you are sitting next to someone during a meal and you start making conversation. Choose two or three of these topics and tell your partner a one-minute story. Prepare your stories any vocabulary you don't know before you start.

1 a day you lost something important
2 a good friend
3 a time you were ill
4 a moment of bravery
5 your best sunset
6 a long wait

Answers:

1 It's often tempting to skip breakfast, but it's an essential meal for maintaining blood-sugar levels and getting us functioning well in the morning.

2 a) and b) are true. c) and d) are false – sugar contains the same calories as other carbohydrates but it does not provide any nutrients. Experts recommend that people cut down on sugar and sugary foods.

3 When we are busy or stressed, we tend to make bad nutritional choices and eat too much fast food. But eating badly only adds to our stress levels.

4 c) 15–22 grams. It all depends on the amount and type of ingredients. Experts say women should eat less than 20 grams of saturated fat per day and men should eat less than 30g.

5 These foods are high in saturated fat:

a butter and margarine
b milk and yoghurt
c meat and meat products
d biscuits, crisps and cakes
g cheese

Nutritionists say few people are clear about where saturated fat comes from in their diet. And there is little information on food labels to help consumers make healthy choices. Anything containing more than 20g of fat per 100g is a lot.

6 Three-quarters (75%) of the salt we eat comes from processed foods, such as bread, breakfast cereals, soups, sauces, ready-made meals, biscuits and lots and lots of other foods. In fact, manufacturers add so much salt to our food that there is no need to add any extra salt, because most of us are already eating too much.

7 b) 6g: Most people eat too much salt, on average about 9.5g of salt a day. We should try to cut this down to less than 6g of salt a day.

Quiz answers:

Mostly a's: You're probably not very good at remembering jokes or stories and appreciate good conversation more than practical jokes. Although you have a fun side, you don't like jokes at other people's expense and sometimes criticize others for joking too much. Remember, a good sense of humour can often relieve stress and tension at work.

Mostly b's: You have a good sense of humour and enjoy listening to other people's jokes and amusing anecdotes. You are not a natural comedian but you probably enjoy watching TV sitcoms and telling funny stories about yourself when you are socializing with people.

Mostly c's: You have a very good sense of humour and are good fun to be with. You already know laughter can help to reduce stress. You often enjoy telling jokes or funny stories when you are socializing with people. You might not enjoy practical jokes in the office, but are happy for others to have fun while working.

Mostly d's: You have a strong sense of humour and are good at breaking the ice and helping others feel more relaxed with your amusing comments. You probably love watching TV sitcoms, playing practical jokes and poking fun at authority figures. But be careful not to make comments that may be too critical or personal – not everyone may share your particular sense of humour.

5	a	3	b	1	c	2	d 4

17–20 points: You are either a 'green warrior' who is making significant changes in lifestyle to be more environmentally friendly or you have always used resources carefully. Perhaps sometimes your attitude is hard for people around you.

14–16 points: In general you try to recycle and the environment concerns you, but you don't want to make too many sacrifices. You'd prefer to find quick, easy solutions and don't mind paying a bit extra if necessary. You think it would be good if the government did more but you're also prepared to do your bit.

8–13 points: You are probably suffering from 'green fatigue'. You know all the environmental messages but you're tired of the contradictory information, and the fact that the effort you make is not having much impact. The ice caps are still melting and polar bears are disappearing. You think businesses and governments talk about the issues but there's no real action behind the words.

7 points and below: Clearly environmental issues are not a priority for you. It's someone else's problem and you're probably not convinced there is such a thing as global warming. You could try to consume less and save yourself some money.

Ask your partners about dining in someone's house in Russia and India. When you have finished, change roles. Look at your information and answer questions about dining in Argentina.

Dining Etiquette in Argentina

- Dress well.
- Arrive 30–45 minutes later than invited for a dinner party. Arriving on time is not the norm.
- Wait for the host to tell you where to sit.
- Do not begin eating until the host does so.
- Keep your hands visible when eating but do not place your elbows on the table.
- It is considered polite to leave a small amount of food on your plate when you have finished eating.
- When you have finished eating, place your knife and fork across your plate facing to the right.
- Avoid pouring drinks – there are many cultural taboos about pouring wine.
- Telephone your hosts the following day to thank them.

You are Claire, a customer service representative for Ritchie's. An angry customer calls you. He/She thinks he/she has been overcharged. Take the call and deal with the customer politely and professionally. Consider these points:

1 Take the customer's personal details and order number.

2 Explain that free delivery only applies to orders of over €50, (customers often misread the website).

3 Confirm that the customer has been charged correctly.

4 Be professional and sympathetic if the customer gets annoyed.

5 Thank the customer for calling.

Student A: Call 2

You placed an online order with the retailer Ritchie's. You have received an incorrect item. You wanted a brown top, not a blue one. You also ordered some brown trousers. Phone customer services to complain. Consider these points:

1 You will need to give your personal details and order number. Your order number is: # 582/412-97227*.

2 Explain that you wanted the brown top to go with the brown trousers. You don't want either of these items if one is not available.

3 Complain there was no note with the delivery.

4 Anything else? What? How annoyed are you? Will you say you won't place any more orders with Ritchie's if this happens again?

Ask your partners about dining in someone's house in Russia and Argentina. When you have finished, change roles. Look at your information and answer questions about dining in India.

Dining Etiquette in India

- Dress modestly and conservatively.
- Although Indians are not always punctual they expect foreigners to arrive at the appointed time.
- Take off your shoes before entering an Indian's house.
- Politely turn down the first offer of tea, coffee or snacks. You will be asked many times. Saying no to the first invitation is normal behaviour.
- There are meat restrictions for religious groups: Muslims do not eat pork and Hindus and Sikhs do not eat beef.
- It's best to wash your hands before and after the meal.
- It is impolite to eat or pass food with your left hand.
- Guests are served in a particular order: the guest of honour is served first, followed by the men and the children are served last. Women typically serve food and eat later.
- Leave a small amount on your plate to show you are satisfied. Finishing all your food means you are still hungry.

Student B: Call 1

You placed an online order with the retailer Ritchie's. You think you have been overcharged. You thought there was no delivery charge and that delivery was free for all orders. Phone customer services to complain. Consider these points:

1 You will need to give your personal details and order number. Your order number is: # 582/107-94036*.

2 Complain that you have been overcharged for your order: you thought delivery was free but you have been charged €8.50 for delivery.

3 Anything else? What? How annoyed are you? Will you ask for a refund, refuse to pay for delivery or say you won't place any more orders with Ritchie's?

* # = hash, / = slash, - = hyphen

Student B: Call 2

You are Claire, a customer service representative for Ritchie's. An angry customer calls you. He/She complains he/she has been sent the wrong items. Take the call and deal with the customer politely and professionally. Consider these points:

1 Take the customer's personal details and order number.

2 Explain that there are no brown tops in stock at the moment.

3 Point out there was a note with the delivery explaining that Ritchie's were offering the customer a 50% discount for the blue top.

4 Be professional and sympathetic if the customer gets annoyed.

5 Thank the customer for calling.

What a journey! It always takes longer to get home on Tuesdays. And there's a meeting at the kids' school tonight. It starts at eight. I'm feeling exhausted but I'd better go. I'm taking the minutes this evening. I'd love to have a personal assistant or maybe a butler.

2
I think I'll get these ones … or the other ones. No, the other ones were hurting my toes. Ted's been complaining for the last half hour. Why can't he give me some advice? I'm going to leave him at home next time. I'd love to have a personal shopper. They could help me decide what to buy.

3
Oh dear. Well, that new diet didn't work. I've never been good at dieting … or exercise. I haven't had a chance to get to the gym this week. If I had someone to help me, I'd feel more motivated. I think I need a personal trainer.

I = Interviewer, M = Mario, A= Alissa, S = Steve, W = Wanda

I: Commuting! For many people it means delays, overcrowding and stress. The average British commuter spends nearly an hour travelling to and from work every day, and for some it's two, three or more. So how do they survive their daily journeys? Today we're talking to travellers on London's commuter trains to find out. With me now is Mario, that's right, isn't it?

M: Yes, I'm Mario.

I: And what do you usually do while you're commuting?

M: I generally work on my laptop – check emails on my mobile phone – and I read.

I: Ah. What book are you reading at the moment?

M: Well, I'm not actually reading this book. I'm people watching today.

I: People watching?

M: Yeah, I'm writing a novel in my spare time so I'm looking at the other passengers and trying to imagine where they're going and what their life is like.

I: Well, let's speak to one of them and find out. OK, here we have …

A: Alissa. Nice to meet you.

I: Does it take you long to get to work, Alissa?

A: Yes. I don't usually take the train but my car's broken down.

I: So you're taking the train today.

A: Yeah.

I: What's the traffic on the roads like normally?

A: Terrible, so I'm enjoying the train ride today. I can close my eyes and relax.

I: Well, you can't do that in your car! And here's someone else enjoying the ride …

S: Steve. Hi.

I: Hi, Steve. I see you have an mp3 player. Do you listen to music while you're commuting?

S: I mostly listen to podcasts or if I'm not doing that then I daydream.

I: What are you daydreaming about at the moment?

S: Oh the usual – winning the lottery.

I: No wonder you look so happy. And sitting next to you is …

W: Call me Wanda, though my real name is Wendaline. I usually study on the train.

I: Uhuh.

W: I have to use my time productively because I'm taking an MBA course.

I: Are you studying for any exams at the moment?

W: Yes, I am. It's a stressful time. … I'm doing breathing exercises at the moment. You know, to help me relax.

I: How does that work then?

W: I'm focusing on breathing … in … out …

I: And there you have it. London's commuters are all finding ways to survive their journeys. So how do you manage to survive yours? Phone in and tell us about it …

V = Valerie, J = Jay

V: Hi, Jay. Have you got a couple of minutes?

J: Sure Valerie. Is it about the new website?

V: Yeah, I got your email, thanks. So, we're two weeks behind schedule on this project. That's bad news!

J: Afraid so. There were lots of changes to the design and some people sent us new content very late. It's just one of those things.

V: I know, I know. Is there any way we can have the site ready for the first of May? It's very important.

J: How about asking someone to help us? What do you think?

V: Well, it's an interesting idea. Do you mean getting someone from another department?

J: No, I mean hiring an external contractor. We could have the site ready in time then.

V: Oh, I see.

J: My brother-in-law's a very good web designer. Why don't we ask him?

V: Um, I don't know. It sounds expensive.

J: I could talk to him today if you like.

V: Let's look at some other options first.

J: Oh, OK.

V: What about meeting a bit later to discuss this again?

J: Sure. I'm free after lunch.

V: Thanks Jay.

P = Presenter, N = Nancy

P: Nancy Bailey is here with us today to talk about life coaching. Nancy, I'm sure many of our listeners want to know what this is.

N: Well, to put it simply, it's called coaching because in many ways it's similar to sports coaching. People often know they want to make changes in their lives, but then usually don't do anything about it. We help people to be clear about what they really want out of life, and we help them to make the changes they need to make.

P: So, who are your clients?

N: Coaching started out as a service for company executives, but now it's basically for anyone who wants to make changes in their lives. I work with small business owners, people who want to change careers, people who are planning for their retirement and managers who want a better balance between work and home life.

P: How much time do you spend with a client?

N: It's very flexible. We do all our coaching over the phone. Typically, we talk to clients once a week for 30 or 40 minutes and also communicate by email. The client can be anywhere in the world. Of course, most of the real action happens between the calls. Our clients can do as much or as little as they want to make those changes.

P: So how long do you work with clients?

N: It depends. I generally work with clients for three to six months and most see results in that time. It's a very fast process. The bottom line is when you work with a coach, you can identify clearer objectives and get results faster than if you work alone.

N = Nancy, J = Joe

N: Hi, Joe, how are you?

J: Hi, Nancy, very well thanks. And you?

N: Fine thanks. So, what do you want to talk about today? Shall we discuss your progress this week?

J: Yeah, sure. Things are definitely improving a lot at work. I'm feeling more relaxed and in control. The interruptions are becoming less of a problem – I'm using the strategies you suggested. And I'm learning to say 'no' nicely, when people ask me to do jobs that aren't a priority for me and my department.

N: Great! Tell me about the relationships with your team this week.

2

N = Nancy, K = Kim

N: Good evening, Kim. It's Nancy here.

K: Hiya, Nancy. Good to talk to you.

N: Do you want to talk about your homework for this week?

K: I'd love to. It was a really busy week, but I found the time to phone around a few colleges and get the information about courses.

N: Have you looked at it?

K: Yeah, I am so excited thinking about this. I really know I don't want to work in my parents' business forever, but it's taken me the longest time to decide what I really want to do. You know, the idea of being an interior designer really excites me.

N: That's great news, Kim.

Vikram

I took Nancy's advice and hired an assistant to deal with the day-to-day business. She's doing a good job, very efficient. The only problem is that, er … she doesn't have the same personal touch as me. You see, she doesn't get on with staff at all levels in the company.

Ruth

I talked to my boss at the advertising agency as Nancy suggested. I asked if there was anything more interesting I could do. He thought I was bored and he's just given me more admin work. It wasn't what I wanted at all!

HL = Hong Li, W = Woman

HL: Excuse me, My name's Hong Li. I'm doing a passenger survey for the airport. I wonder if I could take a few minutes of your time.

W: Sure.

HL: Thank you. First of all, where are you travelling to today?

W: To London.

HL: For business?

W: Yes.

HL: Is business travel important for your job?

W: It is. I often travel for work. I'm going to meet the sales and marketing managers for my publishing company.

HL: Where are you going to stay in London? Near the airport?

W: No, in a hotel close to the city centre.

HL: What are you going to do at the airport today?

W: Well, there's free wireless internet access, so I'll probably check my email. Then, I'm going to charge my cellphone in the Business Centre. I forgot to do that last night.

HL: Technology follows us everywhere! Will you buy anything special for yourself?

W: Anything special! No, but I think I'll get a head and shoulder massage. I'm going to need it.

HL: Why's that?

W: Well, because my plane leaves early in the morning at around 5.30 and it's about 12 hours to London. I like to be relaxed on the flight.

HL: Thank you for talking to me today. Here's a complimentary voucher for the duty-free shops.

W: Thank you.

2

HL = Hong Li, M = Man

HL: Hello, my name's Hong Li. I'm doing a passenger survey for the airport. Can I ask you a few questions?

M: Yeah, sure. Why not?

HL: Thanks. So, where are you travelling to today?

M: To Malaysia, Kuala Lumpur.

HL: And what is the purpose of your trip?

M: See my family. I'm doing medical research in New York City, and I've been away from home for a year.

HL: Where are you going to stay?

M: Mostly with my parents and I'll probably visit other relatives, too.

HL: How long are you going to be there?

M: A whole month. It's a trip home. You know, I'm really looking forward to some home cooking.

HL: What are you going to do at the airport this evening? Will you buy anything special for yourself?

M: No! I am too tired. I'm in transit and my flight to KL doesn't leave until the morning. I don't want to pay for the round trip in to town and a room, so I'm going to stay here in the airport all night. Some restaurants are open 24 hours, so I'll get dinner. And I've found a lounge with comfy seats, and no armrests, near gate 61. But the airport's quite cold. I think I'll ask one of the airline staff for a blanket and pillow.

HL: Thank you very much for your time. Here's a complimentary voucher for the duty-free shops.

K = Keith, B = Beatrice

K: I don't believe it! The queue for boarding is already a mile long. We're never going to get a good seat.

B: Oh, no. That's what you get when you travel with a budget airline.

K: Absolutely. You get what you pay for.

B: Still, the tickets were really cheap.

K: That's right. We got a great deal.

B: Well … maybe. But, is it really cheaper? There are all those extras we have to pay for – the extra bag, the credit card charge …

K: Yes and sandwiches on the plane.

B: Good point. I think these airlines should provide a better service.

K: Yeah, they should.

B: Shall we get in the queue?

K: It's twenty minutes till boarding. I think I'll buy a sandwich.

B: Good idea. I'll come with you.

2D, Page 21, Exercises 8 and 9

A: We need a simple clear rule that everyone can understand.

B: Mmm.

A: So from now on, everyone has to take the cheapest flight they can find …

B: …Yes?

A: So? … What do you think?

B: Well … erm … I'm not sure. What if the cheapest flight has several stops?

A: They should take it. It's the cheapest flight.

B: Yes, but what if it takes ten hours instead of three?

A: It doesn't matter. We have to get our flight costs down.

B: That's true, but productivity's important, too. If people spend a day travelling, they're not going to be working.

A: Everyone has laptops and most airports have wifi.

B: How about setting a limit? They take the cheapest flight available, but not if it adds more than six hours to their journey time.

A: That makes the rule more complicated.

B: I'm sorry, but I think this rule could cost us more money in the long run.

A: The cheapest flight is the cheapest flight.

B: Yes, but what I'm saying is it won't always save us money.

A: It's a simple rule that everyone can understand. It has to save us money.

B: I don't think that's true.

2E, Page 22, Exercises 3 and 4

M = Martin, F = Fay

M: So, while you interview your local business contacts, I'll go on the desert trip then, right?

F: Mmm, I'm not sure. Don't you think Thursday would be better for the desert trip? I mean together. I've got interviews all day Wednesday but we're both free on Thursday. I'd love to see the desert.

M: Well, I wanted to try sandboarding and maybe some er … dune bashing.

F: Dune bashing? What's that?

M: It's when you crash into sand dunes.

F: But won't you get a lot of sand in your eyes?

M: No, it's not like that, Fay. You're in a car, like a jeep or a four-by-four.

F: Oh, it sounds fun. I'd love to do that!

M: I don't know if that will be a good idea, Fay. I don't think it's your kind of thing. You know, you usually hate snowboarding and adventure sports.

F: No, I don't. Anyway, this is different. It's the desert! I'd love to go on a camel ride – you could take pictures of me. And we'll spend the night in a tent.

M: Well, all right then. But don't complain to me when you get covered in sand. There won't be any luxury bathrooms or hairdryers or anything.

F: Don't worry. I'll manage. So, will you change the booking to Thursday for two?

M: I suppose so. And I might do some more sightseeing on Wednesday.

F: Great. You know, Martin, we're visiting the Burj Al Arab hotel on Friday. It's seven stars and it's a fantastic building that looks like a sail. Shall we have dinner there?

M: Yeah, but it's very pricey. To be honest, I don't think we'll be able to afford it. I've already got permission to take photos inside, remember? But I'd love to get some shots from the beach at sunset.

F: Mmm, I see they do afternoon tea. We don't need to have dinner there.

M: Well, you can schedule it in but let's see how it goes when we're in Dubai. I don't want to pay a huge bill just for a cup of tea!

F: All right. I'll pencil it in, OK?

M: Fine.

F: Friday – tea and watch sunset at the Burj Al Arab hotel.

I was applying for a really good job with a great company. My potential boss wanted to meet me at a restaurant for lunch. The interview was going well until they brought our food. This man had the most awful table manners I have ever seen. He was dropping food on his shirt, eating with his fingers and making a terrible mess! I was shocked. I didn't get the job and I'm sure it was because I couldn't speak. I was too distracted by his table manners.

There's no tidy way to eat lobster. You have to break the shells and to work at it to get all the meat out. So I take job candidates to a seafood restaurant, order lobster and show great enthusiasm eating it. Then I watch their reactions. If they dislike my way of eating a lobster, I know I don't want to work with them. I want people who roll up their sleeves and get the job done. A lobster meal is a great way to find out who to hire.

B = Barbara, R = Richie, V = Street vendor

B: Isn't this night market great?

R: Yeah. Hey, I've heard we should try the balut.

B: What's balut, Richie?

R: It's a popular snack here. Just look out for a street vendor selling them.

B: But what IS balut?

R: Ah look, here you go!

B: Ah, they're big eggs. What sort are they?

V: These are duck balut. Want to try? It's very tasty.

B: Are they cooked? I can't eat raw egg.

V: Yes, they're boiled. You want 12-day, 16-day or 18-day?

B: Sorry? What do you mean?

R: Look Barbara, I think I should warn you, it's a fertilized egg with an embryo inside.

B: What! Oh, no, not for me, thanks.

V: It's a local delicacy. Please, try it.

R: I'll give it a go. Which would you suggest?

V: 18-day is the king of balut. You crack open the shell like this and then eat it with a pinch of salt. ...

R: OK, here we go. ...

B: So, what's it like?

R: It's very good. It's quite chewy. It's like a normal boiled egg cooked with a bit of meat. Not bad at all for a midnight snack.

3B, Page 26, Exercises 4 and 5

R = Richie, E = Enrique

R: This is one of my favourite restaurants in Sydney. I hope you like it.

E: The location is fantastic. I really wanted to see Bondi Beach and it's nice to eat outside on the terrace. This menu looks interesting. I've never eaten crocodile or kangaroo before. What would you recommend?

R: For the entrée I usually have the crocodile carpaccio with a side order of green salad.

E: OK, that sounds good. I think I'll have the same.

R: For the main course, you could try the grilled emu or the kangaroo steak if you want to try something new.

E: What's emu?

R: It's a sort of big, funny-looking bird we have here. It can't fly. It's similar to an ostrich.

E: What does it taste like? Chicken?

R: No, it's like beef, only it's healthier. Apparently, it has, er ... fewer calories and less fat.

E: Really? And what about the kangaroo?

R: That kind of tastes like beef, too, only it's tougher. The emu's more tender.

E: OK, I'll have the emu then.

R: Do you want to order any side dishes?

E: I don't know. What does it come with?

R: Um, you know, I don't remember. Let's get the waitress over and ask her.

E: What are you having for the main course?

R: Well, I've had a lot of red meat recently so I'm going for the white fish. Excuse me, hello ...

3B, Page 26, Exercises 6 and 7

R = Richie, E = Enrique, B = Barbara

R: Glad you could make it to the barbie, Enrique.

E: Thank you for the invitation. I've heard a lot about the traditional Australian barbecue. People eat lots of meat, don't they?

R: Yeah, well, it's changed. It's more prawns than steak these days, mate.

E: Why's that?

R: Everyone's getting more health conscious. Hey, I'd like you to meet my wife. Barbara this is Enrique. He's here from the Philippines on business.

B: Hi, Enrique.

E: Pleased to meet you.

B: Did Richie tell you about the time we went to the Philippines and he tried that duck egg?

E: Balut? Did you like it?

R: Yeah, it was great. Listen guys, I'm going to check on the barbie.

E: Can I help you with anything, Barbara?

B: No, I'm fine thanks. Help yourself to the salads. Is there anything you don't eat?

E: Well, I'm not allergic to anything, but is there any onion in the salads? I can't eat it, you see, it repeats on me.

B: No worries, there isn't any.

E: This looks good. What's in it?

B: Ah, I wouldn't eat that with your salad, Enrique, it's the chocolate mousse for dessert. ...

E: OK, thanks for warning me.

G = guest, H = host

G: Is that the check? Let me get that.

H: Oh no. This is on me.

G: No, no. Why don't we split it?

H: No, no. I insist. You're our guest.

G: Are you sure?

H: Yes, the company's paying.

G: Well, that's very kind of you.

H: It's our pleasure.

G: Well, thank you very much. It was a terrific meal.

H: I'm glad you enjoyed it. Don't forget your doggy bag.

Conversation 2
H = host, G = guest

H: Have some more paella.

G: No, no. It was terrific, but I couldn't manage any more.

H: Some more shrimps then?

G: No really, I'm full. I'm trying to diet.

H: You don't need to lose weight!

G: I do!

H: Just a few more?

G: Well … maybe just a few then.

H: Good, and a little more paella?

G: No really. I'll have to pass on that, but thank you.

G: Hello.

G: Sandy! Great to hear from you. How are you?

G: Not too bad. How's Peter?

G: Oh, nothing exciting. I've got some exams coming up so I'm studying all weekend.

G: Oh … I don't think I can. Sunday, you say?

G: It sounds great, but I have two exams the next day – Marketing and Accounting.

G: I'm really sorry but I have to study.

G: Thanks for thinking of me. Look, when my exams are over, perhaps you and Peter can come over to my place for a meal?

G: OK, choose a restaurant you want to go to and it'll be my treat.

G: No, no, I insist. It'll be your birthday present.

G: OK, I will. And have a lovely birthday on Sunday.

G: Bye.

G: Hello.

S: Hi, Gabriella, it's Sandy.

G: Sandy! Great to hear from you. How are you?

S: Pretty good thanks and you?

G: Not too bad. How's Peter?

S: Oh, same as ever. Listen, what are you doing this Sunday?

G: Oh, nothing exciting. I've got some exams coming up so I'm studying all weekend.

S: Can you take a break? It's my birthday and I'm having a party.

G: Oh … I don't think I can. Sunday, you say?

S: Yes, we're just inviting a few close friends and Peter's cooking lasagne.

G: It sounds great, but I have two exams the next day – Marketing and Accounting.

S: Oh, what a pity.

G: I'm really sorry but I have to study.

S: It's OK, I understand.

G: Thanks for thinking of me. Look, when my exams are over, perhaps you and Peter can come over to my place for a meal?

S: That'd be nice. Or we could all go out to a restaurant together.

G: OK, choose a restaurant you want to go to and it'll be my treat.

S: Oh, no. We'll pay for ourselves.

G: No, no. I insist. It'll be your birthday present.

S: No, you don't have to do that. Let's talk about it later. Go and get on with your studying and make sure you pass the exams.

G: OK, I will. And have a lovely birthday on Sunday.

S: I will. Take care. Bye now.

G: Bye.

4B, Page 38, Exercises 2 and 3

RS = Recruitment specialist, A = Job seeker 1, B = Jobseeker 2

RS: We all know that employers are looking for job-specific skills when they advertise a vacancy. But there are also certain skills that they're looking for in all their staff. They're what we sometimes call 'soft' skills or 'people' skills. Can anyone suggest what some of these might be?

A: Good communication?

RS: That's exactly right. One of the most important soft skills is communication. Employers want people who are able to express their thoughts well, both when speaking and when writing. They don't want someone who can't spell or speak coherently. And let's not forget, the other part of communication is being a good listener. Any other ideas?

B: Getting on with people is important.

RS: Yes, isn't it? You know, there are all kinds of personalities in a work environment and you need to be able to communicate with all of them to work as part of a team. We're talking about good interpersonal skills here.

A: I think they'd want someone to be organized.

RS: I agree. Organizational skills are also essential. Employers rarely want someone who is messy or disorganized. If you're able to maintain a tidy workplace without leaving piles of paper everywhere, they know your work habits and time management will be more efficient. Great!

There are three more soft skills I would add: firstly, the ability to do research. If you can find out about the company and make a good impression at the interview, it can help you to get the job. But that's not all. In most jobs you'll need to be able to research answers to questions as well as find data for your manager. Companies basically want people who are self-sufficient when they get a task like this to do.

Next comes analytical skills and the ability to think logically. Being able to look at routine problems and using your common sense to make good decisions is a part of most jobs.

Finally, you know, employers want people who have thought about their career growth. I mean, someone who is prepared to improve professionally by learning new things. The good news is that if you think you're weak in some of these areas, you can always get some training to help you improve. Any questions so far?

Mark

I never enjoyed studying when I was at school. I failed most of my exams and left at sixteen. I became a driving instructor and I've never needed many qualifications. But when my children started going to school, I wanted to be able to help them with their homework, so I started studying again.

I studied on my own at first. I got into computers, and taught myself how to do some programming and how to upgrade the hardware for the business.

Going from that to studying online was a natural progression. I've always been fascinated by law, so I signed up for a law degree with the Open University two years ago. I can't take time off work and studying online is much more flexible than attending full-time classes.

I can choose how much I want to study every year, which is a big advantage. It's also a bit cheaper than a traditional course.

Last year, our oldest son, Nathan, got a place at one of the best universities in the country to study law as well. We're very proud of him. So, you see, there are two students in our family at the moment!

Nathan says the worst part for him is all the exams. My course is less stressful because it's mostly continuous assessment.

I don't learn as quickly as him, as you can imagine. Let's face it, studying for a degree when you're young is easier than at my age. Fortunately, I can take it more slowly. I'll probably retire before I graduate.

It would be easy to give up. I'm just doing it for fun and to encourage my kids to be good students. But I'd like to carry on. I hope Nathan completes his course, but if he does drop out, he knows he can study online, like his dad, if he wants to.

Karen

I work in the R&D department. I think I'm very hard-working, but my boss tells me I'm a bit shy and lack confidence. She says I need to improve my communication skills. I always get nervous when I have to attend meetings. Actually, my boss doesn't speak very good English, so she always wants me to go with her when she has to negotiate product requirements with our clients. I prefer writing emails, although I know I need to be more confident when talking to people.

Ricardo

I help staff with any IT problems they have. I get on with everyone at work and I'm pretty good at what I do, but the job's getting a bit boring. The trouble is, I don't have any formal qualifications. I'm basically self-taught. But I'm 30 now and my girlfriend says it's a good idea to get a university degree. That way, I could get promoted and earn more money. I suppose I could work part-time and study but I'm not sure. If I study, I won't have time to do sports – and I love skiing and playing golf.

Nadia

I think I have quite a lot of work experience at 46. I also speak fluent Swedish, Russian and German, but I really need to improve my presentations skills in English. I have to travel a lot for work, and I sometimes give presentations at international conferences in the languages I know. The thing is, the company has now asked me to go to China for six months and I don't speak Chinese! But I'm worried that if I say no, I might lose my job.

O = Oskar, K = Karen

O: Hi, Karen. As you know, I'm talking to everybody about their training needs and the courses you're interested in. Have you had any thoughts?

K: Well, I would like to do something to, er … improve my confidence and er … my communication skills.

O: Uhuh, so, which course do you want to sign up for?

K: Uh, my boss recommends the Assertiveness course, but I'm also interested in Presentations Across Cultures.

O: Yes, but do you have to give presentations in your job now, Karen?

K: No, not really.

O: Then it might be better to do a simpler course.

K: Yes, but I'd like to be able to participate more in meetings and be more confident when speaking in public, you know.

O: So you don't feel comfortable in meetings?

K: To be honest, I find it difficult but I know it's something I need to improve. Actually, I think it might be a good idea if I do both courses.

O: Two courses?

K: Yeah, if that's OK with you. Assertiveness and er … Presentations Across Cultures.

O: The thing is, a&k will definitely pay for one of the courses, but I'm afraid we won't be able to pay for both courses. You see, the situation is they're cutting the training budget this year and they're only going to pay for one course per employee for members of staff at your level.

K: Oh, so what happens if I want to do another course?

O: Well, one option is that you pay for the course yourself. Another possibility is that you wait until next year and do the presentations course then. What I'm saying is, you don't really need to do the presentations course at the moment, do you?

K: Not right now, no. I don't know. Maybe I could pay for the course myself?

O: Yes. That could be the best solution if you'd like to do both courses.

K: Yes, and it will benefit the company, too, because I think I'll be able to contribute more in meetings.

O: Great. So, we've agreed that you'll sign up for both courses, and we'll pay for one of them. I don't think there will be a problem with that. But let me check with the Human Resources Director and I'll get back to you.

K: Will you able to let me know soon, Oskar?

O: Yeah, sure. I'll put that in writing to the director and copy you in, OK?

K: Sounds good.

O: And if you have any more questions, Karen, you know where I am.

K: Thanks.

P: Hi, Marco, it's Paul. Sorry to call you first thing on a Monday morning. It's about a problem we're having with this new database.

M: I'm sorry to hear that. What seems to be the problem?

P: You see we can't get access to all the fields. Is some of it password protected?

Conversation 2

M = Marco, P = Paul

M: Hi, Paul, it's Marco here. How are you? I hear the weather's been bad up north recently.

P: That's right. It's been snowing heavily, and apparently some villages had no electricity.

M: Did it affect you?

P: No, not much, happy to say. Didn't play football on Saturday, that's about all. And yourself? Did you have a good weekend?

M: Fine, thanks. Just relaxed with the family, and I had lunch with my in-laws on Sunday. Anyway, Paul, I was just phoning to check if you've tried out the modified version of that database.

P: Yes, we're working on it now in fact. It all seems to be working fine.

P = Presenter, Z = Zahir

P: Zahir Rahman has received many social enterprise awards. I spoke to him earlier today. Zahir, what is a social enterprise?

Z: It's basically an organization that provides goods or services like any other business, and uses the same business strategies.

P: So, how are social enterprises different from a commercial business?

Z: Well, like the name suggests, they focus on social causes and needs. It's central to what we do. But er, one of the main differences is that er, with social enterprise the profits generated are put back into the business rather than going into the pockets of owners or shareholders.

P: Can you give me some examples?

Z: Sure. For instance, it can be a company that promotes better health. There are lots and lots of examples all over the world. It could be a company that helps old people. Another example is a company that provides transport for remote communities. Some people talk about 'not-for-profit' organizations, but I prefer to call it 'more-than-profit'. It doesn't mean not for money, but the money's going back into the quality of service.

5E, Page 54, Exercise 3

Part two

P = Presenter, Z = Zahir

P: You started selling solar panels to poor communities in your native Bangladesh ten years ago, and today you have more than 180,000 customers. You call yourself a social entrepreneur. What does that mean exactly?

Z: I like to think I'm an innovator. A social entrepreneur is someone who identifies a social problem and then organizes and manages a business that will make change.

P: You studied economics. So, what made you want to be a social entrepreneur?

Z: I wanted to do some good, something ethical. Just making money isn't enough for me. When I left the US twelve years ago and came back home, I had very little money. I moved to a rural area, and lived in a house without electricity because I wanted to find out what it was like in those conditions. That gave me the idea for my first business. Having very little money helped me to be more innovative.

P: What projects are you working on now?

Z: Well, I've just started a low-cost mobile phone company. The batteries are solar powered. It's a very exciting project.

5E, Page 55, Exercise 9

David Horn
We're hoping to get a contract with a music company. The idea is that sales from our music will go back into the orchestra. I also plan to set up similar projects in poor communities in other parts of the country. But the most immediate project for us is to give concerts in other countries. Can you imagine how exciting this travel experience will be for these youngsters?

Carla D'Silva
I would like to create sculpture gardens on neglected land, something the local community can be proud of. If I win this award and get publicity, the local council will be more interested in working with us. I would also like to expand the art therapy to prisoners and I've already had a lot of interest from the prison service. And I want to open a café at the arts centre to get more people coming here.

Sally Warren
This award will bring us a lot of prestige. We want to negotiate with other local councils to run their sports and leisure facilities for them. We have shown our ability to run a profitable business and cut costs without cutting quality in three centres already. But most of all, we want to take sport to everyone in the community.

Jamie Barnes
I want to continue expanding the chain of restaurants in London. And set up a catering service for companies and individuals. It will be run as a commercial business just like the restaurants, and we'll also train apprentices at the same time. I'm also thinking of selling my own range of food. This will create more jobs.

1
My first boss was a doctor before she went into hospital management. I was only an admin assistant in the department, but she sometimes mentioned my research and contribution to her reports when we were in meetings with other managers. She didn't have to do it but she often thanked her staff and always shared the credit with us.

2
Our office manager encourages us to work independently so he's not keeping an eye on what we do all day long. The only problem is that my co-worker is really lazy and she keeps chatting on the phone to her friends and spending too much time on Facebook. Last week, we needed to prepare a presentation and I had to do most of it. I'm tired of doing her work as well as my own, but our manager doesn't seem to notice.

3
I once worked for a small marketing company and I shared an office with my boss, who just loved sending me emails. It was a bit strange. I could understand it when she was out of the office, but she didn't need to email me when she was sitting opposite me. Why didn't she just tell me the information I needed to know?

4
I once worked in a large open-plan office, but our section head put lots of partitions and plants around himself – to hide from us I think. He only spoke to the supervisors and not the rest of his staff. And he had some strange rules. Like, we had to speak to each other very quietly, and we weren't allowed to laugh because he said it was unprofessional. As you can imagine, they didn't keep staff for long in that department.

5
My boss has young children herself and values her free time. She knows how to keep her team happy. We don't need to work late often, but when there is something urgent or really important, like the monthly sales figures, nobody minds too much staying to get the work done.

M = Marianne, N = Nicole

M: Did you watch Mad Men last night?

N: Is that the show about some advertising executives?

M: Yeah, that's the one. It's set in New York in the 60s.

N: Why's it called 'Mad Men'?

M: They work in an ad agency on Madison Avenue.

N: Oh, yeah, I've heard of it. But I haven't seen it yet.

M: You must! It's great. It took me a few episodes to really connect with the show, but I love it now.

N: Why do you like it?

M: Lots of things; brilliant dialogues, amazing acting and it feels really authentic. You see what society was like in the sixties. In those days people were allowed to smoke at their desks, and everybody smokes a lot. And all the men had to wear smart suits, ties and hats to the office. The women's clothes and make-up are amazing, too. They're so glamorous.

N: Sounds interesting.

M: It is. The most interesting part is the lives of the female characters. You know, women were basically second-class citizens and had to fight a lot harder then. They usually had to work as telephone operators or secretaries, or be the perfect housewife and stay at home with the kids. And at work, the secretary had to make the coffee, and give the boss his hat and coat when he left for the day. It makes me realize how far we've come in society.

N: I'm glad those days are over!

K: Robert, I have a question. I want to ask Kristof for a few days off next month but I think he'll say no. It's one of our busy periods. I wonder what I should say to him.

R: Maybe you could just tell him why you need to have the time off.

K: OK, I'll try that.

R: And you might want to make sure your work is up-to-date before you go away.

K: Yes, that's a good idea. And I'll tell Kristof I'll do that.

R: And what you could do is leave information with me, you know, so I can cover for you. Tell Kris I'll take care of things, no problem.

K: Really? That's excellent. Thanks Robert. I'll do the same for you some day.

R: You're welcome. What do you need time off for, by the way?

K: I'm going away with my husband, without the kids. We need a break.

R: Well, good luck with Kristof.

K: You know that job interview I went for last week.

J: Yeah, did you get the job?

K: Well, I dunno. I haven't heard from them yet. But I thought the interview went really well. Do you think I should phone them?

J: No, don't do that yet. It'd be better to send them a thank-you note first.

K: A thank-you note? You must be joking!

J: No seriously, that's pretty standard in the States. An email will do. Then you follow up with a phone call.

K: Oh, no. I don't think that would work. We don't do that here.

J: Oh, OK. I think you should phone them then.

K: Yeah, perhaps. I'll give it another couple of days.

I was really excited about my first day and a bit nervous, too, because I'd never had a job before. When I got there I was shown to my desk and given things to do, but I wasn't really shown around or introduced. It was a busy office so I decided it was up to me to get to know everyone. To break the ice I went round asking the people in my team if they wanted a cup of tea. We soon got chatting and my nerves disappeared! I think that the key to a good first day in a new job is to make sure people know who you are. Don't be afraid to introduce yourself. It means you're included from the start, and even if not everybody's friendly at first, at least it's a start.

Saul
I could hardly sleep the night before my first day at the engineering firm. I was so tired that I kept getting things wrong when I was left to do something. Getting stuff wrong made me even more nervous and I couldn't really take in what was being said to me. I thought I was in trouble when my boss called me into his office, but he actually said that he could see I was nervous and that he would team me up with somebody the next day. Being partnered with someone more experienced was just what I needed. After that, it got loads better. Because I was being shown what to do by somebody I felt more included and learned a lot more.

7C, Page 73, Exercise 6

P = Presenter, A1 and A2 = Members of the audience

P: We asked everyone coming to the website to tell us which country they were from. Then we studied the data from the ten countries that rated the highest number of jokes.

There were some interesting differences between nations in terms of the jokes they found funny. For instance, people from The Republic of Ireland, the UK, Australia and New Zealand liked jokes involving a play on words – you know – where a word has two meanings. Americans and Canadians preferred jokes which make fun of someone's sense of superiority – so jokes where someone looked stupid, or was made to look stupid.

Many European countries, such as France, Denmark and Belgium, liked jokes that were a bit surreal. Do you know what I mean? European countries also enjoyed jokes about topics that often make us feel anxious, such as death, illness and marriage, like this one:

A woman told her friend, 'For eighteen years my husband and I were the happiest people in the world! Then we met.'

The other interesting thing about humour is that it's all about timing. … Our computers recorded the time that each person rated the jokes. We then looked at the data and examined how the way people found jokes funny changed over the course of the day. It seems people find the jokes funniest at six in the evening …

A1 and A2: Really? At six?

P: Yes, and they found a joke is least funny at half past one in the morning. People also found jokes funnier at different times during the month. They were the funniest on the fifteenth and less funny towards the end or start of the month. … So, if you want to make people laugh, tell a joke on the fifteenth of the month, at six in the evening!

And finally, many of the jokes people sent were about animals. We found that jokes about ducks are funnier than others. Why do you think that is?

A1: Perhaps it's because of their feet, and their funny walk.

A2: Or the funny sound they make?

P: That's right. Anyway, if you are going to tell a joke about an animal, make it a duck. Quack, quack.

A couple of hunters are out in the woods when one of them suddenly falls to the ground. He doesn't seem to be breathing and his eyes are rolled back in his head. So the other guy quickly takes out his cellphone and calls the emergency services. He shouts to the operator: 'My friend is dead! My friend is dead! What can I do?' The operator says: 'Calm down. I can help. First, let's make sure he's dead.' There is a silence, and then a shot is heard. Bang! The hunter's voice comes back on the line. The guy says: 'OK, now what?'

B: Mmm, did I tell you about the time I went on a bike ride at night?

G: No, what happened?

B: Well, I have a friend who's really into cycling and he once said, 'Come on, Ben! Go on a night ride with us.' My wife has a bike so I took it out that night. Three of his friends were there who were sort of super jocks.

G: Really athletic, huh?

B: Yeah, but they immediately started laughing. Apparently, I have a girl's mountain bike …

G: Really?

B: Yeah, I didn't know … Anyway, they started putting on elbow pads and all this protective clothing … and I was dressed in my shorts and T-shirt … and then they started putting on their helmets, like those helmets that have lights on them …

G: Like the ones you use for camping.

B: That's right. So, we started going along this road by the ocean and it was great. The moon was out … We'd gone three miles and I was getting kind of tired but I was enjoying it, …

G: So, what happened next?

7D, Page 74, Exercises 3 and 5

Part two

B = Ben, G = Georgia

B: After we'd gone five miles, we got to the top of this hill and everybody got off their bikes. I was thinking, 'Yes! We did it'. But then they started checking their bikes and gear and pulling out Powerbars, you know, those high energy cereal bars. And I said, 'What's going on?' and they said, 'Well, we're ready to start now'.

G: You mean, you'd just started!

B: Uhuh. And one guy, who's super-serious, just looked at me and said, 'Whatever happens, don't fight the mountain.'

G: Don't fight the mountain? You're kidding!

B: I had no idea what it meant but it scared me … And as they were going down the hill, I was falling behind.

G: They were too fast for you.

B: That's right, but I got this adrenaline rush and I was doing OK and I could hear them up ahead, shouting 'Come on, Ben!' and I suddenly heard one of them yell out, 'No brunch! No brunch!' And I think, this is some kind of biking term. I mean, we're going so well, we're not gonna stop to eat the Powerbars now. So I'm thinking, 'Yeah! No brunch! No brunch!' Then I look up and suddenly there is this great, big tree in front of me!

G: Oh no!

B: And you know they say when an accident happens everything slows down, you go in slow motion and you do whatever it takes to save yourself in that moment?

G: Yeah.

B: That didn't happen! So I slammed right into it … and as I came to, they were all looking at me saying, 'Ben, didn't you hear? We were shouting low branch!'

G: Oh, I see! Low branch, not brunch! … That's so funny … Actually, that reminds me of the time I went for a midnight swim with some friends …

Sam Harris

Part one

Let me tell you a bit about myself. I have a problem: I can't stop setting up online businesses. I'm basically a serial e-commerce entrepreneur, which is my real passion. In 1998, I started one of the UK's first price comparison websites. Then I became a co-founder of a clothing online retailer.

But today I'd like to tell you about Instant Desks. We can make a desk appear like magic. It's our new business venture and it's already profitable. Well, we haven't lost any money … yet. Don't you think that's great? Most start-ups don't make any money in their first year.

Part two

At Instant Desks we bring together businesses with spare desks with people who want to rent desks. If your mum is an entrepreneur, consultant, graphic designer or any other kind of freelancer, and she would like to rent some desk space with similar kinds of people – then she should use our site. Professionals, who we call 'deskers', can move into an office with interesting colleagues, where they'll have access to not only a desk, but also a broadband connection, a meeting room and other facilities. We can also help companies who are hoping to make a bit of extra money and want to rent out some spare desks.

So, how does Instant Desks work? The site has a really simple search engine. Enter the city or postcode of the area where you need desk space and how far you want to travel. You'll then get descriptions of desk spaces that are available in that area, complete with photos and maps. And if you're an advertiser, you just need to fill in details of where your office is, how much you want to charge for the work space and add anything else like descriptions of printers, the type of people who work there, tea and coffee facilities, that kind of thing. Don't worry, it doesn't take long – the site is incredibly user-friendly.

Right. You're probably thinking, 'How much does it cost?' The great thing about Instant Desks is it's absolutely free. It will always be free for people looking for desk space. And there's only a small fee for advertisers. We charge according to the number of completed forms or phone calls a company receives from people who might become deskers or customers. Any questions?

8A, Page 78, Exercises 3 and 4

Part one

P = Presenter, E = Erik

P: Has your organization gone green? If so, it is one of a few. According to a recent international survey, 80% of the world's businesses are still trying to work out what sustainability means to them. Earlier today I spoke to Erik Andersson, a consultant and expert on green business.

E: Now is the perfect time for businesses to go green. The typical first action to take is to work out how to use less electricity and reduce energy costs. If you replace your old light bulbs with low-energy ones, it can cut your electricity bills drastically and make the Finance Officer very happy.

Switch to more eco-friendly, fuel-efficient cars if you have a fleet of company vehicles. Many companies now buy energy efficient equipment as well.

Another typical move is to do something with all that stuff in the wastepaper bins. If you launch a recycling scheme, it probably won't save you money, but it will help to engage your employees and to win the all-important approval of your customers. Companies are also starting to buy part of their electricity supply from renewable sources, such as wind and solar power. Unless you have a lot of time and money, it makes sense to start with these simple initiatives.

8A, Page 79, Exercise 9

Part two

P = Presenter, R = Robyn, K = Kevin

P: The experts agree that easy measures such as energy-efficient lighting or recycling schemes can only produce limited results. The search engine Google is one corporation that is taking green initiatives to the next level. Robyn Beavers leads the company's Green Business and Operations Strategy team in California. I spoke to her by phone.

R: We use a lot of electricity and it just seems like the responsible thing to do, to show that a corporation can make a positive impact on the environment, but also that we can do it in a way that makes sense for our business. For instance, our large solar installation was a major project. Nine thousand solar panels now cover the rooftops of our headquarters Googleplex. These produce renewable energy without greenhouse gas emissions and provide 30% of the power we need at peak times. It makes good business as well as environmental sense. We'll earn our investment back in seven and a half years, and after that, we'll have cheap power for decades.

P: The company finds ways to engage its staff, too. Google donates money to charity if employees ride their bikes, walk or skateboard to work. It manages shuttle buses to carry Googlers to and from work and provides benefits for those who car share or take the train. And if they must use a car, the company encourages them to use an eco-friendly version, offering a cash incentive to staff who drive fuel-saving hybrid cars.

And it's not just large corporations that are making the transition to sustainable business. PB Copy, a two-man digital printing operation in Surrey, Canada, has found an innovative way to go green. The owners, Kevin LaHay and Shane Fortune, have connected an exercise bicycle to a battery pack to generate power for their office equipment. I spoke to Kevin LaHay.

K: We put in a couple of hours a day on the bike in the winter months. On days with lots of sunshine, our solar panels are able to generate most of the power to charge the batteries. If you pedal for ten minutes, it'll power 100 copies on the digital printer. When the battery is full, it can power three to four hours of printing. We ask customers to participate by riding the bike for a few minutes while they're waiting for their copies. They usually think we're joking but most people agree when they see we're being serious.

P: Combining this with two solar panels means 90 per cent of the company's print jobs now use renewable energy. LaHay believes this gives his company a competitive advantage.

A: Can I have a word?

B: Sure, what's up?

A: We've got a little problem with the photocopiers. They keep jamming.

B: Oh no!

A: I think it might be the new recycled paper. It's a bit of a pain.

B: Perhaps we should go back to using normal paper. It's not very eco-friendly though.

A: I called the paper manufacturers and they say their paper isn't the problem.

B: But you think it is.

A: Don't know. Maybe.

B: Do we know how often the copiers jammed before we used the recycled paper?

A: Well, no, not really.

B: So, what if we do a little experiment. Er, we could use normal paper in, say, half the copiers and the recycled stuff in the others. And record any paper jams over the next month, say.

A: Um. Why's that?

B: Well, then we'll know if it's a problem with the copiers or the recycled stuff.

A: OK. I like that idea. It's a start.

B: That's right and we can see what happens.

A: Good. Well, we haven't figured it out yet, but I think I know what to do now.

B: Great!

A: That was useful. Thanks!

S: My car's broken down again.

B: What's the problem this time?

S: Oh, I don't know. It's a real headache.

B: It's so unreliable. You need a new one.

S: Have you seen the prices of new cars?

B: Yeah, I know. But you can't do your job without it.

S: Mmm.

B: If we buy one second-hand, it'll be cheaper.

S: What? Get one that's just a few years old?

B: Yes.

S: We'd still need a loan to pay for it. Interest rates are terrible.

B: Not if we borrowed against the house.

S: That's an idea! I'll call the bank tomorrow.

B: So we have a plan of action now.

S: Yeah, I'm glad you thought of that.

8E, Page 87, Exercises 6 and 7

Environmental considerations play an important part in office design today. And we're not just talking about new projects, but also existing buildings. So, what makes an office 'green'? Well, there are various things that can reduce the negative environmental impact of a building. And improve the well-being of its occupants.

Firstly, let's take the location of the building. It's important to ask the question 'Can staff easily walk, cycle or take public transport to the office?' A second consideration is the use of water and a commitment to saving water wherever possible. Thirdly, in order to help reduce the organization's carbon dioxide emissions, offices should be designed to use less energy, for instance, through the use of energy-efficient equipment.

A fourth factor is materials selection. Is it an office that's been built using recyclable materials and organic non-volatile paints? We now realize that chemical emissions from certain paints and materials aren't good for our health. Fortunately, there are organic products which offer healthier, eco-friendly alternatives.

The fifth area is indoor environmental quality; for instance the use of glass walls and doors to make the most of natural light. And also improved ventilation systems. The green office doesn't just look nicer, it makes people feel better, too. Better quality of air and access to natural light make a huge difference. Studies show that access to daylight improves worker productivity by between five to twenty-five per cent.

Organizations are naturally concerned about the cost of all this. But there is a strong business case for the green office. Many examples show that over time, it actually saves money because energy bills are lower and staff productivity is higher. One recent example in the US, is the case of the software maker Adobe Systems. The company spent $1.4 million on a green office project at its San Jose headquarters and earned that investment back in energy savings in under 10 months.

To conclude, I believe that the sustainable office is both good for the environment and good for business, too.

I always prepare what I'm going to say before I make a phone call in English. I write down something like, 'Hello, it's Martine here. I'm phoning about the email you sent me. I have a few questions about …', and so on. If you know what you're going to say before you pick up the phone, it makes it easier.

2

I'm a trainer in communication skills. I often tell people, take a deep breath before you phone someone up or when you hear the phone ringing. Breathing really helps because the caller can hear it in your voice – they can tell if you're prepared or not. You can also use neat little phrases like, 'Hold on a minute, please. I'll just check that for you'. You can use the time to check the information, or think about what you're going to say next. It's also good to end the call on a positive note saying, 'Thanks for calling. It's good doing business with you', or, 'I'll look into it and I'll get back to you'.

3

Well, I work in sales and I'm on the phone all day, but I avoid making calls in English. If someone rings up, I ask a colleague to make an excuse and say I'm in a meeting or out of the office. Most people don't phone back. Once, I didn't understand anything a guy was saying. He had a funny accent and spoke too fast and I kept saying, 'Could you repeat that, please?' But in the end I hung up because I didn't understand a word.

4

We work in a busy open-plan office, but I prefer to take my phone calls in English in a quiet place, so I always ask the receptionist to put the caller through to a meeting room. And I usually ask my colleague to come with me. She's good at listening, so we put the speaker phone on and we can both listen at the same time. And if I don't understand something, I put the caller on hold and check with my colleague. But you can't do that very often.

Call 1

Could you erm … we're not available right now, sorry. Could you please leave a message after the tone … oh, and our hours of operation are nine to five, that's Monday to Friday, but not Saturday. Bye.

Call 2

Hello, it's Amrit here from Nano-tech Systems in Delhi. I'd like to speak to the laboratory manager, Isabel Fernandez. It's about some equipment we ordered from you last month. I sent you a couple of emails last week, Isabel. Could you call me back as soon as you can? Thank you.

Call 3

S = Steve, C = Chloe

S: Hi.

C: Oh, uh, hello. Is that the IT department?

S: Yep. … How can I help you?

C: Oh, I'd like to speak to Steve, please.

S: That's me.

C: Right, well, this is Chloe Jones from Hydra Energies. I'm phoning about the software you installed for us recently. I'm afraid we're still having a few problems with it.

S: Oh, you want to speak to Danny about that.

C: Danny?

S: Yep, he's the boss.

C: The thing is, it's a bit urgent and I was wondering if you could …

S: Yeah, sorry. It's his day off. He'll be in tomorrow. I'll tell him you called. Bye.

Call 4

D = Danny, C = Chloe

D: OK, Chloe, so one of our engineers will come round on Thursday morning to reinstall the programme.

C: The thing is, we're working on a big project at the moment.

D: Yes, I understand. I'm sure we'll be able to fix it on Thursday. And I'm really sorry again about not calling you sooner but, you know, I only got the message this morning. Was there anything else, Chloe?

C: Yes, just one thing. What's the name of the engineer who's coming?

D: Er, let's see … Greg.

C: Oh, fine. Not Steve then?

D: No, it's Greg. He's our software specialist.

C: Great. I'll see Greg on Thursday at eight then.

D: Yes, Thursday at eight a.m. And if there's anything else, Chloe, just call me on my mobile, OK?

C: Thanks a lot, Danny.

D: Thanks for calling. It's good doing business with you. Bye.

C: Bye.

Conversation 1
A = Alex, R = Receptionist

A: Hi.

R: Hello. Can I help you?

A: Yes, tell me how to get to the IT department.

R: … The IT department?

A: Yes.

R: It's that way.

A: Thanks.

Conversation 2
W = Waitress, H = Horst

W: Can I help you?

H: Would you be so kind as to give me a chicken sandwich and an orange juice, please?

W: Excuse me?

H: Would you be so kind as to give me a chicken sandwich and an orange juice, please?

W: Yeah, OK. I heard you the first time.

Conversation 3
T = Teacher, P = Pieter

T: OK, so we'll go by train. Pieter, do you think you could check the train times on the internet tonight?

P: No, I can't tonight. Sorry.

T: Oh, OK … Ana, would you mind checking the times?

1
W = Woman, Wa = Waiter

W: A caffè latte, please.

Wa: One latte, coming up.

2
A: Do you mind if I help myself to coffee?

B: Sure. Go ahead. The kitchen is the first door on the right.

Situation 2

1
A: Would it be OK to use the Canon projector for my presentation?

B: I'm afraid not. The thing is, it's being repaired at the moment.

A: Oh, OK. I'll just use my laptop then.

2
A: I'd like to speak to somebody in technical support, please.

B: Press one for technical assistance. Press two for all other services.

1
A: Do you mind leaving at four?

B: Actually four is a bit early. I thought we could leave at about four thirty if that's all right with you.

A: Of course. That'll be fine.

2
A: Let's leave around four, OK?

B: Is that four o'clock real time or your time?

A: Four my time, of course. Cheeky!

Situation 4

1
A: Do you think you could send me those pdf files?

B: Certainly. I'll do that right away.

2
A: Oh no, my computer's crashed. Can I use yours?

B: Actually, I have to send an urgent email. Sorry. Try Liz.

9E, Page 97, Exercise 6

Tanya
I spend a lot of time writing emails and using Skype and I sometimes organize teleconferences. But they're difficult to set up because of the time differences. And then I have to confirm everything and put any verbal agreements in writing. I think I'm developing a bit of a 'Superwoman syndrome'. You know, you think you can do everything yourself and it's difficult to know when to stop, but I'm really excited about the project!

Lauren
My supervisor is busy all the time, so I don't get to speak to her on the phone that much. But she trusts me to get on with the job. She's also really good at giving me regular positive feedback and she always replies within 24 hours. But we usually meet up face-to-face with the team once a month, which is good fun. I think it's important to have that social contact. The downside is I've got to be connected to the intranet most of the time and sometimes at weekends, but I enjoy the autonomy. That's cool.

Lidia
The thing I find challenging is that I feel quite isolated. The time differences are a problem, too. We usually start talking about work straightaway and there's no time to make small talk. I think remote managers have a difficult time managing people in different locations. I know travel budgets are being cut these days, but I think the team should meet more often face-to-face.

9E, Page 97, Exercises 8 and 9

E = Erik, L = Lidia

E: Hi, Lidia.

L: Hello, Erik.

E: What's up?

L: I'm just phoning to check if you got the user manual for the new software because it's been updated …

E: Listen, Lidia, I'm between meetings, so this will have to be quick. Before I forget, can you send me those pdf files with the new project proposals? It's urgent.

L: The thing is, I haven't received all the proposals yet. There are two missing …

E: … I'm sorry, this line's bad. It would be great if you could email them to me today.

L: Today? I'm really sorry, Erik. Do you mind if I send them on Friday? For the weekend …

E: The weekend? No, no, that's too late.

L: The thing is all the project managers have been very busy with this new software.

E: I know. I know. But I've got meetings all day today and tomorrow. Look, can you do me a favour?

L: Sure. What is it?

E: Do you think you could phone the project managers?

L: Uh, OK. I'll do that straightaway. Actually, Erik, I think the team should meet to, er …

E: No problem. It's already been set up.

L: Er, I don't mean another videoconference. I mean a face-to-face …

E: Lidia, is it OK if I call you this evening? About nine?

L: Is that Oslo time?

E: … Sorry, got to go now, Lidia.

L: I'll speak to you later then.

E: Oh, by the way, I'm having trouble using this new software.

L: I've already sent you the manual, Erik.

E: Thanks. Bye.

L: Bye.

If I'd been in Karl's position, I'd've done the same.

2
If he'd known nothing about the software, he'd've had problems doing his job.

3
My sister wouldn't've got her first job in radio if she hadn't claimed that she already had some experience.

4
Would the company've fired him if he hadn't been the boss?

10A, Page 101, Exercise 10

Then I went into my new boss's office and told her that she'd be getting a call from Human Resources in a moment. I explained exactly what I'd done. She thanked me for my honesty and told me that there was more on my resume that recommended me besides my degree. She said that I seemed to be doing OK – although I'd only been working there for two weeks or so. And she let me stay on. I did very well there, but I learnt my lesson and I've never lied on my resume since.

10B, Page 103, Exercises 5 and 6

Dan

It was a dream house. Just what I'd always wanted – in a quiet suburb, perfect for writing. I've been a good friend to Kumar. I've helped him move, and I've also lent him my car. I didn't want to ask him for the money, but, hey, house prices are so high these days. … Yeah, I guess I should have waited another year.

… Sure, if Kumar had had financial difficulties, I would've done the same for him. I mean, we've known each other since we were at college. Anyway, he agreed, I paid the down payment and moved in and spent loads of time writing on weekends and during my vacation. The thing is, I couldn't find a publisher for the book. It was really frustrating. So, after six months of this, I explained the situation to Kumar, saying that I was really sorry but I didn't have enough money to pay him back. Actually, I was a bit surprised when he looked annoyed and asked me to pay it back by the end of the year. He knows I have the mortgage to pay and that I don't earn much money at the bookstore. And he earns much more than me.

… Yeah, of course I plan to pay back two thousand dollars by the New Year.

I'm going to save up and if it doesn't work out, I suppose I'll get some extra work in the evenings. … I dunno, as a waiter, or something.

… No, I can't ask my mom for the money. No way.

She can't afford it on her pension. I just think Kumar could've been a bit more understanding about my financial situation. After all, that's what friends are for, right?

10B, Page 103, Exercises 7 and 8

Kumar

Dan and me used to get on really well until this business with the money. We'd been to college together and I'd always been able to talk to him about everything. But we'd never discussed personal finances. I mean, I knew he earned less than me, but he'd never asked me for money before. … Sure, when he asked for five thousand dollars for the down payment for the house, I was surprised.

It was a lot of money. But I thought, hey, he's a great guy, so I gave it to him.

… Yeah, I felt a bit uncomfortable about the situation 'cos I wasn't sure how he planned to repay it.

He said he didn't wanna ask his mom because she was retired and all that. What was I supposed to do? I couldn't say no, could I? Dan promised to pay me back and I believed him, although my other friends say I shouldn't have lent him the money.

Anyway, six months later, he still hadn't paid me back. We'd never agreed on an exact date or anything. He hadn't been able to find a publisher for his book and I thought, well, that's not my problem. So I just asked him to pay it back by the end of the year. I wasn't charging interest, was I? And he looked kind of offended, but I thought, five thousand dollars is five thousand dollars. I mean, we've always been close but he's not family, or anything.

… No, I don't see much of him these days.

It seems as if he's avoiding me. He's not answering my calls – stuff like that. If he doesn't have enough money to pay me back, he should ask for a bank loan. But the worst thing is the money has changed things between us. It shouldn't have affected our friendship.

Companies often resort to the public apology when things go wrong. Take the disastrous opening of Heathrow Airport's terminal 5. The day the terminal went into full operation in 2008, thousands of passengers suffered long delays and lost their luggage. British Airways quickly apologized and promised immediate action. The company even organized four hundred volunteers to help sort out the mess and reunite passengers with their luggage.

In another famous example in 2007, US toy company Mattel apologized publicly to Chinese manufacturers and political officials for the recall of nearly 20 million toys made in China. Executive Vice President Thomas Debrowski said at the time, 'Mattel takes full responsibility for these recalls and apologizes personally to you, the Chinese people, and all of our customers who received the toys.'

Mr Debrowski added that a majority of the problems were associated with design problems, not Chinese manufacturers. Experts said this public apology by Mattel in China was important to maintain good relationships with suppliers there. It was all about saving face and a private apology wouldn't have done that for China.

E = Employee, A = Alicia.

E: I'm really sorry, Alicia. You know that progress report you wanted today? I'm afraid I haven't had time to finish it. There's just been so much to do and a few people are off sick. I'll get on to it first thing tomorrow.

A: Well, thanks for letting me know. Don't worry about it. Tomorrow will be fine.

Conversation 2

A: I'm sorry. I didn't see you there. Are you all right?

B: Yes, yes. Fine thanks.

Conversation 3

J = Jin, W = Werner

J: I'm sorry, Werner. I did something silly and accidentally deleted that match you were recording.

W: What?

J: I feel really bad about it. I know you love your tennis.

W: Jin! It was the Shanghai Open final. I really wanted to watch that later.

J: I know, I know. I'm sorry. Look, I'll make us something special for dinner.

W: Oh, go on then.

Conversation 4

A: Next, please.

B: Yes. Can I have ...?

C: Excuse me, I was here before you.

B: Oh, so sorry. I didn't mean to push in.

C: That's OK.

S: How was your day, Tom?

T: Not bad, not bad, nothing special.

S: How's that friend of yours, Raul?

T: Hey, he found a fantastic cellphone in the park on the way home from school.

S: Yeah? What did he do with it?

T: He's gonna keep it. It's much better than his old phone. He threw away the chip and put in his.

S: Oh!

10E, Page 108, Exercise 6

T = Tom, S = Susan, J = John

T: He's going to keep it. It's much better than his old phone. He threw away the chip and put in his.

S: Oh! Do you think he should've done that, Tom? Kept the phone?

T: Well, no. I guess not.

J: Why not?

T: Well, it's not exactly stealing, but it's kind of dishonest.

J: What did you say to him?

T: I said he was lucky. I'd really like a cellphone like that.

S: You know, you could've told him to use the phone to call the owner or given it to a teacher to find the owner.

T: Yeah, I know. I'm really sorry. But, hey, you found twenty dollars the other day and kept it.

S: That's not the same!

10E, Page 109, Exercises 10 and 11

S = Susan, J = John, D = Driver

S: Well, we've finished all the shopping.

J: What'll we have for dinner?

S: I don't know. How about pizza? It's nice and quick.

J: OK, sounds good to me. Hey, isn't that Michelle's new boyfriend over there? Who's he with?

S: I don't know. Look! They're holding hands!

J: I knew there was something I didn't like about him.

S: So, are you going to tell Michelle?

J: Tell her? Would that be a good idea?

S: And if she finds out you knew something, but didn't tell her?

J: Oh! But what if she hates me for telling her? Why don't you talk to her?

S: She's your sister. I think it's better if you do it.

J: I'll have to think about it. Hey, I wanna go to the bookstore. Let's cross here.

S: Wait for the light! ...

D: Get out of the road!

J: Watch where you're going!

D: Are you blind? The light was red!

J: The light was changing! I had the right of way.

S: Come on, John, let's go.

11C, Page 114, Exercise 2

J = Jasmine, D = Daniel

J: So, what have we got lined up for next month, Daniel?

D: Well, there's an interview with dental nurse Sandra Harzog for our Spotlight On column. I spoke to her last week. She's Australian, you know. She's been working at the hospital for two years now. And we haven't done an article about anyone from that department recently.

J: Have we got a photo to go with the article about her?

D: Not yet, she's going to email one.

J: OK. And Alan Murray has sent his annual message about future plans for the hospital. We'll have to include that somewhere.

D: Do you think we could put that on page two, Jasmine, and keep the front page a bit light and fun for the staff?

J: Yes, he's a good sort. I don't think he'll mind.

D: And I've got a nice little piece about the new public park. Hospital staff have been helping to raise funds for improvements to the park and they've collected £5,000 already. The mayor has agreed to attend the official opening.

J: Yes, that sounds great.

D: Now what about something on a big public event? What's on the calendar for next month?

J: Not much. January and February is kind of a quiet time. Ah! There is the Lunar New Year, but we did something on that last year.

D: It doesn't matter. Nobody will mind. Anyway, there's a big Chinese community locally and it's colourful. We can include images of the Chinese horoscope as well. It'll look good on the page.

J: OK, I'll go along with that.

11C, Page 114, Exercise 3

D = Daniel, S = Sandra

D: So, how long have you been working at the hospital, Sandra?

S: I've been working at Barkington for almost two years now.

D: Is that an Australian accent I hear?

S: Yes, that's right. I'm originally from Melbourne.

D: Have you been living in the UK long?

S: Not very. I've only been living here since 2007. I miss the sun but I love it here.

D: Tell us about the project you're working on.

S: I've been working on the new digital records scheme for six months. It's making a huge difference to the way we work.

D: What do you like doing in your free time?

S: Well, I never learnt to play a musical instrument when I was young and I've always wanted to. My partner surprised me and bought me a piano for my birthday in September. And I've been learning to play since then. But I'm terrible at it!

11D, Page 117, Exercises 7, 9 and 10

M = Michaela, D = Dev

M: Hi, I don't think we've met before. I'm Michaela Perry.

D: Nice to meet you, Michaela. I'm Dev Sharma.

M: So, tell me about yourself Dev. Which department are you in?

D: PR. I'm the Assistant to the Events Coordinator, Amrita Krishen.

M: Really? That's cool! How's it going?

D: Things are pretty quiet at the moment. It's going to be hectic next month though. And Amrita's going to be away.

M: Oh yes, I hear she's expecting.

D: That's right. Twins!

M: Oh terrific. So who will be in charge when she goes on maternity leave?

D: Me, I'm taking over from her next month.

M: Are you? Congratulations!

...

D: So, how about you Michaela? What do you do?

M: Well, I work in IT. I've just become Head of Special Projects, and I'm still finding my feet.

D: Wow! Sounds interesting! Doesn't Massimo work in your department?

M: Well, yes, he did. Actually, he left under a cloud.

D: No! I'm sorry to hear that.

M: It's probably best not to talk about it.

D: I see. So, Michaela perhaps you could help me sort out a new database for the PR department.

M: I'd be very happy to. Hey! Maybe at the same time you could give me some ideas for some team-building activities for my new staff.

D: Um. It's not my area, I'm afraid, but I know just the man to help you. Let me introduce you to Stefan. He's just over there.

11E, Page 119, Exercise 7

A = Aidan, M = Marama

A: Marama, I've been thinking about the annual barbecue.

M: Yeah. I've been thinking about that myself. Summer's fast approaching, so we'll have to start working on it.

A: Well, I was wondering if we should do something different this year.

M: What did you have in mind?

A: Well, I get bored sitting around all day eating. I'd like to do something more active for a change. How about we cancel the barbecue with the staff and their families? I've been reading up on team-building events. We could organize one of these instead.

M: Would we invite the partners and the kids to it?

A: No, I'd like it to be more of a work event this year, but we'd have fun, of course. What do you think?

M: It could work. I mean, if you've involved staff in planning the activities, it will motivate them more. You know, find out what they enjoy doing and learning.

A: Good point. Can you ask around then?

M: OK, will do.

1
Yeah, we've been having a summer barbecue for years now. I think it's time for a change. I'm only 25, so it isn't of much interest to young people like me in the company. It would be different if they organized some team sports or something on the day, for those who want to do something more active.

2
To tell you the truth, I'm really not keen on team-building events. It seems like it's just for the sporty types and I don't see how being competitive helps to develop a team spirit. The winners go away happy and the losers feel miserable. I know there are a lot of sporty types among the engineers, but I think team-building events are a waste of time.

3
I've got a suggestion. I think it would be good if we do some volunteer work as a team-building exercise for the day. You know, we could plant some trees somewhere or do something more useful than hang off ropes. Let's make the event something that brings the team together and is worthwhile at the same time.

4
Most of us have young families in the company. And my husband and kiddies love coming to the barbecue every year. They'll miss it if we don't do it this year, and I'm going to feel guilty if I have to go off somewhere without them.

5
A friend of mine told me about a great event she attended. She said that each group had to plan and put on a show together. She said it was fun and non-competitive and everyone was able to draw on their creativity. They discovered all sorts of hidden talents. At the end of the day, it was entertaining to see the shows.

12B, Page 122, Exercises 4 and 5

P = Presenter, T = Tim

P: So now we're going over to South London to speak to Tim Gordon, our correspondent there. Good morning, Tim.

T: Good morning.

P: Could you tell us how she is this morning?

T: Well I heard from the hospital just half an hour ago. It seems she's a little better this morning. She's had breakfast and was talking to the hospital staff.

P: Do you know why she was taken ill like this?

T: The hospital hasn't made any official statement. It's possible that it was mainly stress. People are saying that the latest tour was a mistake so soon after her recent operation, and of course there's been her divorce as well.

P: But it was very dramatic, the way it suddenly happened during the interval of the concert. There has been speculation in the press that this was a heart attack. Is that still a possibility?

T: Well, like I said, the hospital hasn't confirmed anything.

P: Have you spoken to her daughter yet?

T: No, but she's staying nearby. We're expecting her to visit later this morning.

P: So we can't rule out the possibility that this was a heart attack?

T: No. It could have been.

12C, Page 124, Exercises 1, 2, 3 and 4

Well, I've often paid for flights and holidays on the internet and felt safe about giving my credit card details. But this one time I was nearly ripped off. You see, I hired a car through this cheap online car hire company, but when my credit card bill arrived, they'd overcharged me by 500 euros. So, you know, I email the company and they say the 500 euros is just being held as a deposit and they'd refund my money within 15 days. Well, it didn't happen, and so I keep phoning and emailing but I just get an answerphone message or no reply at all. It was really frustrating. Anyway, in the end, I reported them to the trading standards people. They were absolutely great. They found out this car hire company was still operating, got the address and wrote to them. And, you know, I got my money back. Needless to say, I've learnt my lesson. I'll only give my details online to well-known, reputable companies now. I mean, there are a lot of internet scams about these days.

Results from a survey reveal that 60% of UK homeowners prefer cash-in-hand builders. The survey commissioned by the National Federation of Builders claims that over half of Britons would risk hiring a cowboy builder to carry out work on their home.

Sixty-one per cent of the 2,000 UK adults surveyed are tempted by a tax-free deal on their building work because of the high costs.

Many people are victim to cowboy tradesmen in order to save money, but then find they have no legal protection when things go wrong. There are over 100,000 complaints made about rogue tradesmen each year, according to figures from the Trading Standards.

3
So, yesterday I was at work – I work in a chemist's – this guy comes up and we were really busy for a Monday. And, so anyway, he drops off a prescription and I told him that it'd be about half an hour, because we were, you know, really busy. And so anyway, I passed his prescription to the pharmacist and continued to serve the other customers in the shop. Well, he comes back about forty minutes later. In the meantime, the pharmacist had given the prescription back to me 'cos we didn't have any in stock. Well, he got really angry about it at all. He started screaming and yelling, 'Ah, this service is terrible! Blah, blah, blah. Let me talk to your manager'. I mean this guy was really shouting. And, so you know, my manager comes over and she tries to talk to him and, you know, he keeps shouting and insulting her. I mean, just, we didn't do anything wrong, we didn't make any mistakes. I didn't know we wouldn't have any of that medicine when I told him to come back in half an hour. Well, as you can imagine, we're not going to serve that man again.

4
Overcharged bills! Low quality goods! Poor customer service! Just when bad business thought it was safe to rip people off, there's a new consumer site that's hit the internet: www.iripoff.com. A site designed by consumers for consumers. By filling out an anonymous complaint, it's like putting up your very own website. Users can upload images and attach voice audio to their complaints. Complaints which are then visible to millions worldwide on www.iripoff.com.

N: Two. ...

C: Ritchie's Customer Services. How may I help you?

N: Hello, I'd like to make a complaint about the delivery charges on my last order.

C: Could I have your name, please, sir?

N: Yes, it's Neil Jackson, that's N-E-I-L Jackson.

C: And your order number?

N: Let me see ... Um, it starts with a hash sign, then five, two, eight, oh sorry, that's five, eight, two, slash, one, O, seven, hyphen nine, four, O, three, six.

C: So that's hash, 582, slash, 107, hyphen, 94036.

N: That's right.

Call 2

C = Customer Service rep, T = Tara

C: Ritchie's.

T: Hello, is that customer services?

C: Yes, how can I help you?

T: I'm phoning about a delivery you sent me.

C: I see. Can you give me your name, please?

T: Tara Jackson.

C: Is that T-A-R-A?

T: Yeah. The thing is, you've sent me the wrong stuff. I didn't order a blue top. I ordered a brown one. Blue's not my colour ...

C: Just one moment. Can I have the order number, please, Ms Jackson?

T: What? Oh yeah, it's somewhere here. ... Dad, have you seen the piece of paper with the order number? ... On the table? Wait a minute, it's here somewhere. ... Got it. It's, er ... one of those funny signs.

C: You mean a hash?

T: Yeah, hash, then five, eight, two, slash, four, one, two, hyphen, eight, seven ... oh sorry, that's a nine, seven, double two, seven.

C: Can I read that back to you? Hash, 582, slash, 412, hyphen, 97227. And you say that you've received the wrong colour top?

T: Yeah, I've already told you. I wanted brown, not blue.

Call 1, Part 2

C = Customer Service rep, N = Neil

C: And what seems to be the problem, Mr Jackson?

N: The thing is, on your website it says all deliveries are free but I see from my bill that I have been charged for delivery.

C: Just one moment ... I see your order came to 48 Euros, Mr Jackson. But the offer only applies to deliveries of over 50 Euros, not for orders of less than 50 Euros.

N: Well, I think your promotion is misleading because it doesn't say that.

C: If you look at our website, sir ...

N: Hold on a minute. ... Right, I have it here on my screen.

C: ... and scroll right down to our terms and conditions, you will see that they refer to deliveries over 50 Euros only. It's the last part.

N: Oh, I didn't see that. The terms and conditions are at the bottom of the screen.

C: I'm afraid your bill is correct, sir. Do you require any more assistance?

N: No, but I don't think that's right.

C: I'm sorry to hear that, but you have been charged correctly. Would you like another service, Mr Jackson?

N: No. It's just that your website is confusing. If I'd known, I would have bought another item because my order only came to 48 Euros.

C: I understand, sir. That must be annoying for you. I'll pass on your complaint and you could also complete our online customer service questionnaire.

N: Oh, all right then. Where's that?

Present tenses

Present simple

Use

We use the present simple to talk about regular activities, long-term situations and things that are always true.

I often listen to my mp3 player on my way to work.

She works as a life coach.

Form

Affirmative sentences Use the base form of the verb. Add s to third person forms.	I/You/We/They work long hours. He/She/It watches a lot of TV.
Negative sentences Use don't (do not). Use doesn't (does not) with third person forms.	You don't do much exercise. It doesn't take long to walk to the office.

Frequency adverbs

1 We usually place frequency adverbs before the main verb.

I often work at weekends.

He usually remembers my name.

2 Frequency adverbs usually come after the verb be.

She is often out of the office.

Present continuous

Use

We use the present continuous to talk about current activities or short-term activities.

She's talking on the phone at the moment.

I'm taking an MBA course.

> ! There are some verbs that we do not usually use in their continuous form because they describe states, not activities, e.g. want, need, believe, know and have (in the sense of own or possess).
>
> He ~~is wanting~~ wants to spend more time with his family.
>
> She ~~is having~~ has a lot of responsibility at work.
>
> We can use think in the present simple and present continuous, but there is a change in meaning.
>
> What do you think? (What's your opinion?)
>
> I'm thinking of hiring an assistant. (I'd like to hire an assistant but it's just an idea at the moment.)

Form

Affirmative sentences Use the verb be + the -ing form of the verb.	I am working. You/We/They are working. He/She/It is working.
Negative sentences Use the negative form of the verb be.	I'm not studying any more today. You aren't working. He isn't working.

Present tense question forms

Use

We use open questions when we want more information from someone or we want to keep the conversation going. We start these with a question word or question words.

How often do you cycle to work?

How long does the journey take?

What do you suggest I do?

Which activity do you prefer?

Where are you going now?

What kinds of things do you like doing in your free time?

Form

Present simple Use do or does and a question word if necessary.	Do you have many hobbies? Does he/she work long hours? Where do you live?
Present continuous Change the word order and use a question word if necessary.	Are you trying to find a new job? What is he doing now?
Subject questions These are questions where the first word is the subject. Don't use do or does and don't change the word order.	Who likes doing adventure sports? Which machine isn't working today?
Short answers There are no question words in yes/no questions. These types of questions start with an auxiliary verb. In the present simple, use do/does or don't/doesn't in short answers and in the present continuous use the verb be.	Does he know Nancy? No*, he* doesn't*.* Are you prioritizing your work? Yes*, I* am*.*

Present perfect simple

Use

We use the present perfect simple to speak about the past and the present together. We use it to talk about:

1 Present results – past actions with results that are important in the present:

I 've finished the report. (You can have it now.)

We often use the present perfect to give news:

He 's just got a new job.

2 Unfinished actions – actions or states that began in the past and are still continuing now:

She 's worked as a journalist for a long time.

He 's played professionally since 2001.

The time expressions for and since are often used to connect the past and present. We use for with a period of time and we use since with a point of time.

She's lived here for five years.

He's worked here since 2008.

When we speak about 'unfinished time' we often use the adverbs already and yet to describe things which are happening or expected to happen around the present. The adverb already may express some surprise, e.g. because something has happened sooner than expected.

She's only 28 but she's already written three novels.

We use not yet to describe something that hasn't happened so far but is expected to happen in the future.

He has n't found the right business partner yet*.*

3 Experience – finished actions that happened at an indefinite time in the past:

I love that film. I've seen it three times. (three times in my life before now)

She has won several business awards. (it's part of her life's experience)

Have you ever been to Paris? (at any time up to now)

I 've never seen that before. (not at any time in my life)

For information on the present perfect and the past simple, see page 164.

Form

Affirmative sentences Use have/has + past participle. Irregular verbs sometimes have a special past participle form. For a list of irregular verbs see page 176.	He/She/It has worked here for five years. I/You/We/They have been to Italy. He/She/It has been to Italy.
Negative sentences Use has/hasn't + past participle.	I/You/We/They haven't seen this before. He/She/It hasn't done this before.
Questions Change the word order.	Has he/she/it ever won an Oscar? Where have you been?
Short answers Use has/have or hasn't/haven't.	Have they seen the report? Yes, they have. / No, they haven't.

Present perfect continuous

Use

1 We use the present perfect continuous with for and since to talk about unfinished activities.

A: How long have you been learning to play the piano?

B: For a few years now.

2 We use the present perfect continuous to talk about or explain the present consequences of an activity.

You 've been running, haven't you? You're out of breath.

He's tired because he 's been working a lot lately.

3 We often use the adverbs lately, recently, always, only, never, ever, still and just with the present perfect continuous. The adverbs always, only, never, ever, still and just are put between the auxiliary and main verb. Lately and recently are usually at the start or end of the phrase.

I've just been talking to the supplier.

We've only been working on this project for a few months.

I've been travelling a lot for work lately.

Recently, he's been working very hard.*

Form

Affirmative sentences Use have/has + been + verb + ing.	I/You/We/They have been living here for three years. He/She/It has been living here since 2008.
Negative sentences Use have/has + not + been + verb + ing.	I/You/We/They haven't been feeling well lately. He/She/It hasn't been feeling well lately.
Questions Change the word order.	Have I/you/we/they been talking too loudly?* Has he/she/it been working today?* What have you been eating?
Short answers Use has/have or hasn't/haven't.	*Have they been working hard? Yes, they have. / No, they haven't.

Present perfect simple vs present perfect continuous

Use

We use the present perfect continuous with 'active' verbs (e.g. learn, run, study). With 'state' verbs (e.g. be, know, have, like) we generally use the present perfect simple.

I have had my flat for ten years now.

We have known each other since we were at primary school.

When we talk about unfinished actions, the present perfect simple and present perfect continuous have the same meaning.

I've worked here for two years. = I've been working here for two years.

How long have you lived in Rome? = How long have you been living in Rome?

However, when we're using the present perfect continuous to talk about recent activities, there can be differences in meaning. Compare these sentences:

He's been travelling a lot for work lately. (a situation that continues today)

He's travelled to a lot of countries. (life experiences and completed actions)

We've been packing all morning. (this activity is probably not finished)

We've bought some new furniture. (this is a completed activity)

Past tenses

Past simple

Use

We use the past simple to talk about finished actions and situations in the past. They may have happened recently or in the distant past.

I saw the film a few days ago.

The first modern Olympic Games were in April 1896.

One common use is to tell stories.

I went to a conference last month and met an old colleague.

A funny thing happened to me on my commute to work yesterday.

Form

Affirmative sentences Add -ed to the base form of the verb. There is no special third person form. Irregular verbs have a special past form. See page 176 for a list of irregular verbs. The past forms of be are was and were.	I/You/He/She/It/We/They worked in a jazz club. He became a professional player in 2001. She began her career 30 years ago. He/She/It was in Hong Kong last year. We/You/They were in Australia in March.
Negative sentences Use didn't (did not) + the base form of the verb. With the verb be, use wasn't (was not) and weren't (were not). For modal verbs, e.g. could, would, add not to the end of the modal verb.	We didn't understand the question. He wasn't good at sports at school. They weren't happy about their team's result. I could understand French but I couldn't speak it.
Questions Use did + the base form of the verb. With the verb be, change the word order.	Did you get my email?* When did he win a gold medal? Was he good at sports at school?*
Short answers Use did/didn't. With the verb be, use was/were or were/weren't.	Did you get my email? Yes, I did. / No, I didn't. Was he an author? Yes he was. / No, he wasn't. Were they late? Yes, they were. / No, they weren't.

Pronunciation of regular verbs

The pronunciation of regular verbs depends on whether the verb ending is voiced or unvoiced.

Some unvoiced sounds are: f, k, p, t, sh

Some voiced sounds are: b, d, g, n, v

Verbs ending in voiced sounds: End with a /d/ sound, e.g. cleaned	cleaned, retired, planned, earned, received, changed, discovered, happened, trained, opened
Verbs ending in unvoiced sounds: End with a /t/ sound, e.g. washed	washed, asked, focused, talked, worked, based, placed, looked, stopped, missed, promised
Verbs ending with a /d/ or /t/ sound: Add an extra syllable: /ɪd/, e.g. wanted	wanted, needed, created, exceeded, depended, contacted, decided, visited, mended

! Make sure you pronounce the extra syllable with verbs ending with a /t/ or /d/ sound. The extra syllable is pronounced /ɪd/, not /ed/.

want (one syllable) wanted (two syllables) need (one syllable) needed (two syllables)

Past simple vs present perfect simple

Use

1 We use both these tenses to describe actions that started or ended in the past. Which tense we select depends on whether:

a we're referring to a definite or indefinite time.

b the action is finished or unfinished.

2 We often use adverbs like recently, already, yet, ever, never and just and the time expressions for and since with the present perfect.

3 We often use time expressions like yesterday, ago, last night/week/month, etc. with the past tense.

Form

Indefinite time	Definite time
Have you seen a good film recently?*	Did you see a film yesterday?*
We 've already met.	We met at the conference last year.
Has the meeting finished yet?*	The meeting finished an hour ago.
Have you ever been to India?*	I went to India in 2006.
I 've never read any of his books.	She read the book last month.
I 've just bought a new car.	The show started at 7.30.

Unfinished actions	Finished actions
She 's been an actress since she was 18. (She is still an actress.)	She was an actress during the 90s. (She isn't now.)
I 've had this car for five years. (I still have it.)	I had that car for five years but then I got a new one. (I don't have it any more.)

! British speakers use the present perfect simple slightly more in conversation than American speakers. American speakers sometimes use a past tense where only the present perfect simple is possible in British English.

British and American speakers both use yet, already and just with the present perfect simple.

Have you done it yet?*

I've already done it.

I've just finished. (BrE and AmE)

American speakers might also use a past tense with yet and already.

Did you do it yet?*

I already did it. (AmE)

British and American speakers both use just with the past tense to describe something that happened a moment ago.

Did you just call me?*

British speakers generally use just with the present perfect simple to give news.

I've just passed my driving test!*

American speakers might say this, too, but they also use the past tense to give news.

I just passed my driving test!

used to

Use

Past habits

1 We use used to when we talk about things we did in the past but which we don't do any more, and to describe past states that are no longer true.

He used to spend weekends skiing in the Alps.

I didn't use to enjoy my work but I do now.

2 We use used to when we want to compare the past with the present.

Marcus used to earn £500,000 a year but now he earns £60,000.

3 We often just use the past simple, instead of used to in negative and question forms.

He didn't like sports very much when he was younger.

Which sports did you play when you were at school?

Present habits

We don't use used to to talk about present habits. We use the present simple with an adverb of frequency such as usually/normally/often, etc.

Marcus is normally at home for only six months of the year.

I often watch my favourite TV programme on Sunday nights.

Form

Affirmative sentences used to + base form of the verb	I used to buy the newspaper every day. He used to be a football player.
Negative sentences Use didn't + use to + base form of the verb.	We didn't use to read free newspapers. She didn't use to have much money.
Questions In yes/no questions use did + subject + use to + base form of the verb.	Did he use to work as a waiter?* Did they use to make solar panels?*
In open questions use question word(s) + did + subject + use to + base form of the verb.	What did you use to do in your previous job?* How much did he use to earn?*
Short answers Use did/didn't.	Did he use to like cities? Yes, he did. / No, he didn't.*

! used to

In the negative form and in questions, remember to use the base form.

She didn't use to travel much, but she does now.

NOT She didn't ~~used~~ to travel much, but she does now.

Did you use to travel a lot for work?

NOT Did you ~~used~~ to travel a lot for work?

Past continuous

Use

1 We use the past continuous to talk about the background situation in a story. We often use the past continuous together with the past simple.

It was raining so I offered him a lift.

She was working as a model when she got her first part in a film.

2 We use the past continuous to describe past actions or situations which were in progress at a particular time in the past.

We were living in Paris at the time.

By the age of four, he was singing in a band with his brothers.

3 We can also use the past continuous to show two or more actions were in progress at the same time.

While he was taking acting lessons, he was also working part-time.

Form

Affirmative sentences Use was/were + the -ing form of the verb.	He was studying. We were wearing security badges.
Negative sentences Use wasn't (was not) and weren't (were not).	He wasn't studying. They weren't wearing security badges.
Questions Change the word order.	Was he studying?* What were you doing?
Short answers Use was/wasn't/were/weren't.	Was he studying? Yes, he was. / No, he wasn't. Were they working? Yes, they were. / No, they weren't.

Past perfect

Use

1 We use the past perfect to talk about actions or events that happened before another in the past. We can use it to talk about something which continued up to a point of time in the past, or ended a short time before. It is often used with the past simple.

Steve had turned 30 when he got fired.

Ben didn't know he had bought a girl's mountain bike when he went cycling.

2 We can use the past perfect to talk about life experience before a point of time in the past. We often use the adverbs ever, never, already, yet and just with the past perfect.

It was the best thing that had ever happened to me.

The film had already started when we arrived.

3 We often use the past perfect for reporting events in the past and with certain time expressions such as by (the age of), by the time, etc.

She had set up her own company by the age of 19.

Form

Affirmative sentences Use had + past participle of the main verb.	In ten years it had grown into a $2 billion company.
Negative sentences Use hadn't (had not) + past participle of the verb.	She hadn't worked as a waitress before. Ben hadn't seen the tree because it was dark.
Questions Change the word order.	Had you ever been to Paris before?* Had the film already started?*
Short answers Use had/hadn't.	Had she recognized him from TV? Yes, she had. / No, she hadn't.*

! In spoken English had often contracts to 'd.
It was the first time she'd visited the US.

Future forms and modal verbs

There are many different ways to talk about the future in English. The form we choose depends on the situation and how certain we feel.

1 Sometimes there are no important differences in meaning:

I'm going to be forty next year.

I'll be forty next year.

I'm going to come to the meeting on Friday. (I intend to be there.)

I'm coming to the meeting on Friday. (It's a planned arrangement.)

2 Sometimes the forms indicate different meanings:

Er ... OK, I'll come to the meeting. (I'm deciding now.)

I'm going to come to the meeting. (I've already decided.)

I'm coming to the meeting. / I'm going to come to the meeting. (It's definite.)

I might come to the meeting. / I may come to the meeting. (It's not certain.)

The modal verb will

Use

We often use will:

1 when we're making predictions:

In the future, people will retire at seventy.

Chinese will become an important language for business.

2 when we're deciding something at the moment of speaking:

A: It's raining. B: Then I'll take an umbrella.*

I think I'll get some perfume in the duty free shop.

3 to make offers and promises:

I'll do it for you.*

We'll give you a lift.

4 in sentences with if (See notes on conditionals page169):

If you walk more, you'll feel refreshed.

Form

Affirmative sentences Use will (or 'll) + the base form of the verb. There is no special he/she/it form.	I'll see you on Friday. She'll take questions at the end of her speech.
Negative sentences Use won't (will + not).	He won't be here for at least half an hour.
Questions Change the word order.	What time will he get here?
Short answers Use will/won't.	*Will it work? Yes, it will. / No, it won't.

going to

Use

1 We often use the expression going to when we talk about intentions and future plans:

I'm going to visit my sister tomorrow. (I've bought my ticket and she's expecting me.)

They're going to open a new office in Shanghai. (They've already made the decision.)

2 We also use going to when we can see now that something will happen in the future:

There are black clouds. It's going to rain.

The train's delayed. We're going to be late.

Form

Affirmative sentences Use be going to + the base form of the verb.	They're going to reorganize the office. I'm only going to stay there for a week.
Negative sentences Use the negative form of the verb be.	We're not going to clean up. He isn't going to arrive in time.
Questions Change the word order of the verb be.	Are you going to employ an assistant?* What's he going to do?
Short answers Use the verb be.	Is he going to come? Yes, he is. / No he isn't.

We don't usually use going to with the verb go. We prefer other future forms like the present continuous or will.

I'm going to Paris.

I'll go to Paris.

~~I'm going to go to Paris.~~

Present continuous

Use

We often use the present continuous to talk about future plans and arrangements.

We're meeting at 3.30 on Thursday. (It's in my diary.)

I'm not seeing him on Friday. (It's not planned.)

What time are you arriving? (What's the schedule?)

Form

For information on the form of the present continuous, see page 160.

Future possibility modals

Use

1 We use may, might and could to talk about future possibilities. They indicate actions are possible but not certain:

I may be late. / I might be late. / I could be late. (It's a possibility.)

2 We also use could to say things are possible and we often use it to make suggestions:

We could call his mobile and see if he answers.

3 We generally use might in negative sentences and questions about future possibilities.

She might not get here on time.

What problems might we have?

Form

May/might/could have no special third person form.	I may need some help. She might not get here in time. We could ask Sally if she's free.

Ability modals

Use

can, could and be able to

1 When we talk about abilities people have now, we generally use can.

He can speak French very well.

I can't remember a lot about my school days.

2 Be able to and can sometimes have the same meaning.

You can/will be able to integrate this into your life fairly easily.

3 When we talk about abilities people will have in the future, we use will be able to.

You will be able to improve your memory with these exercises.

4 We use could and was able to to describe abilities people had in the past.

I could/was able to learn things a lot faster when I was younger.

Form

The modal verbs can, can't, could, couldn't have no special third person form. Use can, can't, could, couldn't + the base form.	They can sing very well. I can't speak French. Could you do the homework?*
When a base form or an -ing form is needed use be able to.	I'd like to be able to swim better.* Being able to type is a useful skill.* Will you be able to do this work yourself?

Obligation and permission modals

Use

1 can and can't

We can use can and can't to talk about things that are or aren't allowed or permitted.

You can't park here during the daytime.

You can park here after six o'clock at night.

2 must, have to and need to

We use must, have to and need to to describe things that are necessary or obligatory.

We must / have to / need to turn left here.

Must is the strongest verb. We rarely use must to give orders to other people, but we might use must:

a to say what I oblige myself (not another person) to do.

I really must phone the suppliers today.

b to say something is a rule, regulation or law.

Fire exits must be kept clear.

c to suggest something that you think another person will like.

You must visit the Prado Museum. It's wonderful!

Have to and need to are more common ways to describe what is necessary or obligatory.

I have to log on to the computer system.
You need to give me a password.

In spoken English, people also use want to when they're giving instructions.

Don't tell anyone your password. You want to keep it secret.

3 mustn't, don't have to and don't need to

The positive forms of must, have to and need to have similar meanings. But the negative forms are different.

Mustn't describes things that are forbidden or not allowed.

Employees must not accept valuable gifts from clients.

Don't have to and don't need to describe things that are not necessary.

It's only a small gift. You don't need to report it.

We have plenty of time. You don't have to hurry.

We can also say needn't instead of don't need to. The meanings are the same.

It's OK. You needn't tell anyone.

> ! American speakers use must less frequently than British speakers and they do not use the contraction mustn't. Instead of must, they might say have to or required to. Instead of mustn't they might say not allowed to.
>
> We have to meet the targets.
> We're required to meet the targets.
> We're not allowed to tell anyone our password.

4 should and shouldn't

Should and shouldn't are weaker forms of must and mustn't.

You should read the documents. (It's a good idea – the correct thing to do.)

You shouldn't tell anyone your password. (It's not a good idea.)

We often use should with think to exchange opinions.

I think we should stick to the agenda in meetings.

I don't think people should take mobile phone calls in meetings.

Do you think we should hold meetings standing up? Yes, I do. / No, I don't.

Grammar reference

Form

Modal verbs: can, must, should
Affirmative sentences Use can/must/should + the base form of the verb. There is no special third person form.	You can park here for as long as you want. I must remember to switch off the lights. She shouldn't agree to that.
Negative sentences Add not	We cannot agree to that. *I mustn't forget. We shouldn't worry about it.
Questions Change the word order.	Can I wear jeans?* Must I report this?* Should I wear a suit and tie?*

Semi-modals: have to, need to
Affirmative sentences Add s to third person forms.	He has to tell his customers about it right away. She needs to ask her boss if it's OK.
Negative sentences Use don't (do not) / doesn't (does not).	You don't have to report it. He doesn't need to report it.
Questions Use do or does.	Do I have to attend the meeting?*

had to and need to

There are no past forms of the modal verbs of obligation must and should. Instead we use the past forms of have to and need to.

1 We use had to and needed to when something was necessary in the past.

I had to wear a uniform in my last job.

We needed to work until 10 p.m. yesterday.

2 We use didn't have to and didn't need to when something was not necessary in the past.

She didn't have to give a presentation in the end.

We didn't need to keep a record of the hours we worked.

3 We use wasn't/weren't allowed to when something was not permitted in the past.

Nobody was allowed to make personal phone calls.

make / let / allow

1 We use let / allow … to when you have permission to do something.

He allows his staff to vote on most major decisions.

He lets his staff vote on most major decisions.

2 We use not allow to when you don't have permission.

They don't allow staff to use the internet.

3 We use make (someone) when you force someone into doing something.

They made all their staff work at the weekend.

4 We use not make (someone) when you don't force someone to do something.

We don't make our staff work overtime.

Conditional sentences

Conditional sentences have two or more clauses joined with if. We use them in two kinds of situations.

1 Normal situations where we use normal verb forms.

__If__ we __charge__ for parking, more employees __will__ cycle to work.

Life __is__ more interesting __if__ you __have__ a lot of friends.

__If__ it __'s not__ the right size, __bring__ it back.

__If__ you __'re going to buy__ a new car, you should get a fuel-efficient one.

See the notes on the right on first conditionals for more examples.

2 Imaginary or unreal situations where we don't use normal verb forms.

If I __had__ a problem, my boss __would__ help me. (imaginary because I don't have a problem)

If I __were__ you, I __'d__ tell the truth. (unreal because I'm not you)

See the notes on page 170 on second conditionals for more examples.

Punctuation

The if-clause can be the first or the second part of the sentence. When it comes at the beginning, we usually put a comma between the two clauses.

You __'ll__ feel better __if__ you __do__ some exercise.

__If__ you __do__ some exercise, you __'ll__ feel better.

The zero conditional

Use

We use the zero conditional to talk about situations and events that are generally true. The if-clause talks about the cause and the other clause talks about the effect. We can use when or whenever in the main clause instead of if.

Employees tend to be happier __if/when__ they are able to contribute their ideas to plans.

Form

Zero conditional
Use if/unless + present simple, present simple.	__If__ I __go__ shopping, I __use__ recyclable plastic bags. I __use__ recyclable plastic bags __if__ I __go__ shopping. __Unless__ someone __is__ in the room, I __switch off__ the lights.

The first conditional

Use

1 We use the first conditional to talk about a possibility in the future. The if-clause contains the condition and the other clause contains the result.

__If__ you __take__ more exercise, you __'ll feel__ fitter.

You __'ll save__ money __if__ you __use__ energy-efficient light bulbs.

2 We can use other modal verbs in conditional sentences instead of will:

a to talk about something which is only a possible result of the if-clause, we use may/might/can/could.

If you replace your old light bulbs for low energy ones, it __can__ reduce your electricity bills.

b to give advice, talk about the correct thing to do or make a strong recommendation, we use should, need to or have to.

We __need to__ replace these old light bulbs if we want to reduce our electricity bills.

If you use a lot of electricity, you __should__ consider using renewable sources of energy.

Form

First conditional
Use if/unless + present simple, will/won't (do).	__If__ you __cycle__ to work, it __'ll save__ you money. __If__ the price __is__ too high, she __won't buy__ it. I __'ll take__ the job unless I __get__ a better offer.
Similar conditionals
Use if/unless + verb forms that are normal for the situation.	__If__ you __need__ any help, you __can ask__ me. __If__ it __'s__ too expensive, we __shouldn't buy__ it. __If__ shoppers __don't have__ a carrier bag, they __have to pay__ for one.

The second conditional

Use

1 We use the second conditional to talk about imaginary or unreal situations.

__If__ I __had__ the time, __I'd have__ a long holiday. (I don't have the time.)

__If__ I __were__ the mayor, I would ban cars in the city centre. (I'm not the mayor.)

2 We can also use other modal verbs like could and might in second conditional sentences to talk about possibilities.

__If__ you __wanted__ to be eco-friendly, you __could stop__ using plastic bags.

__If__ you __cycled__ to work, you __might get__ fit.

3 We can sometimes use either the first or second conditional, depending on our perception of the situation, and if we think something is likely or unlikely.

If we __have__ enough money, we__'ll__ go on a cruise. (likely)

If we __had__ enough money, we__'d__ go on a cruise. (unlikey)

Form

Use if + past simple, would/ wouldn't + base form of the verb.	__If__ we __didn't have__ a car, we __would take__ the bus. __If__ I __was__ rich, I __wouldn't work__.
In spoken English, would often contracts to 'd. In formal English, we use were instead of was in all persons in the second conditional.	__If__ I __were__ in your situation, I__'d resign__.

The third conditional

Use

1 We use the third conditional to imagine a different past from the reality.

__If__ he__'d had__ more money, he__'d have bought__ the house. (In reality he didn't have the money to buy the house.)

2 We can use other modal verbs in conditional sentences instead of would have. To criticize our past actions and the past actions of other people we use should/shouldn't have.

He __should have come__ to me if he needed money. (criticism)

If I __had thought__ about it, I __shouldn't have done__ a Sociology degree. (regret)

Form

Affirmative sentences If + past perfect + would have + past participle. The if-clause can come first or second.	If __you'd asked__ me, I __would have helped__ you. I __would have helped__ you if __you'd asked__ me.
Negative sentences One, or both clauses, can be in the negative form.	If __she hadn't fallen__, she __would have won__ the race. She __wouldn't have lost__ the race __if she hadn't fallen__.
Questions Change the word order.	__Would__ you __have got__ the job if __you hadn't lied__?

Passives

Use

1 We use the passive when we are interested in the action, not who does it.

Mobile novels __are read__ by many people on the metro. (We are interested in the mobile novels, not the people who read them.)

2 We often use the passive when we don't know who did an action.

Japan's first Pocket Films Festival __has recently been launched__ in Yokohama. (We don't know who launched the festival.)

The novel __was written__ by an Italian I think. (We don't know exactly who wrote the book.)

3 When we want to say who did an action, we use the preposition by.

The first cellphone call __was made by__ Dr Martin Cooper in 1973.

4 We can use different modal verbs in the passive form.

Professional information __can be stolen__ on the web. (It's a possibility.)

Your manager __must be informed__ of any incidences. (It's an obligation.)

Employees __should be encouraged__ to use web tools. (It's a recommendation.)

Passives are more common in written than spoken English. They are also more common when we are writing or speaking in a formal style.

Form

The passive
Affirmative sentences Use be + past participle.	A billion text messages __are sent__ each day. The book __was written__ by Jhumpa Lahiri.
Negative sentences Use be + not + past participle.	It __isn't made__ of gold. The goods __weren't delivered__ on time.
Questions Change the word order.	__Are__ everybody's seat belts __fastened__? Where __was__ the movie __shot__?
Short answers Use was/were or were/ weren't.	Was it made in China? __Yes__, it __was__. / __No__, it __wasn't__.

Present simple	Using mobile phones __is forbidden__ on this train.
Present continuous	The book __is being made__ into a film.
Past simple	The first ring tones __were sold__ in Finland.
Past continuous	Her novel __was being promoted__ in August.
Present perfect	Her new film __has been released__.
Future	The film __will be shown__ all over the country.
Modal passives	It __cannot be done__ in two weeks. We __should be allowed to send__ personal emails.

Nouns and adjectives

Compound nouns

1 A compound noun is a noun that is made up of two or more words. Compound nouns can be formed in different ways.

noun + noun: toothbrush, suitcase, weekend, room service, business class, tour guide, etc.

adjective + noun: single/double room, executive suite, weekly ticket, guided tour, etc.

verb + noun: swimming pool, skiing instructor, waiting room, walking tour, etc.

adjective + verb: dry-cleaning, multi-tasking noun + verb: car hire, hotel catering, sightseeing, etc.

2 The two words can be joined together.

air + port = airport, seat + belt = seatbelt, suit + case = suitcase, news + paper = newspaper, camp + site = campsite, etc.

3 The two words can be joined using a hyphen.

check-in, three-star (hotel), five-day (cruise), wake-up call, low-cost (airline), etc.

4 Compound nouns can also appear as two or more separate words.

hotel reception, window seat, summer holiday, security guard, seafood restaurant, tourist information office, etc.

Quantifiers

Countable and uncountable nouns

Countable nouns	Uncountable nouns
They can be singular or plural. pizza → pizzas egg → eggs	They cannot be plural. food → ~~foods~~ salt → ~~salts~~
They are used with singular or plural verb forms. Pizza is my favourite fast food.* These pizzas don't contain any meat.*	They are only used with singular verb forms. Processed food has a lot of added salt.*

Some nouns have more than one meaning, and they can be countable in one context and uncountable in another.

There was some chicken in the salad.

We bought a chicken for Sunday lunch.

1 much

We use much with uncountable nouns, mainly in negative sentences, questions and with too.

I've got too much food. I can't eat it all.

There isn't much milk in this tea.

How much salt do you put in that?

2 many

We use many with countable nouns, mainly in negative sentences, questions and with too.

I've got too many bags. I can't carry them all.

There aren't many eggs in the fridge.

How many grams of rice do we need?

3 a lot of / lots of

We use a lot of and lots of with countable and uncountable nouns to talk about large quantities.

I bought lots of fruit.

We don't have a lot of time.

A lot of is a very common expression in informal spoken English. In more formal English we prefer other expressions like a great deal of + uncountable noun and a great many + countable noun.

4 a little / a few

We use a little with uncountable nouns and a few with countable nouns. A little and a few mean a small quantity.

I've put a little chicken in the salad.

There are a few eggs in the fridge.

5 (very) little / (very) few

We use (very) little and (very) few to suggest that there is not as much, or many, of something as we would like.

I have little time to cook these days.

There are few healthy dishes in a fast food restaurant.

6 too / too much / too many

We use too, too much and too many when there's more of something than we want or need. We use too before adjectives, too much before uncountable nouns and too many before plural nouns.

This curry is too spicy for me.

I can't eat all this food. It's too much.

He ate too many cakes and now he doesn't feel well.

7 (not) enough

We use (not) enough when there is less of something than we need or want. We put enough before a noun and after an adjective.

There aren't enough tables in the staff dining room.

Are you getting enough vitamins in your diet?

Do you think this dish is big enough?

8 any / no / none

We use any, no and none to express no quantity. We use any in negative sentences, no in positive sentences and none in short answers.

He doesn't eat any vegetables. = He eats no vegetables.

A: How much pasta is there? B: None.

A: How many apples are there? B: None.

-ing forms

Use

1 We use -ing to form part of the continuous tenses.

Young Europeans are still reading books.

She was waiting for 20 minutes before her coffee arrived.

2 Some adjectives end in -ing.

It's surprising, isn't it?

We use the adjective ending -ed to talk about how the person feels. We use the adjective ending -ing to describe the person or thing that causes the feeling.

He gave a very interesting talk. (Interesting describes the talk.)

I was interested to hear his talk. (Interested describes the reaction to the talk.)

3 -ing forms can also be used as nouns. We can use them when an activity is the subject of a sentence.

Thanking your host is considered to be polite.*

Comparative and superlative adjectives

	Moscow	Mexico City	Beijing
Population	10.4 million	19.2 million	17.4 million
Cost of living	$$$$$	$$$	$$$$

Use

1 We use comparative adjectives to compare two things:

Beijing is larger than Moscow.

Beijing is more expensive than Mexico City but it is less expensive than Moscow.

2 We use superlative adjectives to compare three or more things:

Mexico City is the largest city in the world.

Mexico City is the least expensive of the three cities and Moscow is the most expensive.

Form

Short adjectives Add -er / -est.	Beijing is cheaper than Moscow, but Mexico City is the cheapest.
Long adjectives Use more / the most or less / the least.	Beijing is more expensive than Mexico City but Moscow's the most expensive. Beijing is less expensive than Moscow, but Mexico City is the least expensive.
Irregular adjectives good – better – best bad – worse – worst far – further – furthest much/many – more – most	The weather in Beijing is better than the weather in Moscow, but Mexico City has the best weather. The traffic in Beijing is worse than in Moscow, but Mexico City probably has the worst traffic in the world. Mexico City is further than Moscow. Beijing is the furthest. Moscow has many traffic jams but Beijing has more. Mexico City has the most traffic jams.
Other cases With many two-syllable adjectives, we use more/most: more/most modern, recent, famous, correct, normal, frequent With some two-syllable adjectives, we use either -er/-est or more/most: more clever / cleverer, more simple / simpler, more quiet / quieter, etc.

1 For small and big differences, use a lot, much and far to indicate a big difference in a comparison.

Studying online is much more flexible than attending full-time classes.

We use slightly, a little and a bit to indicate a small difference in a comparison.

It's also a bit cheaper than a traditional course.

2 We use the same as to say two thing are equivalent.

Doing a course abroad costs the same as staying here this summer.

We use as + adjective/adverb + as to say that things are similar in some way.

Tokyo can sometimes be as cold as Oslo in winter.

3 To make the expression negative, we use not as/so + adjective/adverb + as.

Malta is not as expensive as Sardinia.

Comparative and superlative adverbs

Use

1 We use comparative adverbs to compare two actions.

I'm progressing more slowly than him.

2 Use superlative adverbs to compare three or more actions.

She tries (the) hardest.

Form

We form the comparative of adverbs ending in -ly with more, e.g. more slowly.

We form the superlative of adverbs ending in -ly with most, e.g. the most carefully.

With adverbs which keep the same form as the adjective, we add -er to form the comparative and -est to form the superlative, e.g. hard, harder, hardest, fast, faster, fastest.

There are a few irregular adverbs that change their form completely.

good → well, better, best bad → badly, worse, worst

(to) + base form or -ing form

Use

1 We use to + the base form after It is + adjective.

It's polite to compliment the cooking and your host.

It's important to give people gifts in my country.

2 We use the base form without to after modal verbs.

You should try some of this. It's delicious.

I'm sorry. I really must go now.

3 Some verbs are followed by to + the base form, e.g. would like, want, plan, need, hope, offer, etc.

Would you like to have a coffee break now?*

I didn't want to eat the bird's nest soup, but I tried a little.

4 A few verbs can be followed by to + the base form or -ing, e.g. begin, start, like, love, prefer, etc.

Do you prefer having / like to have lunch at 1 or 2 p.m.?

I don't like going / to go out on my own late at night.

5 We use the -ing form when the verb is the subject of the sentence.

Understanding different cultures can positively influence your business.*

Asking for more food is a compliment.*

6 We use the -ing form after a preposition.

We honour our guests by serving them local specialities.

They had a coffee after finishing their meal.

7 Some verbs are followed by the -ing form, e.g. enjoy, mind, suggest, insist on, etc.

Do you mind picking me up from the airport?

Our host insisted on paying for everything.

8 We use to + the base form to express purpose and explain why you do something.

We're eating out tonight to celebrate my birthday.

They wanted to book an expensive restaurant to entertain their Mexican guests.

9 There are some verbs that can be followed by either to + the base form or -ing, but with a change in meaning, e.g. stop, try and remember, etc.

We stopped to have lunch. (pause an activity to do something else)

Could you please stop sending me joke emails? (not continue)

Try eating with your hand. It's much easier.* (experiment something)

Try to be on time for the meeting.* (make an effort to do something)

Remember to take your toothbrush!* (don't forget to do something)

Do you remember visiting Shanghai? (have a memory of doing something in the past)

Relative pronouns

Use

1 We can use relative pronouns, e.g. who/that, which/that, where, when and whose, to define people, places or things.

That's the woman who/that took the photographs at my wedding.

This is the café where we first met.

It's a kind of team-building activity which/that you do with ropes.

Trust is when you believe in the goodness of other people.

2 We also use relative pronouns when we want to give more information about people, places or things.

David, who I've known since I was a kid, is a close friend of mine.

The hotel, which has fantastic views of the beach, is ideal for a weekend break.

3 We use relative pronouns to combine two shorter sentences or ideas.

My company always organizes an away day. It isn't doing anything this year.

My company, which always organizes an away day, isn't doing anything this year.

4 We use whose when you want to say 'of which' or 'of who'.

My wife, whose parents come from Poland, was born in Germany.

Do you know that French car manufacturer whose CEO is a woman?

5 We don't use commas in defining relative clauses or before that.

*That's the house where I grew up.

6 We use commas in non-defining relative clauses when giving extra information about someone or something.

Abseiling, which is a kind of adventure sport, is only for people who are fit.

7 We can use that instead of who or which in defining relative clauses, but we cannot use that in non-defining relative clauses when we are giving additional information.

Sandra, ~~that~~ who is as old as me, is having a birthday party on Saturday.

New Zealand, ~~that~~ which has spectacular scenery, is great for outdoor sports.

8 In defining relative clauses where the main clause and the relative clause have different subjects we can leave out who/which or that.

That's the man (who/that) I've been talking about.

Compare these sentences:

That's the girl whose motorbike was stolen.

That's the girl they've just recruited.

It's a national dish we only eat on special occasions.

It's a national dish that is made with seafood and rice.

> ! whose v. who is
>
> That's the man whose ~~who's~~ wife is a multi-millionaire.
>
> Who's ~~whose~~ been drinking coffee at my desk? It's very messy.

Reported speech

Use

1 We use reported speech to say what someone has said and the verb usually goes back one tense.

Direct speech: 'I'm arriving in LA on Thursday.' →

Reported speech: She said she was arriving in LA on Thursday.

2 We don't change the verb tense in reported speech when we talk about facts or if something is still true, or if it happened recently.

'Hollywood is the home of the stars.' → He says Hollywood is the home of the stars.

'I phoned this morning.' → He says he phoned this morning. (It's still morning.)

'I've never been to New York.' → Lauren said she has never been / had never been to New York.

3 Tell is followed by a pronoun. We don't use a pronoun with say.

She told me she was arriving in LA on Thursday. →

She said she was arriving in LA on Thursday.

4 Modal verbs also change in reported speech. But might, would and should do not.

'I'll write a letter of complaint.' → The customer said she would write a letter of complaint.

'You can complete a questionnaire.' → They told me I could complete a questionnaire.

'You should phone to complain.' → He said I should phone to complain.

5 We often have to make other changes such as time expressions, pronouns and words like this or here.

'The builders are coming next week.' → He said the builders were coming the following week.

'The technician was meant to come last week.' → She said the technician was meant to come the previous week.

'I'll give you my mobile phone number.' → He said he would give me his mobile phone number.*

'We've lived here for nine years.' → They told us they'd lived there for nine years.

'We want this done by tomorrow.' → They said they wanted it/that done by the following day.

6 We can report a statement word for word, or we can summarize what has been said.

'The manager is busy. Could you phone back later?'

The secretary asked me to phone back later.

7 That after the reporting verb is optional.

She told me (that) she was arriving in LA on Thursday.

She promised (that) she would write.

Form

Tense changes in reported speech

Present simple → Present simple / Past simple Present continuous → Present continuous / Past continuous Past simple → Past simple / Past perfect
Present perfect → Present perfect / Past perfect Past perfect → Past perfect

Other changes:

Modal verbs

We'll do it. → They said they would do it.
I can't start until Monday. → He said he couldn't start until Monday.
I must/have to call them. → She said she had to call them.

Time expressions

I'll fix it tomorrow. → She told me she would fix it the following day.
I called twice yesterday. → He said he had called twice the day before.
We need the order for next week. → They said they needed the order for the following week.

Pronouns

I'm going to complain to your manager. → He said he was going to complain to my manager.*

Reported negative requests

We say not to + verb when we report negative requests.

The customer asked me not to call again.

say vs tell

We mention the person, or use an object pronoun, after tell but not with say.

She said she didn't agree.

She told the teacher/him she didn't agree.

Embedded questions

Use

1 Sometimes we do not ask questions directly. Instead we start with phrases like Do you know ...?, Could you tell me/us ...? I'd like to know ..., or, I'd be interested to know ...

What time does the film start?
Do you know what time the film starts?*
Could you tell me/us what time the film starts?*

What did you think of the film?
I'd like to know what you thought of the film.*
I'd be interested to know what you thought of the film.*

2 After one or two embedded questions, we generally change to direct question forms.

Do you know when they're getting married?* (embedded question)

Could you tell me if it's going to be a big wedding?* (embedded question)

So, how many guests are coming? (direct question)

3 We can also use expressions like Did you say ...? or Are you saying ...? in embedded questions. We use these expressions to check hearing and understanding, but also to signal a challenge, for example, to express surprise, or when we want to say, I don't believe you.

Did you say 15 or 50?* (checking hearing)

Are you saying the meeting's been cancelled?* (checking understanding)

Are you saying they haven't separated?* (I don't believe you!)

Form

Direct question	Embedded question
Change the word order in a direct question. Why did he quit the show?	Use the expression + question word(s)+ the usual word order. Could you tell me why he quit the show?*
Are they planning to get married?*	Use if when there isn't a question word. Do you know if they're planning to get married?*

Be careful with word order in questions that start with Could you tell me ...? Do you know ..? etc.

*Could you tell me where ~~do they live~~ they live?

*Do you know if ~~has the concert been cancelled~~ the concert has been cancelled?

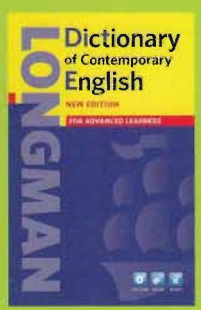
Lifestyle

English for work, socializing & travel

Lifestyle is designed to meet the everyday language requirements of people who need English for work, socializing and travel. As well as dealing with how people communicate at work, it also helps learners interact effectively outside of the work environment, enabling them to 'get things done' in a variety of situations.

- Functional language is presented in a cross-cultural context helping learners to build successful business and social relationships and avoid communication breakdown.
- Built on a solid syllabus of grammar, vocabulary, speaking and listening, the course is straightforward and easy to use with clear learning aims.
- Regular Review units recycle language throughout the course.



Components:

- Coursebook with self-study CD-ROM
- Class Audio CDs
- Workbook with Audio CD
- Teacher's book with Test Master CD-ROM

We recommend the Longman Dictionary of Contemporary English for use with this course.

Lifestyle Intermediate corresponds to level B1/B1+ of the Common European Framework.
